Hitler Told British Would Meet Force With Force

Halifax Pledges Strength to Back Treaties in Speech Aimed at Berlin

Danzig a Fortress

Britain Ready to Fight

By the Associated Press.

London, June 29.—Foreign Secretary Halifax in a speech plainly meant for German ears declared tonight that "in the event of further aggression we are resolved to use at once the whole of our strength in fulfillment of our pledges" to Europe's smaller states.

The foreign secretary repeated again and again that Britain was prepared to meet force with force—on a day in which London heard many rumors of an impending Nazi coup in Danzig this week-end.

The warning also was voiced as diplomatic quarters close to the French government reported 600,000 German reservists had been called to the colors, while Nazi Party formations and German regulars were infiltrating Danzig. The French press had printed widely a suggestion that a British-French-Polish warning be given Germany.

Warned of Isolation

Halifax referred several times to the possibility that Britain's attitude might not be understood "elsewhere" and declared:

"The threat of military force is holding the world to ransom and our immediate task is to resist aggression. I want to emphasize that tonight with all the strength at my command so that nobody may misunderstand it."

Emphasizing Britain's great strides toward preparedness, Halifax at the same time countered German charges of "encirclement" by British alliances by declaring:

"Germany is isolating herself and doing it most successfully and completely. She is isolating herself from countries economically by her policy of autarchy (self-sufficiency), politically by a policy that causes constant anxiety to other nations, and culturally by her policy of racialism."

A Complex Problem

He said the longer this self-isolation continued the "inevitable consequences" were certain to become stronger and more marked."

Then, taking up Germany's claims for lebensraum (living room), he said, "This problem is not solved simply by acquiring more territory.

"It can only be solved," he explained, "by wise ordering of affairs of a country at home and by adjusting and improving its relations with other countries abroad."

Lord Halifax asserted "the doctrine of force bars the way to settlement" of Nazi economic claims, and added:

"It is impossible to negotiate with a government whose responsible spokesmen brand a friendly country as thieves and blackmailers and indulge in daily monstrous slanders on British policy."

Speaks of China

He also mentioned "provocative insults offered to our fellow countrymen further afield"—interpreted as a reference to incidents in Tientsin, where Japanese are blockading the British and French concessions—and said:

"I can say at once that Great Britain is not prepared to yield either to calumnies or force."

The foreign secretary cited specifically Britain's guarantees to Poland, Turkey, Greece and Rumania as obligations which Britain had undertaken to halt aggression.

The speech was delivered at the annual dinner of the Royal Institute of International Affairs and was broadcast both here and abroad—including the United States—and

Storm Deaths Near 100 in Europe

Budapest, June 29 (AP).—Fifty-three persons were killed today as heavy storms continued to sweep southeastern Europe, where nearly 100 deaths have been caused by storms, floods and lightning this month.

Thirty-six peasants were drowned today when the River Rosca overflowed near Sevlijevo, Bulgaria.

L. S. U. Business Head Tells of Market Loss

Lured to Speculate By Dr. Smith and Lost $2,000, He Says

Special Dispatch to The Post

Baton Rouge, La., June 29.—Dr. James Monroe Smith, fugitive former president of Louisiana State University, was not alone among the university officials in the unsuccessful speculation in the wheat market which brought about his downfall, it was learned here today.

At the State Capitol, it was revealed that E. N. Jackson, business manager of the university, a $5,000 a year official who lives in one of the larger mansions of this city, has confided to friends that he went into the wheat market at Dr. Smith's suggestion, and lost $2,000 by his venture.

Jackson, who has been called as a witness before the grand jury, now investigating the university administration, declined to comment until he had testified before the grand jury. According to the announcement, Jackson has blamed Dr. Smith for luring him into speculation, and has said that Dr. Smith went around touting the possibilities of quick wealth through wheat futures.

The naming of Jackson as a fellow speculator of Dr. Smith's is the first break in clearing up the mystery of the shadowy "syndicate," for which, according to J. M. Brown, Smith's intermediary broker, and Charles Fenner, senior partner of Fenner & Beane, New Orleans brokers with whom the trading was done, have said they always understood Dr. Smith was acting.

Fenner was a witness before the grand jury today. Outside the courtroom, he said he still could not understand why the vanished educator's fortune should have been wrecked so by speculation that he was forced to flee. He recalled that the "J. Monroe" accounts in his office numbered 12 and that the total loss in them was $430,000. On the only occasion when he met Dr. Smith, he said, the educator assured

Craig Urges U. S. to Speed Its Defenses

Retiring Staff Chief Also Proposes Sea 'Outpost Line'

In a farewell message as Army Chief of Staff, Gen. Malin Craig yesterday urged that the Nation's defenses be increased "by short distance" necessary to put the United States in a position of readiness and then maintain them as a "continuing military policy."

He recommended creation of five "small, seasoned, hard-hitting divisions," instantly ready to defend the Western Hemisphere, a war reserve of fighting equipment for 1,000,000 men, and maintenance of an Alaska-Hawaii-Panama-Puerto Rican "outpost line" always prepared for immediate action.

These provisions would be beyond the Army expansion program already underway, and would require the addition of 1,800 officers and 23,000 men, plus a continuing program of new tanks, artillery and other material for the war reserve.

Is Military Minimum

"In all fairness to the people," Craig declared, "it is the military minimum that can be devised for them with accompanying assurance that they are properly protected. In consequence they should require its

George VI Could Be President, Moore Asserts

Special Cable to The Post.

London, June 29.—If King George and Queen Elizabeth took out naturalization papers and ran for the Presidency of the United States "I am not sure they would not beat all comers," declared R. Walton Moore, 80-year-old counselor of the State Department in Washington, at a British government luncheon in honor of the passengers on the Yankee Clipper, which arrived at Southampton last night.

"I think that lady (the Queen) could charm a bird off a bush," he added.

Three Escape As Thunderbolt Hits D.C. Home

Storm Fells Trees And Floods Streets; 10 Degrees Cooler

A father, mother and 8-year-old child last night escaped serious injury when a lightning bolt smashed in the kitchen ceiling of their home at 722 Rock Creek Church road.

The bolt struck in a severe thunderstorm which tore down trees, drove the temperature down 10 degrees in three hours and flooded District streets with nearly half an inch of water.

Abraham Davison, Washington Post compositor, and his son, Eugene, had just stepped out of their kitchen when a blinding flash of lightning cracked into the brick building.

Mrs. Rose Davison told The Post she saw "a blue flash fill the kitchen window" and heard the ceiling crumble overhead. She fled the room, screaming, as plaster showered the floor. Dishes, cups and pitchers were shattered.

The third floor of the building, above the Davison apartment, was not damaged.

In the 4000 block of Nichols avenue southeast the storm caved in the banks of a fresh sewer excavation. Eleventh Precinct police posted warning lights.

The mercury dropped from 81 at 5 p. m. to 71 at 8 p. m. Between 5:45 p. m. and 8:30 rainfall amounted to .40 of an inch.

Local showers and thunderstorms are predicted for today, with falling temperature tonight. Tomorrow will be fair, according to the forecast.

Italian Troop Cars Reported in Reich

Berne, Switzerland, June 29 (AP).—The Swiss Socialist newspaper Berner Tagwacht tonight reported that Italian railway troop cars were passing "continuously" over the Brenner Pass toward Innsbruck, Salzburg and Vienna in Germany.

The cars were to be used, the newspaper said, to transport German troops to Italy in case of war.

It's 'Moving Day' as U. S. Reorganizes Many Agencies

Washington's best picture post card subjects—the Monument and the Lincoln Memorial—will not be "reorganized" at midnight. They'll still be there tomorrow morning—even on paper.

Remaining with the National Parks Service of the Interior Department under the reorganization plan, the only change affecting them will be in their maintenance staff and guides. Approximately 5,000 employes under this category will report in future to the National Parks rather than the Branch of Buildings management.

Another piece of stationary stock involved in the Federal earthquake is the Columbus Fountain out in front of Union Station. It'll feel the Government shift only in its pipes. The man on the skeleton maintenance force, who did not get a three-and-a-half-day holiday and who will walk over to the fountain tomorrow to switch on its electric pumping motor, will be under the supervision of the National Parks for the first time since 1925. Previously, he was also under the Branch of Buildings.

Neither the Division of Space Control, Department of Interior, which does Uncle Sam's moving jobs, nor the Civil Service Commission, whose clerical staff will feel some of the brunt of the reorganization scheme, is much worried about overwork. According to the Civil Service Commission, there are changes going on all the time, any-

ADA to Build 300 Houses In Anacostia

Bids Are Asked on Model Village, to Cost a Million, on Ridge Road in S. E.

An early start on another low-rent housing development in the District was assured yesterday when the Alley Dwelling Authority requested bids for erection of 300 dwellings in Anacostia.

The "model village," to be located on Ridge road near the intersection of Anacostia road southeast, will be the first of seven to be undertaken by the ADA, with financial assistance of the United States Housing Authority.

The 30-acre site was acquired several years ago by the old housing division of the Public Works Administration. It was in PWA hands when a New York meat-packing house attempted to build an abattoir a half mile away a few years ago, with the result Administrator Harold L. Ickes strongly opposed the abattoir plans.

Justement Drew Plans

Legislation was introduced to prevent construction of the slaughterhouse, but it was not pushed when the company allowed its building permit to lapse. Subsequently, the tract was transferred to the United States Housing Authority, which sold it to ADA.

Plans for the housing project were prepared by Louis Justement, Washington architect, under a contract with the Alley Dwelling Authority.

"The proposed construction," said John Ihlder, executive head of ADA, "contemplates an open type of development suitable to the rolling character of the land. Plans include provision for a management office, community building and play space for small children."

Bid Opening July 27

Bids will be opened July 27. Work should be under way by late summer.

Ihlder said the estimated cost of construction is $1,000,000. The job has been divided into five parts. Contractors may bid on all or any number of them.

Most of the residences will be two stories, with some three-story buildings at focal points. Ten to 12 buildings are planned per acre. Central heat and hot water, as well as electric lights and gas, will be provided.

Apartments will range from two to five rooms. One-family dwellings will contain four and five rooms. All will have bathrooms.

The Ridge road project, a housing development for colored on Alabama avenue southeast, and two downtown projects all will become low-rent residential communities under a $6,600,000 loan by USHA. Three other sites, still in the process of acquisition, will be similarly developed with the aid of a second USHA loan of approximately $5,000,000.

Rome Reports Hitler and Duce Met Secretly

Special Cable to The Post.

Rome, June 29.—A secret meeting between Premier Mussolini and Reichsfuehrer Hitler is reported in well informed Italian circles to have taken place last week-end.

The meeting is supposed to have occurred on the Italo-German frontier.

In foreign diplomatic circles it is thought the visit may have taken place in Venice, and that Il Duce may have stopped off there on his way to inspect the Fiume

There have been so many goings and comings between the leaders of the Italian and German armed forces lately, that a short meeting between the supreme heads of these states would not be surprising, particularly in view of the increasing tension in Europe.

Clipper in 24-Hour Run to Lisbon

Port Washington, N. Y., June 29 (INS).—The Dixie Clipper, carrying the first 22 commercial passengers across the Atlantic and a crew of 11, landed today at Lisbon, Portugal, at 2:10 p. m. (E. S. T.), 23 hours and 52 minutes after taking off from New York. The airline distance between New York and Lisbon is 3,447 miles.

The Clipper will remain at Lisbon tonight and take off on the final leg of her flight, to Marseille, at 2 a. m.

The Yankee Clipper, which landed at Southampton, England, yesterday on the inaugural flight to England via Canada, Newfoundland and Ireland, will begin her return trip to Port Washington tomorrow

Devaluation Power Restored; Conferees Agree on Relief; Limited Arms Embargo Voted

Ban Kept on Sale Of 'Lethal Weapons;' House Sets Final Vote On Neutrality Today

The House last night tentatively agreed to a modified arms embargo barring wartime shipment of death-dealing weapons but leaders confidently predicted it would be swept out of the Administration's neutrality bill on a roll call vote today.

Sitting until 11:30 p. m. in a futile effort to pass the measure last night, Representative Bloom (Democrat), of New York, finally abandoned the attempt and postponed final action until today.

Striking at the central provision of the bill, flat repeal of wartime mandatory embargoes on arms, ammunition and implements of war, the compromise amendment approved by a close teller vote restricted the embargo to "lethal weapons" only. Shipment of planes, trucks and other war materials to belligerents could continue.

To Call for Record Vote

A separate record vote will be demanded when the House concludes action on the bill today, and Bloom declared even this vestige of the embargo would be abandoned.

Beating down all but one other Republican opposition effort to further modify the bill, Foreign Affairs Committee Democrats assented to two major changes in the original draft—elimination of Presidential authority to regulate travel through "combat zones," and power for Congress to proclaim existence of a foreign state of war.

Republicans charged Representative Johnson (Democrat), of Texas, with a "back door" attempt to restore the "combat zone" amendment, when he proposed power for the President to prohibit ships or citizens to carry goods to belligerents, under regulations that he would make. Johnson denied this, but the amendment was beaten down.

To defeat earlier in the day rode a bi-partisan proposal to repeal prior statutes on neutrality and return to international law.

Fate of the bill's heart provision, repeal of the mandatory arms embargo, teetered in the balance.

Fish Backs Compromise

Offered by Representative Vorys, of Ohio, Republican Foreign Affairs committeeman, the amendment originally was adopted by a two-vote margin on a 139 to 137 teller count. Sponsors argued this limited embargo would not handicap victims of aggression, adequately supplied with arms and ammunition, but in need of other war materials.

Greatest Drought In 17 Centuries Forecast in 1966

Palo Alto, Calif., June 29 (AP).—A prediction that the greatest drought in 17 centuries would come 27 years hence today highlighted meetings of the American Association for the Advancement of Science.

Halbert P. Gillette, geologist and meteorology researcher, said he had found evidence in the rocks there was a 1,701-year rainfall cycle, having sub-cycles of 567 and 189 years.

He said the year 1966 would be the bottom of all three cycles and should produce a drought comparable to the only other major occurrence of its kind in written history, in the year 265 A. D., "about when the Roman Empire began to crumble."

Gillette's prediction was based on a study of varves—layers of sediment deposited in seas or lakes by the annual runoff of streams.

Navy Buildings Here Approved

The House Buildings and Grounds Committee yesterday approved a bill to authorize a $23,466,000 building program here to house the Navy Department and a new Naval Museum.

Included was a mooring ground in the Potomac for four historic naval vessels as part of the museum.

Wallis Reported Ill of Rheumatism

Aix-Les-Bains, France, June 29 (AP).—The Duchess of Windsor was reported to be suffering slightly from rheumatism today.

Wedding Bells, Duty Call; Buck Stays to Vote

Romance competed with neutrality yesterday.

Representative Frank H. Buck was unable to give his daughter in marriage because the neutrality bill was under consideration in the House.

MRS. PUTNAM

The wedding of Miss Margaret Anne Buck, of Vacaville, Calif., daughter of Representative Buck and Mrs. of Alexandria, the former Mrs. Buck, took place in the chapel of the Christopher Wren Building of William and Mary College. The bridegroom, H. Gardner Putnam, is the son of Mrs. S. O. Putnam, of La Jolla, Calif.

After a wedding trip by motor across the country, they will make their home at 104 Palo avenue, Piedmont, Calif., about July 20.

House to Get $6,000,000 Lump-Sum Bid

Deadline Near, New Compromise to Be Submitted Today

By James D. Secrest.

A last minute attempt to budge the House from its adamant stand against any increase in the Federal payment to the District will be made today in another test vote upon request of Chairman Randolph of the House District Committee.

Randolph said last night he would report the revenue bill in disagreement and ask authority of the House to make a compromise proposal that the lump sum payment shall not exceed $6,000,000.

Representative Kennedy (Democrat), of Maryland, another of the conferees, said he would support the motion, and it is understood that one other conferee will agree to it if the House consents.

Year Ends at Midnight

With the fiscal year ending at midnight, the District faced its most acute fiscal crisis in years as the Senate and House stood deadlocked on both the supply bill and the tax measure.

Commissioner George E. Allen, fresh from induction into office, appeared on Capitol Hill late yesterday in an effort to effect a reconciliation between the House and Senate on the lump sum controversy that has tied up both bills.

After a conference with Speaker Bankhead, Randolph, and Representative Nichols (Democrat), of Oklahoma, he reported "some progress" on a compromise plan of raising the Federal contribution either

Presidential Aide Funds Voted

Funds to provide six new administrative assistants for President Roosevelt were voted by the Senate yesterday in passing a deficiency appropriation bill containing $3,189,377.

The catch-all measure now goes back to the House for consideration of Senate increases of more than $540,000.

Ickes Cancels Grant to Build House for Robert's Fraternity

The long arm of Public Works Administrator Ickes yesterday delivered its second spanking in recent months to Lawrence W. "Chip" Robert, Democratic national committee secretary.

Ickes canceled a PWA grant to the University of Georgia, at Athens, obtained by its regents' building committee, of which Robert is chairman. The administrator said his investigators learned the funds were to be used to build a house for the Sigma Nu fraternity, rather than a college dormitory as the application represented.

According to "Who's Who," Robert is a member of Sigma Nu.

Ickes demanded the University regents refund $7,200 already paid out on the $21,600 grant.

At Athens, University Chancellor S. V. Sanford, insisted yesterday that the land on which the structure was to be built was ceded to the regents by the fraternity and that the building was to be used as a campus dormitory, belonging entirely to the university, and that Sigma Nu members would have no more right there than other students.

Asked what he would do about the demand for refund, Dr. Sanford replied [illegible] them get.

Recently, Ickes denied a $36,000 "promotion" fee charged by Robert's Atlanta engineering firm in connection with the building of the $4,000,000 State hospital for the insane. Ickes rescinded the $36,000 payment when an investigation showed that

Deadlock on WPA, Other Funds Broken; Some Senate Boosts Reported Retained

House and Senate conferees late last night reached full agreement on the many points at issue between the two houses on the $1,808,300,000 relief appropriation bill for the fiscal year beginning this midnight.

Members of the conference committee steadfastly refused to disclose details of their agreement until their report is filed in the House and Senate today.

There were reports, however, that the House members had yielded, at least partially, on the appropriation increases voted on Wednesday by the Senate, and that the Senators had agreed to House restrictions on WPA administration.

Both Houses must act on the report and the bill must be signed by the President by midnight to prevent lapse of WPA's authority.

WPA Administrator F. C. Harrington, earlier in the evening, had taken cognizance of the possibility of failure to get the bill enacted, when he ordered all WPA projects suspended from July 1 to 4 inclusive.

Harrington disclosed his action in a brief message to all State WPA administrators, saying the layoff was necessary because of uncertainty as to some of the items which Congress may include in or delete from the relief measure which might cause legal complications.

The order affects more than 2,500,000 relief workers and their dependents. Since the period includes a Saturday, Sunday and a holiday, the actual time lost will be only one and one-half days, he said, which may be made up at a later date.

Work Late in Night

The Senate-House conferees, selected to adjust differences between the Senate and House versions of the 1940 relief outlay, worked under pressure most of yesterday and far into the night seeking a measure acceptable to both chambers.

It was understood that one of the chief points of contention was the Senate's action in restoring the Federal Theater Project and continuing other art programs without local sponsorship.

Picture of Nude Models

The Senate bill allocates three-quarters of 1 per cent of WPA's total $1,477,000,000 appropriation to the theater and arts projects. The House struck out the theater program and placed writers, historical research and similar projects on a local sponsorship basis.

To augment their argument yesterday, the House conferees used

MacLeish Wins Confirmation By Senate, 64-8

By the Associated Press

The Senate, 64 to 8, confirmed yesterday the nomination of Archibald MacLeish, the Connecticut poet, as Librarian of Congress, after Senator Austin (Republican), of Vermont, had protested that MacLeish was not qualified as a professional librarian.

The Senate also approved John M. Carmody, of New York, to be Federal Works Administrator; Paul A. Walker of Oklahoma, for another term as a member of the Communications Commission, and Louis G. Dreyfus, jr., of California, to be Minister to Iran.

Domestic Silver Price Raised to 70c; Republicans Plan 'Fight to the Finish'

By Robert C. Albright

In a race to beat tonight's expiration deadline on the Administration's currency powers, House and Senate conferees last night agreed on a money bill retaining dollar devaluation powers, but raising the domestic silver purchase price to 70 cents an ounce.

It was a sweeping Administration victory.

Apparently acceptable to the majority of silverites, the compromise angered Republicans seeking to end devaluation authority. They threatened a "fight to the finish" in the Senate to force the money bill past the midnight expiration mark.

But with silver bloc aid, Administration leaders hoped to drive the conference agreement through the House early today and to obtain Senate consent before adjournment.

Silver Price Raised

The conference settlement, reached 10 minutes after House and Senate managers were called into special night meeting, continues Treasury authority to purchase foreign silver, as well as raising the authorized Treasury purchase price of domestically mined silver 5.36 cents above the present price of 64.64 cents an ounce.

The President's power further to devalue the dollar would be continued along with authority to wield the $2,000,000,000 stabilization fund to combat international exchange fluctuations.

This is substantially the form of the Administration's House bill, the House making the lone silver concession. In the Senate, where Eastern Republicans and Western silver Democrats had joined forces, dollar devaluation had been stricken from the bill, a 77.57 domestic silver purchase price had been demanded, and Treasury purchases of foreign silver had been eliminated.

"Discussion" Threatened

House approval of the report was taken for granted last night, but Senate concurrence before midnight depended on disruption of the Republican-silverite coalition. Silver Democrats appeared likely to pull loose from their "trade" and go along with the bill, but Republicans and some conservative Democrats threatened "lengthy discussion."

Chairman Somers, of the House conferees, dropped his conference report into the House hopper last night before adjournment, thus obviating the need for a two-thirds vote that otherwise would have been required had the conference agreement been forced over a day. Somers will call it up this afternoon for one hour's debate and a final vote.

Representative Dempsey (Democrat), of New Mexico, one spokesman for the House silver bloc, said that while he was disappointed in not winning a higher silver price, it was "a good compromise" and most of his silver colleagues would vote for it.

Republicans Won't Sign

The two Republican members of the House group, however, refused to sign the report, as did Senator Adams (Democrat), of Colorado, and Senator Townsend (Republican), of Delaware, constituting a minority of the Senate group.

"We will fight it to a finish in the Senate," Townsend said as he left the conference room. Adams likewise predicted extensive argument in the Senate.

Silver Senators, however, will be forced either to accept the 70-cent compromise or to see existing silver purchase powers expire overnight and the domestic price of silver drop to world levels.

Resolution Urges Reading of Bible

By the Associated Press.

Senator Andrews (Democrat), Florida, proposed yesterday that the Senate adopt a 1782 resolution of the Continental Congress recommending that inhabitants of the United States read the Bible.

Andrews said "it is apparent that a revitalization of the moral and spiritual life of this Nation and of the world is greatly to be desired."

Senate Ratifies Barter With Britain

It Would Let Banks Unload Bad Debts on RFC, Chairman Fears

The Mead bill to guarantee long-term loans to small business yesterday received frowns of disapproval from Federal Loan Administrator Jesse H. Jones, who would be required to administer it.

Testifying before the Senate Banking and Currency Committee, Jones warned that the bill would cause banks to unload their bad loans on the Reconstruction Finance Corporation. The bill directs RFC to insure loans by banks to small concerns.

Although controversy has raged over the Mead bill for weeks, with bankers condemning it and a number of Government officials, including President Roosevelt, commenting sympathetically, it was the first time the Federal loan agency head had voiced his opinion about it.

Jones, who will assume his new duties tomorrow after directing RFC affairs since 1933, defended banks against the criticism that they are unwilling to lend money. They are frequently hampered, he declared, by "outmoded, unintelligent and officious" criticism from bank examiners.

"A little more co-operation from bank supervising authorities would help," he declared.

Jones made clear to the committee that he was not testifying in opposition to the Mead bill. If Congress passes the bill, he said, the RFC will administer it to the best of its ability.

But he dropped a few words of caution about legislation which encourage irresponsible lending.

"Good men," he declared, "borrow money only if they expect to pay it back. The others have no real use for it and should not have it."

Fears "Breadline" of Banks

If the Mead bill is enacted, he believed, banks will form a "breadline" to unload their bad loans on the RFC. The latter, of course, will try to prevent them, he said, but he felt they would find some way to do it.

Other developments were:

Morris S. Tremaine, comptroller of New York State, in a statement read before the House Ways and Means Committee by his secretary, opposed legislation to end tax exemption for Federal, State and municipal securities. He insisted reciprocal taxation of interest on securities would augment the tax burden on the poor without greatly curtailing tax avoidance advantages of the rich.

The Government prepared to bring to a close today the costliest fiscal year in its history, with the exception of two war years. Expenditures for the fiscal year were soaring toward the $9,300,000,000 mark, leaving a deficit of about $3,500,000,000. The public debt will be around $40,400,000,000. Meanwhile, Congress will have appropriated nearly $11,500,000,000, a new record for peace time, to be spent in the fiscal year beginning Saturday.

U. S. Would Guarantee 90%

Jones' testimony recalled bankers' statements before the committee that their banks might be tempted to double defaulted loans and unload the doubled loan on the RFC, knowing that it would "go sour" as the first had done, but that they could recover 90 per cent of the total from the Government agency, as the Mead bill permits.

Insisting that the "creative mind" of man was still at work, Senator Mead (Democrat), New York, declared it should be possible to work out some plan that would solve the problem of making capital funds available to small business.

"I must say I don't think you have it here," Jones said, referring to the bill.

When Mead said his office was flooded with demands from small concerns for credit, Jones replied:

"Why don't you send them down to us and let us look them over?"

The Gallup Poll

By Dr. George Gallup,

Director American Institute of Public Opinion

New York, June 29.—Despite sporadic instances of corruption in the Nation's courts, including the recent conviction of Judge Martin T. Manton, of New York, for selling justice, the overwhelming majority of American voters have faith in the honesty of the judicial system, according to a national survey by the American Institute of Public Opinion.

The public has more faith in the integrity of Federal judges, however, than in the integrity of judges in the State and municipal courts. In fact, approximately one voter in every four in the survey distrusts the honesty of State and local judges.

Using techniques of opinion measurement which have proved accurate in many recent elections, the survey was conducted throughout the Nation by a staff of interviewers who questioned a representative sample of voters in all walks of life.

The questions, and the national vote, showing the different attitude toward Federal, State and local courts, follow:

"In general, do you think judges in the Federal Courts of this country are honest?"

Yes	86%
No	14

"In general, do you think judges in the State courts are honest?"

Yes	76%
No	25

"In general, do you think judges in the municipal or local courts are honest?"

Yes	72%
No	28

The most marked difference in attitude toward the courts was found between persons living in cities, on the one hand, and those living in small towns or on farms.

For example, nearly one-third of voters reached in cities said they felt there was dishonesty among their local judges and one-fourth questioned the honesty of State judges. Among small town and rural voters, on the other hand, the amount of skepticism was much lower, with only about one voter in every five questioning the honesty of the courts.

Greatest dissatisfaction with local or municipal courts was found in the populous Middle Atlantic and East Central areas, which include New York, Pennsylvania, New Jersey, Delaware and Maryland, and Ohio, Indiana, Illinois and Michigan.

Approximately one-third of all voters in these two areas believe that dishonesty exists in their local courts, as the following table shows:

Local Judges Honest?

	Yes	No
New England	80%	20%
Middle Atlantic	67	33
East Central	67	33
West Central	75	25
South	77	23
Far West	76	24

In explaining the reasons for their opinions, voters remarked typically that local judges were less in the public eye and more subject to political pressure than State or Federal judges.

Senate Passes 5,500-Plane Air Force Bill

King Raises Only Protest; Measure Goes Back to House

Funds for expanding the Army's air power to 5,500 first-line planes were voted yesterday by the Senate as it passed a $293,985,547 supplemental Army appropriation bill making available the actual money for the emergency defense program.

Consideration of the measure took but a few minutes and passage came after brief debate. Senator King (Democrat), of Utah, raised the only protest to the measure asserting that funds voted for the Army this session would total "the stupendous sum of more than $1,000,000,000," and warned that the United States could not go on indefinitely with such "enormous appropriations."

The bill was sent back to the House for action on three Senate amendments and immediately sent to conference. Final action on the measure may come today and thus permit pending contracts for planes and other war materials to be placed tomorrow.

The Senate added $1,200,000 to the measure for construction at Lowry Field, Colo., authorized the use of $5,000,000 of the money provided in the bill for topographical surveys and mapping, and authorized the War Department to furnish contractors with tools and "means of production" to speed up the program.

Earlier in the day Brig. Gen. George C. Marshall, who will become acting chief of staff of the Army tomorrow, appeared before the Senate Military Affairs Committee to urge that additional rank be given the Army high command.

The appropriation bill carries $223,298,047 in direct funds and the remainder in contract authorization for expanding the Air Corps, strengthening Panama Canal defenses and enlarging the educational orders program, under which selected factories are being geared to war production.

New air bases in Panama, Alaska, Puerto Rico and northeastern and southeastern United States are provided, together with funds for training pilots and mechanics for the new planes.

Senate Rejects Nominee, Rebuffs President, Pittman

The Senate last night, by a standing vote, refused to confirm President Roosevelt's nomination of William S. Boyle as United States district attorney for Nevada, administering a rebuff to the President and to Senator Pittman (Democrat), Nevada, who had made a personal plea for Boyle.

Pittman's Nevada colleague, Senator McCarran, demanded and won an adverse vote on the ground that Boyle was "personally obnoxious" and that Mr. Roosevelt had named him as a reprisal for McCarran's frequent opposition to the New Deal.

accomplishment and demand its maintenance."

Gen. Craig, reviewing developments of the past year, reported that a "revitalized, rearmed Army" is being provided. He told of a long, expensive struggle to rectify the unsound and hazardous condition into which the Army was placed as result of the so-called disarmament period following the World War," and declared "such a dangerous state of national security should never again be permitted."

Nearing the Army retirement age, Craig goes on leave today. He turns over the Nation's highest military post to Brig. Gen. George C. Marshall, now deputy chief. The latter, in a tribute to the retiring chief, said:

"Gen. Craig leaves the Army in a state of efficiency as to morale, equipment and training never before approximated in time of peace. He carries with him into retirement the loyal devotion of the officers of the Army, and of the men in the ranks who had the opportunity of knowing him. I don't believe anyone can dispute the statement he is largely responsible for the unprecedented feeling of confidence the public places in the War Department.

Service Conspicuous

"Throughout his service, he has been conspicuous for the positions of great responsibility he has filled with uniform efficiency, and even more for the self-effacing modesty with which he has always carried himself. It is a difficult task to follow in his steps, and I am keenly aware of the problems which will confront me and the obligations of the position I am about to assume."

Jury Indicts Pendergast's City Manager

McElroy Accused With 2 Others of $365,000 Graft

Kansas City, June 29 (AP).—Henry F. McElroy, whose 13-year record as city manager was pointed to by the Tom Pendergast Democratic machine as justification of its rule, joined the toppled machine's growing list of indicted leaders today.

The 73-year-old, white-haired man was accused by the county grand jury of joining a wealthy contractor and an obscure city employe in using a dummy engineering firm to conceal diversion of funds. City officials said $365,000 was paid to the firm over a seven-year period.

McElroy, whose ready tongue shouted "polecat" or "take a dose of castor oil" at his critics, resigned under fire in April—the month the Pendergast machine started crumbling.

Pendergast now is at Leavenworth serving 15 months for failure to report income the Government charged he collected for his political influence. R. Emmet O'Malley, State superintendent of insurance, is there with him. The county prosecutor and a county judge elected with Pendergast backing are under indictment.

The others indicted were J. J. Rathford, city employe, and J. J. Pryor, contractor.

The charges were based on Rathford's testimony before the grand jury. The jurors recommended that the indictments against him be dismissed if he rendered the State "the same measure of co-operation."

Don't overdo in exercise.
Don't drive if you drink.
Don't race a train to a crossing.
Don't go swimming unless you can swim.

3 States Seeking Parents of Girl Stranded in D. C.

Police last night broadcast a lookout through three States for the parents of a 17-year-old girl transient who is critically ill in Gallinger Hospital.

Ivory Thompson became ill at the Receiving Home yesterday, where she had been held for investigation by police, who found her wandering alone in Union Station Monday.

The girl said she had become separated from her parents, John and Mary Thompson, who she said were traveling basketmakers in Tennessee, and that she was on her way to New York City.

Victim Jaywalked, Driver Exonerated

William Bates, colored, 38, of Alexandria, Va., was exonerated of a negligent homicide charge by a Police Court jury yesterday in the traffic death of Mrs. Cora Bell Coffman, 75, of 1321 M street northwest.

Bates' truck struck Mrs. Coffman at Fourteenth street and Constitution avenue northwest, April 21.

Although witnesses testified the truck's brakes apparently were not adequate under the law, the victim was crossing the intersection on an improper light.

Aviation Leaders Guests at Dinner

Washington leaders in aviation last night were guests of Carl Hinton, chairman of the organization committee for a Nation-wide "Air Power for Progress" campaign, scheduled September 11-24, at a dinner in the Mayflower Hotel. Charles F. Hornee, president of the National Aeronautic Association, presided.

North Woods Marksmen Kill Outlaw After Hideout Is Bared by Tobacco Smoke

By the Associated Press.

Cable, Wis., June 29.—Bullets from straight-shooting woodsmen's deer rifles today killed Ray Olson as the slayer of two deputy sheriffs made a last attempt to escape from possemen trailing him for two weeks through the wilds of northern Wisconsin.

As he lay dying, Olson confessed killing the deputies and gasped a denial that he was given aid during his spectacular flight.

Today's shooting was in sharp contrast to the gun fight which precipitated the manhunt. Surrounded in Indian John Blue Sky's shack two weeks ago, Olson barricaded himself and with a single-barreled shotgun picked off Deputies Carl Johnson and Fred Scott, of Hayward, when they rushed the door. Reloading furiously, he exchanged shots with others in the party until they had exhausted their ammunition. He then broke for the woods.

Although Olson carried the pistol he took from Johnson's body, he fell today without firing a shot. The woodsmen pressed him so closely he could do nothing but run. They dropped him in the water, four bullets in his body, as he frantically tried to launch a boat and flee across Lake Namakagon, 14 miles from Cable.

The odor of tobaco smoke led to the fugitive's undoing. He stole into the farm home of Wheatley Anderson late yesterday, cooked food, changed clothing and smoked several cigarettes.

Members of the Anderson family noticed the smell of smoke upon returning from a fishing trip. They notified the authorities and a posse surrounded the farm buildings.

Shortly after dawn, Anderson and a deputy went to an outbuilding and called upon Olson to surrender.

Murphy Denies Inquiry Affects All D. C. Police

FBI Trying to Expose A 'Certain Situation,' Attorney General Says

Attorney General Murphy emphasized at his press conference yesterday that the local Police Department was not being investigated "as such." It never has been under investigation as a department, he said.

A large number of Washington policemen are being questioned, Murphy said, in the hope that they will throw light on a "certain situation" which the Federal Bureau of Investigation is trying to expose.

To accomplish this, Murphy said, it is necessary to interrogate many policemen. But it was unfair to assume, he added, that those questioned are under suspicion.

When the investigation is completed, the Attorney General said, a few policemen may be involved, and again they may not.

The current FBI investigation began at a time when the Warring brothers were on trial and evidence was produced that they had been paying large sums for police "protection."

Attorney General Murphy also announced yesterday that a hearing soon would be held in connection with an investigation of the Police Court. That this investigation, which has to do wth the conduct of a Police Court judge, became known several weeks ago.

Maginot Line Spy Sentenced

Nancy, France, June 29 (AP).—A military court today sentenced Charles Vintz, 35, of Metz, to 20 years in prison and 20 years subsequent banishment from France for espionage in the Maginot Line zone.

Mrs. Stinson Hits Nurse's Libel Suit

Mrs. Lola M. Stinson, central figure in Washington's longest annulment case, yesterday asked the District Court to dismiss the suit for libel and defamation of character filed against her by Jessica Shoemaker, her one-time nurse and companion, asserting her charges were "privileged" in court.

Justice Luhring has under advisement testimony given when Mrs. Stinson sought an annulment of her marriage to Joseph Whitla Stinson, claiming Stinson and the nurse drugged her into the ceremony against her will.

Gore and McCarty Win Promotion in D. C. Police Force

Night Inspector Marshall R. Gore, 42, and Richard F. McCarty, 42, sergeant and detective sergeant, respectively, will be promoted tomorrow to lieutenant and sergeant.

McCarty, detective sergeant for more than a year, is forsaking the plainsclothes job for that of a uniformed sergeant. He will lose $250 compensation annually. He has been a detective seven years and was appointed to the police force in 1924.

Gore will be promoted to lieutenant, assigned to the Traffic Bureau, replacing Lieut. Robert Pearce, whose transfer to the First Precinct also was announced yesterday. Lieut. Pearce, in turn, replaces Lieut. A. M. Winfrey, assigned to the Detective Bureau to fill the vacancy caused by the retirement of Lieut. Warren O. Embrey.

Roosevelt Bids Norse Royal Pair Farewell

Visitors Given Warm Ovation in Senate; Tea at White House

Crown Prince Olav and Princess Martha of Norway, who were welcomed to the United States with hot dogs at Hyde Park, yesterday said good-by to President Roosevelt after tea on the south portico of the White House.

The royal visitors, veterans of ten weeks of transcontinental sightseeing, continued their tourist role inside the Executive Mansion, inspecting almost every room before leaving. Their visit lasted 50 minutes.

Stepping into the Senate diplomatic gallery earlier in the day, the prince and princess received an enthusiastic ovation from the floor.

Barkley Extends Welcome

Majority Leader Barkley, of Kentucky, in a brief speech of welcome, expressed hope that the royal visit would "be instrumental in cementing what has been a long-time friendship between Norway and the United States." The Norwegian couple also observed the House in action.

While Princess Martha lunched with the Women's National Press Club, the Crown Prince was entertained at luncheon by Senator Henrik Shipstead (Farmer-Labor), of Minnesota, son of Norse-born parents. Guests included Vice President Garner, Speaker Bankhead and 19 members of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee.

Prince Thanks Senate

After informal conversation on American and European politics, Olav thanked the Senate for its cordial welcome. He also congratulated "your very distinguished Senator Borah" on his seventy-fourth birthday.

Before their arrival at the Capitol the prince and princess visited the Library of Congress and Supreme Court. Princess Martha, it was reported, wants to go shopping in Washington, but is hesitant after her experience in several Midwestern cities, where several hundred women followed her through department stores.

Olav and Martha greeted nearly 500 guests at a reception at the Norwegian Legation late in the afternoon, before dining at the Georgetown home of Robert Woods Bliss, former Minister to Sweden.

Today the royal couple will visit Mount Vernon and Arlington National Cemetery, and Princess Martha will inspect the Girl Scout House, 1750 New York avenue northwest, at noon. They leave for Philadelphia at 3 p. m.

Mayor Censures '80 M.P.H. Drive' Of Royal Couple

Richmond, June 29 (AP).—Mayor J. Fulmer Bright declared today "there can be no censure too severe for the official or officials who were responsible" for the speedy drive of the motorcade which returned Crown Prince Olav and Princess Martha of Norway from a garden party at Brandon to Broad Street Station here to catch their train for Washington.

Escorted by motorcycle police, the motorcade roared along the 47 miles to Richmond over winding roads and through two cities, sometimes at a speed of 80 miles an hour. "This reckless abandon, jeopardizing the lives of those who were intrusted to our care, as well as threatening the lives of others on the streets and highways, should be condemned in the strongest terms," Mayor Bright said.

Outing to Be Held

Planning District Day at New York World Fair

him he was acting for several associates. "Say his loss was a tenth of that $430,000," said Fenner. "He was a man of means. He could have absorbed a loss of $43,000."

Owned Several Houses

Among the other investments of Dr. Smith in Baton Rouge, it was learned, are several sizable dwellings, rented, near the university campus. Title to them is held by Mrs. Smith, who has gone with the fugitive.

Two developments here today indicated that former Gov. Richard W. Leche, who resigned Monday immediately after Dr. Smith's flight, is withdrawing completely from political life. One was the announcement that Don Weldon, publisher of the Progress, a newspaper owned by Leche, has resigned. The other was revealed at his home in Covington, La., when Leche explained he had asked Senators Overton and Ellender to withdraw his name from consideration for a post on the Federal bench because he proposes to take a long rest, then, resume the practice of law.

4 Witnesses Heard

The resignation of his appointee as publisher of The Progress still further pointed toward the current dis-association of former Gov. Leche with the old Long machine, which now seems absolutely under the control of Robert S. Maestri, mayor of New Orleans.

Without the power exerted from the governor's office, political opponents of Leche have charged, possession of The Progress is not lucrative. The resignation of Weldon is interpreted to mean the newspaper will pass to other hands within the Long-Maestri organization.

The grand jury inquiry here into the affairs of Louisiana State University heard four witnesses today. They were J. M. Brown, Dr. Smith's broker; Fenner, Owen W. Ware, husband of Dr. Smith's daughter, and J. Emory Adams, a nephew of Mrs. Smith, who drove the vanished educator and his wife to Memphis, Tenn., last Sunday.

Brig. Gen. Louis F. Guerre, superintendent of the State Police, minimized reports here today the fugitive educator and his wife have been seen in North Carolina, in Texas, and in several other places except Canada in the last two days. Dr. and Mrs. Smith "absolutely" are in Canada, Gen. Guerre asserted, according to reports he believes reliable. He has been in touch with the Canadian mounted police, he asserted, and is confident they will get their man as he has requested.

Jury Convicts Mrs. Schrein

New York, June 29 (AP).—A jury today rejected the explanation of Mrs. Lillian Schrein that large sums of money she took from Martin Beck, 71, theatrical producer and her husband's uncle, constituted the gifts of a man to his mistress.

The twelve men convicted her of two counts of forgery and one of grand larceny, involving a total of $60,000. She will be sentenced July 7 and the maximum penalty is 30 years in prison. Mrs. Schrein, 38, mother of three, took the verdict stoically, but her husband, Bertram, wept bitterly.

Reaction Passe, Says Borah at 74

By the Associated Press.

Senator Borah (Republican), of Idaho, took time out on his seventy-fourth birthday anniversary yesterday to express the opinion that the American people would not accept a reactionary candidate for the Presidency in 1940.

"Some of the party leaders," said the Senate's dean, "have failed to realize that there was a political revolution when the country first elected President Roosevelt in 1932."

Oil Heir Held In Traffic Row

Miami Beach, June 29, (U.P.).—Henry Huddleston Rogers, oil fortune heir, his blond wife, and Albert Mendez, a friend, were free tonight on bond on charges of disorderly conduct.

Police said they were arrested late last night for "creating a disturbance" and "blocking traffic." Their bonds were $25, $35 and $50, respectively, posted by Rogers.

The oil heir's attorney said the disturbance, which resulted in their arrest, occurred after they had pursued and halted an automobile that struck their car from behind and did not stop.

Roosevelt Plans To Dedicate Park

Raleigh, N. C., June 29 (AP).—President Roosevelt plans to dedicate the Great Smoky Mountains National Park "exactly four days after Congress adjourns," Gov. Hoey said today.

Employment Center Delays Appointments

Twelve hundred claimants for unemployment compensation who have been given appointments for next Monday, will have them postponed until Thursday morning, July 6, officials of the District of Columbia Employment Center announced yesterday.

The change resulted from the President's executive order closing District offices Monday and Tuesday.

German Fliers Sent to Danzig, Warsaw Hears

Poland Defiant as Reports of Nazi Fort Building Pour In

By International News Service.

Warsaw, June 29.—A full division of Nazi storm troop aviators was reported late tonight to have arrived in Danzig while a veritable German fortress, with 16 field gun emplacements and huge munitions stores, was said to be under hurried construction on Bischof Hill, commanding the key approaches from Polish territory to the Free City.

These reports came through semi-official channels a few hours after millions of persons throughout Poland, observing "Sea Day" under President Moscicki's leadership, took a solemn oath to "defend Poland's eternal right to the Baltic."

Moscicki, in a broadcast speech, warned Adolf Hitler that Poland's rights in Danzig and possession of the Polish Corridor are "valued above the price of air and sun to our existence as a state" and that Poles would make "even the greatest sacrifice" in their defense.

Youth Reported Enlisting

Meanwhile, reports and rumors emanating out of Danzig painted a picture of large-scale preparations for what may develop into a decisive move to restore the Free City to Germany.

Danzig German youths, between 16 and 23, were said to have been ordered to enlist in the Nazi "Free Corps"—ominously resembling the Austrian and Sudeten semimilitary bodies organized just before Hitler moved in on Austria and Czecho-Slovakia—and it was planned to complete this enrollment by next Thursday, July 6.

[Polish authorities, according to the United Press, issued an official communique declaring that the organization of a Danzig Free Corps "has been established beyond doubt and can easily be observed despite Danzig denials."]

According to another report, Nazi crews were feverishly digging trenches around villages along the Baltic seacoast and the borders adjoining Polish territory. They were said to be bolstering the soggy banks of the Vistula River to build pontoon bridges across which troops could move into Poland. A new and large barracks was reported to have been erected at Matzkzau to house the additional storm troopers streaming into Danzig from East Prussia. Even the pretense of secrecy was being dropped by the Nazis, it was indicated.

Fear Internal Coup

Fears that Hitler may stage an internal coup to attach Danzig to Germany in the immediate future were enhanced tonight by reports stating a majority of all officials in the vital Baltic seaport zone were forced to take an oath of allegiance to the Nazi-dominated Danzig senate. These were said to include Polish customs officials to whom the oath was administered in the face of a protest by the Polish commissioner general.

The new aviation division of Nazi storm troopers, it was reported, entered Danzig in a cavalcade of trucks, coming from Koenigsberg, East Prussia. There was some suspicion that many of the flyers are regular German Army aviators, just as it is suspected in Warsaw that many of the estimated 4,000 young Germans who entered Danzig in civilian dress during the last few days actually were regular German soldiers.

Semi-official information in Warsaw said men, weapons and ammunition are pouring into Danzig. Sixteen long-range German field guns were said to have arrived aboard trailers from Germany proper.

The Nazis were understood to be feverishly building concrete gun emplacements on Bischof Hill, all access to which was being barred by cordons of Nazi police and storm troopers.

The newspaper Vorposten, central organ of the Danzig Nazis, today denied rumors of an impending putsch and of the presence of German troops in the Free City, but warned that "Danzig cannot remain indifferent in the face of Polish war threats," adding that it must not be assumed that the city's "police" are "unable to safeguard Danzig's security."

The most impressive of the "sea day" demonstrations was one staged in Poland's new port of Gdynia, near Danzig, which drew 100,000 visitors from many parts of the country. A group of Polish-American delegates to the Polish Eucharistic Congress landed at Gdynia aboard the liner Pilsudski. Its leader, Ostro Grodzki, declared:

"Polish-Americans are proud of Poland and would be ready to aid Poland in any tension."

The day's keynote was sounded by President Moscicki, who said:

"Poland is determined to remain on the Baltic for all eternity. Danzig has been connected with Poland for centuries. Poland wants to remain connected with Danzig for all time to come. She desires co-operation between Gdynia and Danzig in the interests of peaceful trade and because three-fourths of all Poland's export trade is handled through these ports."

Referring to Poland's alert army of 1,300,000 men, Moscicki declared it is "the nation's duty to create a strong army, air force and navy," but added Poland desires to develop "peaceful international relations" if that can be done."

Will Fight for Corridor

He spoke of the "inseparable union of our whole nation with the maritime province of Pomorze" (the corridor), adding:

"Every inch of Polish soil is equally dear and close to us. Of the territory which goes to make up this entity of our nation, Pomorze and the sea coast are basic elements of our economic and political independence . . .

"The consciousness of this value exists in the hearts and minds of every Pole. The greater the adversities encountered and the more inimical the external circumstances, the firmer is our determination and readiness to make even the greatest sacrifices so that Poland's outlet to the sea can be made to endure for all time."

Troops Active Along Rhine

Metz, France, June 29 (U.P.).—French observers tonight said German troop movements along the Rhine frontier were becoming more active.

They reported several infantry regiments had arrived at Kehl and Karlsruhe.

Twenty thousand men from Hesse and Bavaria were reported to have arrived in the Saar area while motorized cavalry was said to be maneuvering in the Rhineland.

Germany Warned Britain Will Fight

was summarized on the British Broadcasting Corporation's nightly German language broadcast.

Speaking of British guarantees to Poland, Rumania, Greece and Turkey, Lord Halifax said, "We have assumed obligations and are preparing to assume more with a full understanding of their causes and with a full understanding of the consequences.

"We know that if security and independence of other countries are to disappear, our own security and our own independence will be gravely threatened. We know that if international law and order is to be preserved we must be prepared to fight in its defense."

He mentioned negotiations now under way in Moscow on the proposed British-French-Russian mutual assistance pact, saying, "I hope there may very shortly be a successful issue."

A few hours before he spoke it was disclosed in informed quarters here that Britain's latest instructions to her diplomats in Moscow had been broadened to such an extent that the new formula virtually was the same as Russia's original demand, except that it additionally would provide guarantees for Switzerland, Belgium and the Netherlands.

Countries which would be guaranteed by the proposed revival of the World War British-French-Russian partnership, under the reported British proposals, would include Poland, Rumania, Greece, Turkey, the Netherlands, Belgium, Switzerland, Finland, Estonia and Latvia.

The last three Baltic states—neighbors of Russia—have insisted they wanted no guarantee, but it was understood they would be named specifically in the suggested three-power accord, at Moscow's insistence.

Japan Bombed U. S. Mission, Shanghai Told

Consulate Prepares To Protest Razing of School at Foochow

By the United Press.

Shanghai (Friday), June 30.—Japanese warplanes, in an attack on Foochow yesterday, bombed and destroyed the American Mission School, according to reports received here today.

It was understood there were no casualties at the school, as occupants had sought the safety of dugouts.

The United States consulate prepared to make a vigorous protest.

British Ships Blocked

Hongkong, June 30 (Friday) (INS). Two British destroyers, the Daring and the Duchess, were reported in advices reaching Hongkong today to have been bottled up by the Japanese navy in the Chinese-held harbor of Foochow.

The blockade, dispatches said, was established when the Japanese placed booms and mine fields across the delta of the Min Kiang River which leads up to Foochow, the Fukien Province capital the Japanese said they intend to capture.

British naval authorities immediately protested and were said to have received from the Japanese the following reply:

"We cannot assume responsibility for any situation in which British vessels, blocked in the Min Kiang River, may be involved."

The Japanese have "advised" all foreign war and merchant ships to leave Foochow and Wenchow preparatory to inauguration of military drives against those cities.

Japanese Rule Coastline

Shanghai, June 29 (A.P.).—The Japanese blockaded Foochow and Wenchow today and thereby took control of the last major Chinese ports along more than 2,000 miles of coastline between the Great Wall and Canton.

A Japanese warned all foreign vessels to leave the ports because they would be closed by "dangerous objects" (mines) and "other obstacles." The warning had been rejected by the United States through Clarence E. Gauss, consul-general, who notified Japanese officials that Japan would be held responsible for any damage to American interests in the closing operations. The British and French took similar stands.

Most of the resident foreigners declined to leave Foochow.

Wang Back From Parley

Shanghai, June 29 (A.P.).—Wang Ching-wei, former premier of China, was reliably reported today to have returned to Shanghai after visits to Japan and Peiping for consultation on Japanese plans to make him president of a Japanese-directed "federal government of China."

Japanese leaders for some time have been seeking a Chinese of big reputation to head a government which would absorb the present puppet regimes at Peiping and Nanking, and local organs in other cities, and govern—under Japanese direction—all Chinese territory conquered by the Japanese army.

Damage Suit Up Today

famed vamp of the silent screen days, whose suit for damages of 1,000,000 francs, equivalent to $26,000, against a Paris weekly publication will be tried today in the French capital. An article appearing in the weekly asserted that she was an intimate of Chancellor Adolf Hitler's circle, but had been sent to a concentration camp as a result of intrigues with other members of Der Fuehrer's entourage. The actress declared the allegations unfounded

11 Arabs Slain In Palestine

Jerusalem, June 29 (A.P.).—Eleven Arabs were slain and five wounded, authorities said by unidentified Jews, in six incidents today in the neighborhood of the Jewish city of Tel Aviv. All traffic to and from Tel Aviv, Rehovoth and Petah Tikvah has been prohibited until 4 p. m. tomorrow.

Meanwhile, 750 Jews were held as illegal immigrants traveling in a Greek trawler which was stopped in territorial waters off Haifa.

'Old Stuff,' Nazis Say to Halifax

Berlin, June 29 (INS).—"Old stuff!"

This terse characterization was applied by a Nazi political spokesman late tonight to the speech by British Foreign Secretary Halifax.

Replying in blunt terms to the foreign secretary's denial of alleged "encirclement" efforts, the Nazi spokesman declared:

"Germany understands Britain's foreign policy well enough to know that encirclement exists."

Referring to the statement Britain does not want to see individual Germans suffer, the spokesman commented:

"German women and children have not forgotten the World War blockade."

Press Impressed

London (Friday), June 30 (U.P.).—The British press today, forsaking its usual conservatism, put scare headlines on Viscount Halifax's warning to Germany, which one newspaper called the gravest language from a minister since 1914.

Another said his speech contained the gravest words ever addressed to the German government.

Bulgarian Premier To Go to Berlin

Sofia, Bulgaria, June 29 (A.P.).—Premier George Kiosseivanoff will go to Berlin next Monday for talks with Reichsfuehrer Hitler and his aides, it was announced officially today.

Child Artists Show Flair For Exotic

Not Even Parents Can Stifle Imagery Of WPA Group Here

When youth and paint mix, the results are not always disastrous. The creative expressions this week of Washington school children in their first classes, sponsored by the District WPA Federal Art Project, reveal talent as well as a flair for the exotic.

Splashes of brilliant color over a southern sea formed the favorite subject of the class between 7 and 12, which met under the direction of Philip Bell. Figures of fighting men were the next most popular subject of the students, who made up their lack of technique by using a variety of colors.

The mothers of the youthful artists who hovered over their children's work appeared to be the greatest hazard to their artistic development. Despite their mothers' promptings, the young artists painted what they imagined, instead of what they saw.

Bell said that while the instructors desire the students to express themselves creatively, he hoped they would, in time, be able to express their own background in their efforts with paint.

Two age groups, one from 7 to 12, and the other from 12 to 18, are receiving free instructions in the classes, being held at 820 Independence avenue, and which will continue most of the summer.

Students were selected on the basis of work submitted. Two were taken from each of the elementary schools and two from each of the classes in high schools of the District. Each group gets instruction once a week. The younger artists meet on Tuesdays and the older group on Thursdays.

Under the direction of Nelson Rosenberg, the older group of students held their first class yesterday. Before entering into creative work, they are studying abstract design.

Temple School Graduates 81; Kayser Speaks

Secretarial Training College's Exercises at Kennedy-Warren Hotel

Eighty-one students last night received diplomas for completion of secretarial training at the Temple Secretarial School in commencement exercises held in the Kennedy-Warren Hotel. Corporation Counsel Seal presented the certificates.

Dean Elmer L. Kayser, of George Washington University, gave the commencement address, while the invocation was pronounced by the Rev. J. Herbert Garner, of the Sixth Presbyterian Church.

Award for highest scholastic standing in all subjects went to Dorothy Deber. Edith Johnson was honored for attaining the highest speed of the class in typewriting, and Mildred Brainin, for the highest speed in shorthand. Stenotypy awards went to Miss Johnson and Dorothy Cook, who reached speeds of 150 words a minute after 16 weeks of training.

Station PDS Presents Hawaiian Singer

Robert Gordon Jarrett, 1530 Twenty-second street northwest, as guest artist on this morning's PDS program over WMAL, will offer Hawaiian songs and ballads. Mr. Jarrett collects classical recordings as a hobby, and while attending the University of Hawaii worked in the Theater Guild.

"Station PDS Presents," broadcast by Lee Everett from the Peoples Drug Store Studios, Eleventh and G streets northwest, is presented each weekday morning from 7:30 to 8:30 by Peoples Drug Stores in co-operation with The Washington Post. Anyone over 18 years old may participate in the auditions at 7:30 p. m. Tuesdays at the N. B. C. studios. Performers are paid $5 for their appearance on this program.

Red Cap Wage Ruling Is Due After July 15

Brotherhood Seeks Regular Pay for Porters at Stations

Decision whether tips received at railroad terminals by Red Caps shall be regarded as wages will be made after July 15 by Wage-Hour Administrator Andrews, it was announced yesterday. Meanwhile, supplemental briefs will be filed with Gustave Peck, assistant chief of the hearings and exemptions section of the wage-and-hour division.

Through their counsel, George E. C. Hayes, and Leon Despres, the International Brotherhood of Red Caps are obtaining testimony from various workers in an effort to get the railroads and terminals to pay about $2,000,000 annually as wages, exclusive of tips.

The minimum wage under the fair labor standards act is 25 cents an hour, totaling $2 for an eight-hour day. This minimum is soon to be raised to 30 cents and later to 40 cents an hour. Railroads and terminals now estimate the porter's earnings at $2 a day, it was reported. Various terminals, it is said, collect this amount from the porters and pay it back to them as wages.

Testimony at hearings this week indicated that porters had been coerced by administrative subordinates into falsifying records of their daily income. Porters from the Washington Terminal stated that often they failed to make $2 a day, working eight hours. On such occasions, William Brown said, he had reported less and had been fired and reinstated twice for so doing, after he had served as a porter for 19 years. Since that time, he said, he had never reported less than $2 a day.

W. A. Compton Dies; Superintendent of Insurance Agents

William A. Compton, 60, of 3620 Sixteenth street northwest, died at his home yesterday. He was superintendent of agents for the Washington office of the People's Life Insurance Co.

Born in Washington, Mr. Compton became an agent of the Peoples' Life in 1908. In 1920 he was transferred to Baltimore, where he was manager of that district until 1934, when he returned to this city as superintendent of agents.

He leaves his wife, Blanche, and two brothers, Milton E. Compton and Harry Compton, of Washington. Services will be held at Hines' funeral home, Fourteenth and Howard streets, tomorrow at 1 p. m.

Roosevelt Powers On Money Restored

President's money powers was reached early yesterday at a White House leadership conference. With this backing, Somers went into the afternoon conference with an initial proposal to guarantee only a 64.64-cent price on silver. He said the 70-cent concession was made "on my own responsibility."

Almost coincident with the White House council of war on the money bill deadlock, Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau issued a stern warning on the fate of the dollar in any international currency war should the money powers lapse.

Morgenthau's Warning

The Treasury head said farmers and businessmen "had better start worrying seriously about the dollar" if Congress denies the necessary currency authority.

As an influx of foreign silver sped into the country to beat the deadline, the Treasury, for the third successive day, again lowered the price paid for foreign silver, this time to 38 cents, a half-cent cut.

Treasury experts are understood to have pointed out to House and Senate bill managers that the Senate's silver amendment was faultily drawn. They were told that it made no provision for "futures" purchase of foreign silver on which the Treasury is already committed, and did not touch the 50-cent tax levied on profits from Treasury purchases of all but newly-mined silver. Somers said he believed the tax would apply under the Senate silver amendment, in which case only 58 cents would be realized by the producer from domestic purchases instead of the 77.57 asked for.

White House Guard Missing In Full Regalia

White House Policeman Walter M. Haywood, 46, was reported to have disappeared mysteriously yesterday and a general lookout was broadcast.

According to Acting Capt. Herbert L. Marcey, of the White House force, Haywood failed to report to the Executive Mansion yesterday morning after his departure from the Coast Guard pistol range, Third and Canal streets southwest, where he had been practicing.

A World War veteran, Haywood was described as a model patrolman. He was in full uniform, wearing badge No. 28. He is 6 feet tall, weighs about 175, and has dark-brown eyes and mixed-gray hair.

According to Secret Service Chief Frank J. Wilson, who has detail of men searching for him, Haywood was shell-shocked in the war and may have lost his memory. He carried no money and is believed still in Washington.

SHOW ON SKATES: Helen Reynolds and her seven champion skating girls will headline the floor show on the Shoreham Terrace next week. This is one of the flashiest and finest acts of its type, recently packed the customers into Billy Rose's Casa Manana.

PSYCHIC LADY: Lady Anez, who can peer into the future as easily as looking through a window, will arrive in the Neptune Room tomorrow. Besides reading palms, Lady Anez also makes character analyses will tell you things about yourself that you've never suspected.

THE "DANCE OF LIFE" being done by Mlle. Giggie and Alvarado at the Lotus depicts life as being too, too grim. The little Giggie takes what looks like a frightful beating from Alvarado. We felt better about it when we saw him carefully helping with her wrap back stage. P. S. Comes a postal from Maestro Bill Strickland with the news that he's in New York dividing his time between the World's Fair and deep sea fishing.

NEW BRIDGE SERVICE: Miss Dorothy Saunders has just joined the O'Donnell's Farm organization and will specialize in arranging private bridge parties. A splendid idea, because O'Donnell's Farms is at its loveliest in the afternoon.

HAPPENSTANCES: Singer Eve Knight of th King Cole Room and Hour Glass, is going to remove that plaster cast from her foot today. Joe Forti, bass player in Wardman's Metronome Room, has just graduated from the Bliss Electrical School. Frank Flannigan, of the Rainbow Room, is back from Atlantic City where he spent most of his time listening to Hal Kemp's orchestra.

SMART TROCADEROS: The new Trocaderos at Mayfair all hail from Indianapolis. They joined up two years ago, have never missed a day between engagements. They're all under 20 years old.

PRETTY AS PICTURES: Dancer Doreane at Bambo Gardens in a white satin gown lined with azure blue. (And you see a lot of lining when Doreane swirls.) Rail Brotherhood Decision Upheld

Justice O'Donoghue yesterday upheld the National Medical Board in its certification of the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen as the collective bargaining agency for railway yardmen, including foremen, helpers and switchtenders.

The decision of the board was challenged by the Order of Railway Conductors of America, which first invoked service of the body in 1935 to settle the dispute between the two labor organizations.

J. K. Jouett Graduated

75 on Pullman Derailed Near Zoo

Philadelphia, June 29 (AP).—A Pennsylvania Railroad express train—the General—bound from Chicago to New York, was sideswiped by a switch engine today, injuring two railroad employes, causing several passengers to faint, and jolting others from their seats.

The collision occured as the train was passing the Philadelphia Zoological Gardens. The shifting engine was knocked on its side, the electric engine of the train, an unoccupied pullman, a baggage and smoking car, and a sleeper containing about 75 passengers were derailed.

2 to Go to Meeting

Emily Jameson and Julia Sikken, of this city, have made reservations at the Hotel Commodore, in New York, where they will attend the Third Congress of the National Lay-women's Retreat Movement from July 1 to 3.

Mosquitoes Keep Waking Up Baby?

Here's what to do. In the afternoon, after baby's nap, close nursery windows and door. Use a good sprayer and fill the room with a mist of Bee Brand Insect Spray. Let the room stay closed for 15 minutes. Keep baby out. When you go back, the only mosquitoes will be dead ones on the floor.

Don't confuse Bee Brand Spray with other insecticides. It has no nasty kerosene smell—only a clean cedar fragrance that soon disappears. And Bee Brand really kills flies, mosquitoes and other flying insects quick—yet it's entirely safe to use in the home. Don't waste money on cheap, weak, smelly stuff. Get Bee Brand and get rid of flies. Insist on the genuine, quick-killing Bee Brand Insect Spray—in the red and yellow can. It's sold with a guarantee of satisfaction or your money back. 17¢ ½-pt.; 29¢ pt.; 49¢ qt.

NOTE: You can also kill flies and mosquitoes, as well as roaches and ants, with Bee Brand Insect Powder. Read directions on can.

J.M.Hammond, Funeral Today; Photo Expert

Head of Phototechnical Laboratories Dies After Brief Illness

Funeral services for John Martin Hammond, 52, president of the Phototechnical Laboratories, Inc., who died Wednesday after a brief illness, will be held at 1 p. m., today at Gawler's funeral parlor. Burial will be in Baltimore.

Mr. Hammond, a native of Winchester, Va., was educated in Baltimore, graduating from the Baltimore City College and receiving his doctor's degree from Johns Hopkins University. He entered newspaper work in Baltimore, later joining the Army Air Service as an aerial photographer in the war.

In 1922 he organized the photographic laboratory, which manufactured special equipment he invented for color photography. He was author of three books on historic sites and homes in America.

Surviving are his wife, Mrs. Alvina Jacobsen Hammond, of 2756 Macomb street northwest; a daughter by a former marriage, Suzzanne, now in Munich, and his mother, sister and brother, all of Baltimore.

Rites Tomorrow For J. F. Marques, Metal Worker

Joseph F. Marques, 69, metal worker whose skill brought him commissions to make fancy utensils for the White House and special equipment for medical laboratories, will be buried in Fort Lincoln Cemetery tomorrow after high mass at 10:30 a. m. at St. Gabriel's Church. Meantime the body rests at Hines' funeral home. Mr. Marques died Wednesday at Sacred Heart Home, Hyattsville, Md.

A native of Funchal, Madiera, Mr. Marques came to this country as a boy. He took to the sea, working his way about the world several times. Later he joined the Navy. For the last 37 years he conducted his own metal-working business at 4536 Georgia avenue northwest. His home was at 4908 Ninth street northwest.

He once made a special baking dish to cook a large fish for President Taft, and on another occasion put a metal topping on a gift table for Mrs. Alice Roosevelt Longworth. Special metal casings for patients suffering from circulation deficiencies were made for a local physician and served as forerunners for the modern "glass boots."

He leaves his wife, Mrs. Sarah A. Marques; a daughter, Mrs. Catherine M. Reichelt, of Mount Rainier, Md.; two sons, Melvin J. Marques, of Chevy Chase, Md., and Edwin F. Marques, of Washington.

Rites Set Today For Wilson Ward, Navy Draftsman

The Montgomery Lodge of Masons will officiate at burial rites of Wilson S. Ward, 58, Washington Navy Yard draftsman who died Wednesday at his Rockville, Md., home, at the Monocacy Cemetery, Beallsville, Md., following services at 2:30 p. m. today at the W. Reuben Pumphrey funeral parlors in Rockville.

Mr. Ward, who was 58, had been a Navy Yard employe for 23 years. Born in New York, he moved to Rockville 30 years ago. Active in Masonic circles, he was past master of the Montgomery Lodge and past commander of the Montgomery Commandery of Knights Templar. He also served as grand master of the Royal and Select Masters of Maryland, and was a member of the Almas Temple in Washington.

He leaves his wife, Mrs. Sarah Williams Ward, and a sister, Mrs. Katherine Dorsey, of Calvert County, Md.

Harry Leon Wilson, Noted Author, Dies in Sleep

Creator of 'Flapper' Stricken at 72; Ill Several Years

By the Associated Press.

Monterey, Calif., June 29.—Harry Leon Wilson, 72, noted author, died here last night in his sleep. He had been ill several years.

His prolific pen over the years placed him in the topmost rank among fiction writers. Whimsical gayety was a dominant note in his writings, and he was credited with having originated the term "flapper." His best-known novel was "Ruggles of Red Gap."

He was in his early twenties when he sold his first article to the humorous weekly, Puck. The magazine called for more and thus launched him on his career.

Born in Oregon, Ill., May 1, 1867, the son of Samuel and Adeline Wilson, he attended public schools until he was 17, when he decided to get a job and "see the world." He went to Colorado, but soon drifted to California.

There he obtained work as a stenographer with the chief engineer of the Union Pacific Railroad. His duties kept him traveling continuously for four years and Wilson developed a love for the Far West.

Encouraged by Puck, his writing talents developed rapidly. The magazine hired him as associate editor in 1892, and he became editor in 1896. Wilson's first book, "Zig Zag Tales," was published the same year and a novel of New York life, "The Spenders," followed in 1902.

Mr. Wilson once described this decade of his life:

"I had to live ten years in New York. It was then a simple town, with few street lights north of Forty-second street. Now the place is pretty terrible to me, perhaps the ugliest city in the world. I decided that the only way to get out of New York was to write a successful novel. So I tried with "The Spenders" and when I got a substantial advance from my publishers, I quit my job and beat it for the high hills of Colorado."

Collaborated On Play

After writing "The Lions of the Lord" and "The Seekers," he returned to New York, where he met young Booth Tarkington, with whom he sailed for Capri, Italy. There they collaborated on a play, "The Man From Home." It was shown in 1907 and became a hit.

Mr. Wilson remained in Europe for seven years, returning in 1912 and establishing his home at Carmel Highlands, on Monterey Peninsula, Calif. The book, generally regarded as his best, is "The Boss of Little Arcady," published in 1905.

HARRY LEON WILSON

The author was married first in 1902 to Rose Cecil Latham, who, as Rose O'Neill, was the originator of the Kewpie Doll craze. They were divorced. His second marriage was to Helen Cooke in 1912. They had two children, Harry, jr., and Helen Wilson. After 15 years of married life, the second Mrs. Wilson also obtained a divorce, charging desertion.

Mrs. Martin, Novelist, Of Pennsylvania, Dies

New Canaan, Conn., June 29 (AP).—Mrs. Helen Reimensnyder Martin, 71, author noted for her depiction of Pennsylvania Dutch life, died today. Two of here best-known novels are "Tillie, a Mennonite Maid," and "Barnabetta."

Politics And Education

Not only the people of Louisiana but the country at large are shocked by the news that the president of Louisiana State University is a fugitive from justice, charged with embezzlement of university funds and other fraudulent practices.

It is some satisfaction, at least, to reflect that the case of the fleeing educator, Dr. James Monroe Smith, presents some very unusual features. Whatever their faults may be, the heads of our colleges and universities are as a rule honest, law-abiding citizens whom it is almost impossible to picture in the guise of criminals hiding out, with rewards posted for their capture.

Educators, particularly if they head State universities, may be inclined at times to truckle to the political powers-that-be in their States. Indeed, it may be necessary for them to mix politics with educational activities to protect their institutions from disastrous legislative assaults. In certain other respects, moreover, the presidents of large universities are legitimate targets of criticism.

Some of them lack the courage needed to uphold the tradition of academic freedom. Others may be ill-equipped to assume the dual duties of educational and administrative heads of institutions receiving and disbursing large sums of money. Their shortcomings, whatever they may be, are partly individual, partly the result of the defective organization of educational systems. They do not, however, suggest doubts about the personal honesty of the country's educational leaders.

Dr. Smith's case, in fact, is so exceptional as to call for a special explanation. That undoubtedly is to be found in the suppression of democratic government in Louisiana. The late Senator Huey Long had established himself as virtual dictator of that State some time before his death. As a result, his henchmen, of whom the university head was one, enjoyed freedom from embarrassing checks and hampering supervision.

The probe into the L. S. U. scandal, now under way, is only one of numerous inquiries launched simultaneously in Louisiana, among them an investigation of WPA irregularities. It is alleged that there is no connection between the university disclosures and the WPA charges of corruption. Nevertheless, the loose methods and the favoritism which have featured the Long regime and the political machine which took over the business of running the State after Senator Long's death are patently an encouragement to graft in the educational field as well as in relief work and all other public activities.

The case of the absconding university president is not so much an academic scandal, therefore, as an outgrowth of a political scandal of long standing in Louisiana. Its novel and spectacular features merely serve to emphasize the need of a thorough going political housecleaning in that State.

Needed Tax Reforms

Everything that could be said in favor of a reduction in the high surtaxes on large incomes has been said many times.

The stupidity of imposing surtaxes so burdensome as to discourage individual risk-taking while providing persons of large income with an avenue of escape from taxation has also been emphasized many times. But arguments in favor of lowering the surtaxes and ceasing to issue tax-exempt securities have not, heretofore, been forcibly presented by any important official connected with the Administration. Secretary Morgenthau has merely cautiously suggested that surtaxes may be so high as to discourage a limited number of individuals from taking normal business risks.

John W. Hanes, Undersecretary of the Treasury, has, however, appeared before the Ways and Means Committee with a recommendation for reduction of the surtaxes in the higher income brackets, and simultaneous prohibition of future issuance of tax-exempt securities. He points out that high surtaxes actually produce little revenue, while they discourage investment of capital in the kind of enterprises that further economic progress. Even if there were no tax exempt securities to offer harborage for surplus funds, the surtaxes would act as a serious deterrent to enterprise, says Mr. Hanes, buttressing his argument with well chosen hypothetical cases.

The Undersecretary of the Treasury is also inclined to believe that the psychological effect of the high surtaxes is bad, causing persons with comparatively small incomes to overrate the burdensomeness of their own tax load.

From the practical viewpoint Mr. Hanes' discussion of the effect of the removal of tax exemption upon the borrowing costs of State and local governments is of prime importance. For a most determined organized opposition to the proposed tax reforms comes from the representatives of State governments who fear that the taxation of their obligations would greatly increase interest charges.

The Treasury studies indicate that this fear is exaggerated. On this point there may be room for honest differences of opinion. It should, however, be recognized that every tax reform entails some adjustments, often difficult to make.

The direct and indubitable benefits of tax reforms that offer encouragement to risk taking and help to increase employment ought not to be forfeited merely because the change makes borrowing by the local governments somewhat more costly.

Eyes On Danzig

The relative breathing spell which Europe has enjoyed during the past two months appears to be nearing an end. Once again the storm clouds are rolling in across the horizon. Indeed, so cautious a statesman as Premier Daladier, a man not given to recklessness of utterance, told the Chamber of Deputies this week that the present international situation is the most critical in 20 years.

Undue optimism over the outlook for continued peace is thus clearly out of order. It would certainly be rash to assume that the crisis which appears in the offing will blow over as past crises have done, and with no greater immediate damage than a further shattering of Europe's nerves.

It is equally out of order, however, to take too gloomy a view of the present state of affairs in the Old World and to assume that the worst is bound to happen. The diplomatic, military and other measures which the governments of Great Britain, France and their allies have been taking during recent weeks and months have had a two-fold purpose. Primarily precautionary in their nature, they have also been intended as a warning to the axis powers that the day of uncontested aggressions is over.

The nations belonging to the Anglo-French bloc want peace desperately. But since they cannot rule out the possibility of a general war they are determined not to be caught napping. Yet they are still hopeful that their present show of strength and firmness will weight the scales on the side of peace by making it clear to Hitler and Mussolini that the odds in a war would definitely be against them.

The great unanswered question is whether the totalitarian dictators are convinced of this and, even if they are, whether they believe that they can bluff the democracies into another Munich. The fact that every one of his major coups—the military occupation of the Rhineland, the annexation of Austria, intervention in Spain, the destruction of Czecho-Slovakia—went uncontested, may persuade Hitler that the same tactics he so successfully applied in those cases may be successful with regard to Danzig and the Corridor as well.

Therein lies, perhaps, the greatest danger to peace in Europe today. But if the Fuehrer harbors such a belief it is not because British, French and Polish statesmen have failed to do everything in their power to disabuse his mind. Certainly President Moscicki of Poland did not mince words when, on the occasion of Poland's "day of the sea" he emphasized his nation's determination to make "even the greatest sacrifices so that Poland's outlet to the sea can be made to endure for all time."

In other words, an attack by Nazi Germany on the Corridor, an attempt to incorporate Danzig into the Third Reich, will meet with the armed resistance of the Polish republic. And Great Britain and France are pledged to support Poland in that resistance.

With the lines drawn as they are in Europe, there is little possibility of the localization of any dispute, such as that between Germany and Poland over Danzig. There is a very much greater possibility that the next attempted aggression will coincide with the outbreak of the dreaded general conflict. It is difficult to believe, therefore, that Hitler will take the risk unless he has definitely closed his eyes to all the warning signals from London and Paris. If he has not, there is a real likelihood that he will stop at the brink.

With the Danzig issue the United States has no direct concern. Nor has it any concern with the other issues making for Old World tensions. But for motives of the most obvious self-interest, the United States cannot remain indifferent to the possibility of war arising in Europe. Should such a catastrophe occur we may be able to stay out. Yet our safety would be immeasurably greater if Europe avoids war. And that is a fact which cannot be lost to sight by Congress in its consideration of neutrality legislation.

If the law that gets on the statute books is one which encourages the axis powers in the belief that the United States will place itself in a strait-jacket so far as the sale of arms is concerned, the moment war breaks out, the danger of rash action by those powers will be very much greater than if the hands of the United States remain untied. The responsibility for the outcome of the developing European crisis is thus ours as well as that of the nations nearer to the potential scene of conflict.

Katharsis

In the fearful fourth round of Wednesday night's business at the Yankee Stadium sports writers at the ringside were holding papers in front of them to save themselves from being spattered with the fighting blood of Tony Galento. At that moment Galento, blinded by his own gore, his brains shaken silly by punches that beat his skull with something like the rapidity and precision of a pneumatic tool, was clutching at the ropes, at the body of his opponent, at the knees of the referee. Squeamish voices from the ringside were shouting, "Stop it, stop it!"

When, at last, the referee waved Joe Louis away from the huge, tormented mass of flesh, Galento sagged to the canvas and the seconds dragged him to the corner. It was five minutes before the handlers, their faces pale and tense with apprehension, could fetch Galento out of his coma. It is not impossible that, had the timing of Mr. Donovan been less expert than it was, they might not have brought Mr. Galento around at all. Moreover, if we can trust the opinion of specialists, it is also possible that Joe Louis' own seconds might have had some trouble reviving him, had the blow with which Galento flooted him in the third round landed with the full shock of the 233¾ pounds behind it.

All this might seem to suggest that prize fighting is sometimes not far from being what the late W. O. McGeehan delighted to call it, "the manly art of modified murder," and the less modification the more satisfying to the customers. At any rate, the celebrities who rarely miss these affairs agreed afterward that it had been the most inspiring heavyweight bout in many a year.

They had many admiring words to say about Mr. Galento's "fighting heart," all in their way fully justified. That Mr. Galento's courage is as vast as his anatomy is no longer to be questioned, though there may be a few fastidious moralists who will insist that his physical courage in carrying the fight to Joe Louis was overshadowed by his moral courage in daring to train on a beer and spaghetti diet. Anyhow, Galento has been transformed overnight from a farcical into a tragi-heroic figure—almost in the classical style. He made his fate but didn't deserve it.

Thus it might be possible to make the same case for such fight exhibitions as the one Wednesday night that was made by an eminent authority for poetry. That is to say, these spectacles afford a release for passions, good and bad, which, if left to simmer in the soul, might ultimately burst forth in socially dangerous ways. Something might even be made of the coincidence that in communities where the interest in the professional prize ring runs highest lynchings are almost unknown.

Still, it is not impossible to hope that with the increasing refinement of public taste "the manly art of modified murder" may be modified to the point where the tragedy becomes purely symbolic and the suffering purely histrionic. Such an evolution seems already to have occurred, without appreciable damage to the gate receipts, in the once very rough and dangerous profession of wrestling.

Forging A Link

Encirclement is a term which at present connotes only the most warlike associations. But at the same time, some of the world's most peaceful and cooperative efforts have achieved another encirclement. With the spanning of the Atlantic by Pan American Airways' Clipper ships, it is now easier than ever to fly around the world on commercial lines. One of the Clipper's passengers in fact plans to do it in 16 days.

Great Britain, whose commercial airlines already cover 70,000 miles, linking three continents, is now also planning transatlantic and transpacific routes. In the midst of preparations for war, her air minister is concentrating harder than ever on the peacetime use of planes.

For the passengers who crossed the Atlantic on the recent trips, there was none of the hardships of pioneering involved. If any material risk had remained, the commercial flights would not yet have been inaugurated. Pioneering, in the usual sense of the word, had all been done in advance, and only the greatest comfort attended the first passengers.

This spectacular fact is due to the untold effort of the men who have made the flights possible. Some of this work has been individual, notably the first solo flights across the ocean. But for the most part the air routes have been made possible only by the cumulative and cooperative achievements of many men and many nations. To them goes the credit for an enormous accomplishment, one which in a world headed toward war, is a force for peace.

Safe Fourth

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I saw in The Post of June 26 an article in which the District Commissioners had said, "We want a happy and sane Fourth." The same sentiments were expressed by Police Chief Brown, as well as Fire Chief Porter, and yet hospitals and private physicians, police and firemen are preparing to take care of those persons who always insist each year upon breaking all police regulations by spending the "day" as well as several preceding and following, trying to see just how much noise and nerve-racking discomfort they can cause the neighborhood.

Now, why not this year see if something can't be done really to improve and eventually realize the peace, joy and meaning of a "safe and sane Fourth," as well as the proper observance of the law in the National Capital?

It appears that the law makes it illegal to possess explosive-type fireworks, which would make the officers seize and confiscate them before they are used in disturbing the public peace.

Who Should Be Deported?

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The open letter by Harlan Miller in your issue of June 9, addressed to Mr. Dies, is a reflection on the native born Americans whose first American ancestors came here as colonists. The "sons of 38,030,707 immigrants" came here during the last 100 years, most of them during this century, from countries without a background of real self-government. These immigrants should have been limited, as President Calvin Coolidge in his first annual message to Congress (December 6, 1923) well said, to our capacity to absorb them "into the ranks of good citizenship." Many, he also said, "ought not settle in America" because they "do not want to be partakers of the American spirit."

There are some native Americans who, as Mr. Miller suggests, ought to be exiled to Russia, but these do not include Martin Dies, Gen. Moseley, Capt. Campbell or philanthropic Gilbert, for whatever may be their zeal, their souls are not so dead that they have not said "This is my own, my native land." Congressmen Dies, Dempsey, Thomas and Healy have found unimpeachable evidence in their official investigation of un-American activities that there are foreign-born residents who would tear down this ancient and honorable house of ours, established by the brains and blood of our founding fathers and preserved and perpetuated by the blood and brains of our more immediate ancestors.

Not one word from Mr. Miller about those alien enemies in our country, uncovered by the Dies committee (Congressional Record May 5, 1939). Why the silence on his part?

You have printed far less factual arguments and attacks on Pegler and his splendid exposure of Mooney. Miller seems to have a complex against patriots like Bob Reynolds, Martin Dies, Gen. Moseley and other fearless modern Nathan Hales. I think he has this rap coming to him.

I note from the letter of Guy Irving Burch in the June 11 issue of The Post that last year 2,500,000 babies were born here and only 1,400,000 persons died. Clearly, even with birth control, we can get along without any more immigrants for the present.

Homestead Exemption

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: At a time when statesmen generally are competing in the invention of new taxes, it should be of general interest that one of them, the dean of the Congress, proposes to abolish permanently the most destructive of all taxes.

The allusion is to Senator Morris Sheppard, of Texas, who has introduced and is now working for submission of a joint resolution for an amendment to the Federal Constitution, as follows:

"Section 1. The homestead of any head of a family, male or female, or of any citizen having one or more persons dependent on him or her for support, shall be exempted from taxation up to $5,000 of its value when occupied by its owner or by his or her dependents as a homestead, excepting only the tax required to pay State, county, municipal and district bonded debt applicable to such homesteads and outstanding at the date of ratification of this article."

Addressing a Senate Judiciary subcommittee in behalf of his resolution, Senator Sheppard said:

"It will encourage many millions of families, now renters or tenants, in town and country, to begin buying and building permanent homesteads of their own. It will in this way create a vast, immediate market for idle land; for idle labor, both skilled and unskilled; for building materials of every kind; for household and farm furniture and equipment; for everything essential to home and farm use. It will give to American women and children, and to the aged, a security hitherto denied them, by making their homes as safe from loss for taxes as their schools and their churches.

"We already have exempted schools and churches from taxation. The next necessary and logical step would be an exemption for homesteads, thus aiding to preserve the three fundamentals of civilization—the school, the church, the home. By gradually substituting freehold homestead ownership for migratory tenancy, it will help to re-establish our country as a land of permanent property owners, immune against the doctrines of social despair which have lately led other great peoples to surrender their liberties into the hands of despotic rulers."

Submission and ratification of this amendment would give owners of State, county, municipal and district bonds an added guaranty of payment of interest and principal in full. The desire of homestead owners to gain entire tax exemption would hasten the redemption of such bonds. It would exercise a wholesome check on the further issuance of such bonds.

Hindu Scholar

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: It has been my pleasure and privilege to have lived in the U. S. A. for seven years, four years as a student at the State University of Iowa and Yale, and three as a lecturer on various subjects pertaining to India.

Throughout my tours, I noticed a yearning among the young people to get to know real India. And, in India, the people are anxious to know the real America, not the America projected on the screen.

Yet, no efforts are made to bring the two countries closer together. Individual and stray efforts such as mine last for a while.

I am wondering if you would interest yourself in this question, and through the columns of The Post continue to impress on the mind of the Washington public the necessity of having some Indian teachers in the universities located in Washington itself. There are so many institutions that could very easily find a place for a Hindu scholar, and he would not be a liability, I am sure. His presence would attract students. He would be of practical assistance to the various civic and educational and commercial organizations interested in India.

Fears Ruin

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: President Roosevelt does not like the idea of being told what to do by Congress; he scolds and says it is wrong to stop him from devaluing the dollar any further and that it is the work of Wall Street.

Mr. Roosevelt further says that before he got the power to devalue the currency, our people lost millions of dollars because of Wall Street speculators. Let me remind our President that at no time has the American public been a greater loser than at the present.

With all this Government spending and fooling with its currency, with all the stupid foreign policies—both trade and diplomatic, we can only hope for one thing—Inflation. It is not possible to refinance all the billions of dollars which have been put into the WPA and the PWA, not mentioning any of the other "alphabet soup programs," which drain the taxpayer and which actually have no productive value.

Mr. Roosevelt should resign before it is too late; there is yet time to save the "American structure," but if Mr. Roosevelt is allowed to continue the American people cannot hope for anything for themselves or for their children except ruin.

FREDERICK E. HORSTMANN.

"Go Ahead"

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: If we do not revise our present blind neutrality laws without delay, this neglect may very easily be the quiet, yet real, beginning of the fearful world war that no nation can escape.

Consider this: Today, aggressors are out-and-out realists. They calculate and plan. And in their calculations and plans they realize that the United States is a very real part of the world they live in—and hope, in the end, to rule. Many Americans may never have heard of our present indiscriminatory neutrality laws. But be sure the dictators have heard of them! For they have to do with the very things the dictators are so highly interested in, wars of conquest.

To the dictators these laws are unmistakable "go ahead" signal.—from the wealthiest and, potentially, most powerful of nations.

Shine, Mr. President?

"YASSA," the colored man said, "I reckon I done jus' 'bout everything." He told me some of the things he had done, I got interested. I listened to what he had to say.

He said that more than 10 years ago, when he was a little younger than he is now, he used to shine shoes. Not in a shoe-shine parlor "where you gotta do jus' what the man tells you" but out on the street "where you can git 'em while they goes by." He was working for himself then. Every morning, rain or shine, he got downtown early, he said, with his equipment carried on a strap over his shoulder, to get all the business he could from people on their way to work. Over a course of time he tried a number of corners but the corner he liked best was on Pennsylvania Avenue near the entrance that leads down the broad, shallow steps, around a flat, circular fountain in which a green waterplant grows, and into the Treasury of the United States. He settled finally on this corner, he said, because the people who passed it "looked like they knowed where they was goin'."

And it was here that the man who shined shoes became acquainted with the most important man in America.

ONE MORNING, the colored man said, a man came walking along the sidewalk toward the Treasury from the direction of the White House. He wasn't a tall man and as the colored man remembered afterward he had kind of reddish-brown hair that wasn't very thick. He wore dark clothes and took his time and was alone. He didn't pay any attention to the other people going along the sidewalk but seemed to be busy with his thoughts. He looked like one of the ones who "knowed where he was goin'."

"Shine, mister?" the colored man asked.

The man stopped, and looked down at his shoes. "Why, yes, I believe I will," he said.

He wore black shoes that took a good shine. Tackety-tack, tackety-tack, tack, tack. The colored man smiled broadly and rolled his eyes with pleasure at remembering the sound his shining rag had made on those black shoes. "Yes siree!" he said, "I tied a shine on them shoes. An' when I finished the man in them shoes looked down at 'm an' said, 'That there's a good shine. I'm goin' to look for you again. What's yo' name?'"

"Henry."

The man put 50 cents in Henry's hand and turning went down the steps and into the Treasury.

Henry was looking at the 50-cent piece in his hand when another customer stepped up. Quickly slipping the 50 cents into his pocket, Henry fell to work upon the shoes of his newest customer. The man asked him if he knew the name of the gentleman whose shoes he had just shined. Henry said that he did not.

"That was President Coolidge."

Henry could hardly believe it. He had shined the shoes of the President. And the President had said he was going to look for him again! Tackety-tack, tackety-tack, tack, tack.

"When you speaks to the President," Henry asked at last, "What does you call him?"

"Mr. President."

Henry said it over two or three times to himself. "Mr. President." He put the accent on the last syllable. Finally he asked the man whose shoes he was shining then if he thought it would be all right the next time the President came by to say, "Shine, Mr. President?" The man said he thought it would, and though Henry doesn't remember ever having seen this customer again he is grateful to him for having told him who his other customer was.

After that Henry saw the President often and nothing, he said, could have driven him from that corner. Sometimes the President walked by with another man or two and Henry regretted this because it meant he wouldn't stop. But when he did, Henry said, the President always had a word for him, always asked him how he was getting along.

"I'm tryin' to make it go," Henry said.

"And I'm going to help you."

The President gave Henry 50 cents every time he shined his shoes. And he smiled when Henry "played a tune" on his shining rag. Tackety-tack, tackety-tack, tack, tack! Henry really played it, and Henry likes to remember the day the President said:

"You know, Henry, I like to hear you play on that rag. Some day I'm going to have you over to the White House to shine all my shoes!"

Henry regrets that that day never came and is sure it was only because the President had so many things on his mind. Anyway, the business of shining shoes on the street isn't, Henry says, what it used to be with boys "who ain't never learned how to shine smearin' aroun'." Henry acknowledges that times change. Even Presidents come and go, though Henry observes that they don't appear to go out any more without bodyguards. Of them all, Henry remembers the only President he ever met, who always had a cheerful word, who called him by name and who was generous with his money.

Local Service

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I noticed in your paper a letter on the loyalty of the Filipino men who serve and have served in the United States Naval Service being in question.

I served during the late war in the United States Navy, in the Hospital Corps, and will say without reservation, by personal observation and contact, that they are just as loyal as any in the service. They were industrious, intelligent and studious.

Whoever started any other sort of talk was either misinformed or is deliberately trying to cast a shadow on the character of not only the men of the islands who served with us and who are now serving this country, but the whole people over there, and I for one don't like it, and I am sure the other men who served with them don't either. Let's forget it. We who served know better, and that is all that matters.

'State Refugees'

THE VERY FACT that Americans do not loyally regard themselves as citizens of the State in which they live, but rather as American citizens, has made for slackness in State government and in many cases has converted State citizenship into a tax-dodging device.

New York, which has a personal income tax law, is bounded in part by three States which have no such tax—New Jersey, Connecticut and Pennsylvania. To these three and to Florida many New Yorkers have fled to establish legal residence and escape all or part of the tax, which began modestly but has increased steadily and last year raised $123,472,000.

In the last decade the existence of the income tax and the lack of one in Connecticut have seriously impaired the salability of New York real estate in areas near the Connecticut line, and even higher Jersey, under Frank Hague, is endurable, if not attractive, to individuals who earn salaries in New York but, as nonresidents, need not schedule other income.

Income Tax Threat Is Powerful Weapon

RESIDENCE in these tax-free neighbor States may be entirely technical and even fictitious. It is advisable to lease a house or apartment and vote in the place of refuge, and some of the refugees make a point of holding motor licenses in Jersey, Connecticut or Pennsylvania for the sake of appearances. But in some brackets of the New York income tax the saving is sufficient to pay the expense of the hideout or in a few years even to cover the outright purchase of a country dwelling.

Under Mr. Hague the government of New Jersey is about as bad in certain respects as any that this country now has to offer in the way of honorable examples, but the threat of an income tax is a powerful bat in the dictator's hands, and he had only to wave it once during the recent campaign for pari-mutuel betting to subdue moral qualms in his numerous refugee population.

Now they will have gambling and the tracks will resort to bribery in the form of political contributions or patronage jobs for members of the machine to protect themselves from repeal of the law.

Indecent Competition For Divorce Business

OTHER STATES have entered into an indecent competition for the shyster law business and the board-and-room money that comes to a divorce colony, and although factory-made divorces appear to be legally good in all the States, some of them are morally indistinguishable from Russian divorce decrees. This is probably the lowest of all the abuses of State sovereignty.

Nevada, singularly free of morals and inhibitions and also of pretense, frankly boasts of her vices and advertises herself as an almost taxless State and a refuge for tax-weary citizens of other States, with a particular appeal to California. But Florida outdirtied Nevada once when a rich old villain who had brought material benefits to the State, resorting to peonage of Florida citizens in the process, bought a law which enabled him to divorce his afflicted wife and then had the law repealed. That, however, was just a novelty. It didn't affect Florida's relations with other States or vice versa, but it did show the depravity that can be expected of State governments because people regard them as unimportant units of government and pay them little respect and no loyalty.

Rapid Changes Cited In State Government

STATE GOVERNORS and governments elected at the rate of, say, 25 every two years, cannot be high-grade on the average. The politicians are almost all professional meal-ticket operators, and the governments exist as much to support the machines as to perform the motions of governing. There just isn't enough character and ability on the loose to provide 48 good Governors every two or four years, or even half that number.

So State citizenship, which may be changed as easily as a man may change wives and at much less expense, means nothing but pecuniary advantage at best, and certainly this is not a matter of patriotism or loyalty except in rare individuals, notably fox-hunting Virginians. They think they are something special, and indeed, in some ways they are.

A strong central government need not be a dictatorship. It could be, but, after all, the people have to repose authority and responsibility somewhere, and the State governments are not responsible now. They grow more irresponsible and expensive year by year.

Bar Urges Cities To Liberalize Rules on Meetings

Chicago, June 29 (AP).—Cities should permit "reasonable use" of public grounds for meetings and speeches on "political, social and economic questions," the American Bar Association's section on municipal law reported today.

It reasoned such a "duty" was imposed by recent court decisions restraining Mayor Frank Hague's administration from interfering with a C. I. O. assembly in Jersey City.

"Discussion is inevitable and much less dangerous when brought into the open than when suppressed," the section set forth.

The special committee on judicial salaries advocated better pay and adequate pensions for "many State judges" who are "underpaid" but declined to recommend a raise for Federal jurists on the grounds that Federal economy was necessary and they had the benefit of life tenure and "an excellent retirement plan."

D. C. Fair Trade Bill Under Fire

Consumers Fear Price Gouging, Senate Hearing Told

Perfume, mouth washes, typewriters and cement came in for a lively discussion yesterday at a Senate hearing on the District fair trade practices bill as consumer and retail trade groups tangled to no avail.

Senator Tydings (Democrat), of Maryland, chairman of a sub-committee, after listening to witnesses at morning and afternoon sessions, asked other witnesses to place their remarks in the records of the hearing.

When a spokesman for the American and Maryland Farm Bureaus protested, Senator Tydings said:

"You're not going to change my vote no matter how long you talk. If I live, I'm going to vote for this bill."

Spectators in Stitches

Senator Holman (Republican), of Oregon, kept spectators in stitches with homely comments based, as he explained, on a lifetime in the mercantile business.

In a free-for-all on the influence of handsome bottles on the price of perfume, Holman defended the merchant who charges more for the pretty bottle, with the comment:

"He's not gouging the public. They just walk in and ask for it."

At the afternoon session, O. M. Kile, Washington representative of Sears, Roebuck & Co., assailed the bill, which has passed the House. While explaining that its enactment might even turn business to Sears, Roebuck, Kile said he considered the move just the beginning of a string of price-fixing laws.

Tydings Warns of Monopolies

He said Sears, Roebuck would withdraw its opposition if a proviso were written in limiting profits to 6 per cent above cost.

Tydings warned that unless something is done, big manufacturing companies eventually will drive small independent retailers out of business and then hike prices to suit themselves. Some 5,000 druggists were thus put out of business in a year, he said.

Kile predicted that if the retail price-fixing law, which now operates in 45 States, is made generally applicable that the next step will be to limit the number of retail stores. He said a legislative proposal of this nature has been made recently in Massachusetts.

Fears for Consumer

In the morning session, Mrs. Eugene Callaghan read a tabular study of retail prices in Maryland and Virginia in support of her testimony that enactment of the fair trade practice bill will boost prices in Washington.

She predicted the law would foster monopolies to the detriment of the consuming public.

The Senate District Committee will act on the bill, which is opposed by President Roosevelt and the Federal Trade Commission, early next week.

Ickes Cracks Down On Robert Again

the Robert contract with the State called for three-fourths of 1 per cent of the architect's fee to be paid for promotion. Ickes said the provision violated a PWA rule against lobbying.

University Contract Cited

PWA officials, who said the "dormitory" situation was a clear case of "misrepresentation and deception," noted that the university contract also contained a clause against lobbying.

They added that the grant was secured after a meeting of the university building committee, called by Robert. At Athens, however, Chancellor Sanford said he doubted "if Mr. Robert had ever heard of that building or that project."

PWA officials were unconcerned with Sanford's refusal to refund, pointing out that there were five other "good" projects granted to the university and already under way, and that they could recover their funds simply by declining to pay $7,200 on another project.

Planned for Lease

Ickes wrote to the regents that they had represented the building as a college dormitory, but that the fraternity structure, "for the exclusive use, control, occupancy and operation by a private, self-determining membership organization, is not eligible for a grant. . . . I have no alternative except to rescind the allotment and cancel the contract."

University officials, however, said the building was one of 25 that the university planned to lease to various fraternities, sororities and student groups as self-liquidating projects, and that membership in the club was not to be a prerequisite for residence.

Robert could not be reached for comment yesterday.

Conferees Agree On Relief Bill

potographs of nude WPA female models contained in a catalogue prepared for WPA painters. They also took along the manuscript of a WPA play containing an allegedly incestuous episode.

The House group also objected for some time to the Senate's action in raising the total relief appropriation $73,300,000 above the lower chamber's figure of $1,735,000,000.

Points at Issue

Increases had been voted by the Senate for the Farm Security Administration, National Youth Administration, farm tenancy loans and the Public Health Service.

The House had voted for a three-man board to direct WPA; the Senate favored a single administrator.

The Senate knocked out a provision earmarking $125,000,000 of the appropriations for the PWA, though the House had voted for it.

Requirements for local contributions to relief were another point at issue.

Members indicated their refusal to disclose the nature of the agreement was due to fear that opponents of the changes would besiege Congress in force this morning.

They were particularly tight-lipped on whether the Federal theater and arts projects had been eliminated.

Bridge

Vote on $6,000,000 Lump Sum Sought

$1,000,000 flat or to 14 per cent of the general revenue fund appropriation in the 1940 supply bill.

Today Allen will try to persuade Senator Overton (Democrat), of Louisiana, to agree to the plan.

Earlier Senator Overton, who has been carrying the fight for a larger Federal contribution with the backing of the Senate, offered to drop his land ratio formula from the tax bill and drop the lump sum payment in the supply bill to approximately $6,500,000 or 16 per cent of the general revenue fund appropriation.

This offer was flatly rejected by Chairman Collins and the House conferees on the appropriations bill at a brief conference and later refused by the House managers on the revenue measure after a caucus.

Overton said this was his last word as he felt he could make no further concessions to the House. He arrived at the 16 per cent, he explained, by dividing the difference between the present 12 per cent which the Federal Government pays the District and the 20 per cent his formula would produce.

Meanwhile, it appeared that Collins and the House conferees on the supply bill hold the whip hand as it is questionable whether the action of the tax bill conferees would be binding in view of the 216-to-12 vote in the House against any increase in the lump sum above $5,000,000.

Ickes Fears Precedent

Secretary of Interior Ickes yesterday joined the opposition to the Overton fiscal formula in a letter addressed to Chairman King, of the Senate District Committee.

"If the plan were enacted into law," he said, "it would set a precedent upon which various States could rely in petitioning the Congress for contributions toward the expenses of their respective governments based on Federal ownership of land within their boundaries."

Such action would bring "new and heavy financial burdens" on the Federal Government, he added.

"The greater portion of land Federally owned in the District of Columbia is used by citizens of the District for recreation and general welfare purposes," he said. "The maintenance and development of this land is done by Federal funds, relieving the District of Columbia of this expense.

"While conceding that some payment toward District expenses is just, it is suggested that the amount be determined on some more relavant basis, such as the value of the municipal services performed by the District for the Federal Government . . . This would not only be more equitable but would avoid complicated issues raised by this bill in its present form."

Maj. Daniel J. Donovan, auditor, said that if an agreement is reached within a few days the measure can be made retroactive to July 1, as was done in 1931 when the supply bill was not enacted into law until several days after the end of the fiscal year.

Meanwhile, House conferees on the tax bill were split over the proposal of Chairman Randoph of the House District Committee that a $6,000,000 Federal payment be written into the revenue measure in lieu of the Overton plan.

House Votes Free Sail of Airplanes

port of the compromise to Republicans united in an attack on the Administration's bill.

One other important Republican amendment won approval. Submitted by Representative Barton, of New York, it authorized Congress as well as the President to proclaim existence of a state of foreign war, naming the belligerent nations. Representative Bloom, of New York, acting Foreign Affairs Committee chairman, "accepted" the proposal, and the House shouted it into the bill.

Outright Repeal Beaten

A Democratic attempt to wipe the slate clean of former neutrality statutes and return to international law was routed, 195 to 68, on a standing vote after members passed the entire afternoon in debating it.

Put forward by Representative Allen (Democrat), of Pennsylvania, who said it offered the best of security for peace by unfettering the hands of the President and Secretary of State, the amendment elicited only lukewarm support after party lines sharply split.

Charging it would undo five years of American striving toward peace, Representative Richards, of South Carolina, led Democrats, and Fish the Republicans, in a bitter attack on the plan. In vain, such Republicans as Wadsworth and Barton, of New York, and Eaton, of New Jersey, and such Democrats as Shanley, of Connecticut, and Starnes, of Alabama, appealed for unshackling of American foreign policy from the fixed course of statutory neutrality which they said led more certainly to war.

But the House quickly turned back repeated Republican efforts to return to the existing neutrality law.

Tinkham Substitute Loses

A complete substitute for the Administration bill offered by Representative Tinkham (Republican), of Massachusetts, continuing the present statute in force, was rejected, 71 to 53.

A similar effort by Representative Schiffler (Republican), of West Virginia, to reenact the "cash and carry" provisions of the old law which expired last spring was likewise repulsed, 84 to 43.

As the dinner hour passed, Republicans dramatized their resentment at efforts to limit debate on the Vorys amendment by a series of time-killing debate extension amendments that held up action for an hour. Representative Anderson (Republican), of Minnesota, sought to block further consideration by a motion to adjourn, but was howled down.

Amendment Stricken Out

Stricken from the bill on the Foreign Affairs Committee's own motion was an amendment earnestly sought by the Administration, but sacrificed in the fight to win arms-embargo repeal. It would have empowered the President to fix "combat zones" in war time and regulate American travel through them.

In another concession to the Republican opposition the House approved at behest of Democratic committeemen an amendment limiting to 90 days the President's power to permit extension of short-time commercial credits to belligerents.

Off The Record

"No wonder business is bad, who put up that display?"

Congress Dawdles

By Ernest K. Lindley

While Nation Seethes

IT'S HARD to decide who has been hurt most at the present session of Congress; the Republicans, the anti-New Deal Democrats, or Congress as a whole.

Presumably the Republican platform next year will call for "sound" money and "sound" Federal finances. But will anybody believe it?

During the present session, the Republicans have joined hands with the Democratic farm representatives (including a lot of the anti-New Deal "economy" Democrats) in boosting the agricultural appropriation about $300,000,000 above the President's request. They have shown by vote in the House that the G. O. P. is much more widely infected than the Democratic Party is with the Townsend plan—in comparison with which all other spending proposals are Lilliputian.

And, now, in the Senate they have voted for a chuck of legalized graft for the domestic producers of silver.

A GOP 'Handout' To Silver Producers

IT'S BECOMING extremely difficult for any Republican around Washington to keep a straight face when he talks about "sound" money and "sound" finance.

The Republican Senators who joined hands with the silver bloc apparently thought they were making a fair trade. The President's power to devalue the dollar by a few more cents, which they wanted to end, probably is less important than either the Republicans or he would have us think. The silver-hard money coup did not modify the Treasury's power to buy gold at whatever price it chooses or its power to use the stabilization fund. The President's power to alter the gold content of the dollar was merely a reserve weapon, perhaps chiefly useful in discouraging the British from depreciating the pound.

As this is written, it looks as if the President's power to devalue would be restored to the bill in conference and that the price of 77.57 an ounce for domestically produced silver would be retained. If so, the net result of the Republican effort will be a handout of about $7,500,000 to the silver producers.

A majority of the right-wing Democrats had enough principle to vote against the silver bonus. The Townsendites haven't captured them yet, either. Otherwise their showing at this session hasn't been any better than the Republicans. Most of them lined up for unbudgeted outlays for agriculture. They have sniped at the New Deal here and there but have put forward nothing that resembles a constructive co-ordinated program.

Congress Hampers Efficiency of WPA

THE RECORD of Congress as a whole during the last six months is enough to try the faith of the most zealous believer in our form of government.

After several years of conflict between TVA and the private utilities a deal was made which erred on the side of generosity to the Commonwealth & Southern Corporation. The deadline for the completion of the deal has passed, and the simple authorization needed from Congress is still hung up in conference. The deal may be saved yet. If it isn't, the result probably will be cut-throat warfare.

Three times within six months, Congress has hampered, if not obstructed, the attempt to improve the efficiency of WPA. First it cut the President's request for a deficiency appropriation. Then, tardily, it reconsidered and, in a second bill, gave him another $100,000,000. Finally, it let the appropriation for the next fiscal year ride up to the deadline, and in both houses the bill contained features which, apart from all questions of policy, introduced serious administrative difficulties.

Major Measures Drag to Deadline

THE EXTENSION of the gold reserve act, with the stabilization fund and the President's power to devalue, was still in a snarl a few hours before the old law expired. The agriculture bill barely slipped under the deadline. Neutrality legislation, the tax bill—almost everything else has dragged along drearily.

Nobody who has watched an American legislative body at work expects much in the way of orderliness and efficiency. At best the legislative process is crude and erratic. But the first six months of the present Congress must come close to the record in recent years for running around in circles. Whenever a member of the Senate or the House gets up to talk about efficiency in government, it would be appropriate to ask him about the conduct of his own branch.

Without any outside help, the Republicans, the right-wing Democrats and Congress itself have all made themselves a bit ludicrous in the last six months. By comparison, Mr. Roosevelt and his Administration, with all their shortcomings, are models of efficiency, consistency and unswerving devotion to principle.

Quintin Paredes Entertains at Dinner

Quintin Paredes, majority floor leader of the Philippine National Assembly, last night gave a dinner at the Dupont Circle Hotel in honor of Philippine Vice President Sergio Osmena and the Resident Commissioner, J. M. Elizalde.

Paredes is in Washington to assist Osmena and Elizalde in their work in connection with Philippine legislation pending in Congress.

Books And Things

By Isabel Patterson

Chateaubriand Again

A rich personality or a significant career is good for numerous biographies. The fact that Andre Maurois treated the same subject recently need not detract from the interest of "Chateaubriand," by Joan Evans (Macmillan, $4). On the contrary, the two books might be read consecutively with double pleasure. And if only Chateaubriand himself could know he is again in fashion, the sum of satisfaction would be enormously increased. He was his own favorite literary theme, and he not only wrote his autobiography and gave readings from it to an admiring circle but also listened happily while it was read to him.

NEVERTHELESS, he had reason. He was one of the very few persons possessed of romantic temperament and talent who had the right background and lived in precisely the right period to express himself fully. His life was a rounded esthetic experience.

Perhaps it was nothing else. He was an artist first, last and all the time. Whatever he did, he saw himself doing it, like an actor-manager, in the center of the stage. And everything was propitious in the setting. The only drawback was his personal appearance. Unluckily, he was rather an ugly little man, barely 5 feet 4 inches tall, with a disproportionately large head and heavy features. But he had unvarying success with women, so he may have persuaded himself at least he looked distinguished. Ten to one they told him so; they must have said something—and what else could they say? The fact remains that he won Juliette Recamier, the most beautiful woman of her time, whose virtue theretofore had been unimpeachable and who might have married a prince of a reigning house.

Chateaubriand's early environment was perfect for his purpose. He belonged to the old Breton nobility. His father, rich, miserly and morose, kept the family in a gloomy, authentic feudal castle by the sea in medieval style. Thus the boy had little knowledge of the actual world, but he knew the past; he was a living anachronism. His genius might have been stultified if he had been bred at court, and his necessary egotism would have been seriously damaged by the insignificance of his position there as a mere cadet of provincial nobility.

AS IT WAS, he grew up just in time to be presented at Versailles to Louis XVI, and to see Marie Antoinette once only, "on her way back from mass, escorted by a large and brilliant company, with her famous air of a goddess walking upon clouds. She looked happy." The young romantic had that picture to remember.

Incredible luck, or the presence of destiny, made him choose to visit America as his first venture. Of course, it was a literary impulse, drawn from Rousseau. And his American sojourn had aspects of absurdity. Miss Evans cites him as hunting badgers from a canoe; perhaps it can be done, but I don't know how. Certainly nobody but Chateaubriand would attempt it. But he met Washington; he saw the "noble savages" with his own eyes and got material for his first book. And he was out of France when the fury of the revolution was loosed in full force.

Yet he contrived to return and serve with the army of the princes and refugees for the royalist cause, receive a wound and make a perilous escape to England. Thus honor's due was paid.

Six years of exile and penury forced him to write. He happened to be the first effective literary talent the conservative side produced. He became the champion of tradition, order and religion. Rather an odd defender of the faith in some respects. He was an eloquent advocate of indissoluble marriage though he spent infinite ingenuity in avoiding his own wife and had an endless succession of love affairs. And his respect to authority had to accommodate itself to a passion for personal liberty and his demand for a free press. What he wanted was a constitutional monarchy, more or less on the English model—the very thing that Voltaire wanted. At a given time, most people do think alike and only quarrel about labels.

BUT CHATEAUBRIAND really knew his own mind and principles better than the majority of his contemporaries. He was jealous of Napoleon; he was never taken in by him. In all France, he was the one man who dared protest, by resigning from an official position, when Napoleon had the Duke of Enghien abducted and executed. Again, after the Bourbon retoration, Chateaubriand resigned from a cabinet office and declined a dukedom when Charles X, with Bourbon stupidity, tried to revert to absolutism. And a year later, he refused to take the oath of allegiance to Louis Philippe, the Orleans usurper, thus forfeiting pensions and place.

He was always broke, always in debt, generally in love with one woman and in hot water with another. He traveled on three continents for copy. During his first visit to London he starved in a garret; the next time he came it was as an Ambassador. He lived through the end of the old regime, the First Republic, the Empire and three restoration reigns and died in the Second Republic, with Paris in revolt, as usual. He had a wonderful time.

It's Moving Day For U. S. Agencies

way, in Government offices and it expects to take them in its stride.

No one, however, seems to know yet where the 550 employes of the streamlined White House staff will put their desks. Previous to reorganization, the staff numbered 40. This increase is due to the fact that the Bureau of the Budget, the National Resources Committee and the National Emergency Council, except its film and radio functions, will become a part of the executive office of the President.

A last-minute announcement from the Civil Service Commission said that the civil service act and the classification act of 1923 will remain in force for employes already under them, but these agencies will continue to function in new divisions. Where an agency is abolished and its duties are transferred to another agency, the employes will be subject to the laws under which the now-existing division operates.

Get Job Preference

According to the reorganization act, where personnel is reduced in any agency because of the current large-scale Government shift, the employes affected will be given appointment preference for a period of 12 months.

Status of positions in the Works Progress Administration, the National Youth Administration, the National Resources Committee, and the National Emergency Council will be determined by future appropriation acts. The groups just mentioned were to have been made subject to the civil service act by operation of an executive order dated June 24, 1938. The action was prevented at that time by a resolution providing that the order should not apply to positions, the compensation of which is paid from appropriations contained in the emergency relief appropriation act of 1938, or in the joint resolution of February 4, 1939.

Escape Promotion Ban

Comptroller General Fred H. Brown in a zero hour announcement yesterday said that the promotion ban of the reorganization act will not apply to agencies which will come under the Federal Loan Agency. This will open the road for pay raises for more than 20,000 on the staffs of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, Home Owners' Loan Corporation, Federal Home Loan Bank Board, Federal Housing Administration, and a few lesser financing groups. Apparently it will mean a pay impasse for 70,000 others who are being assigned to the new Federal Security Agency and Federal Works Agency.

The big shift, which gets under way one minute after 12 o'clock tonight, will affect about 18,000 employes in the District and 89,300 in the field of the three major divisions—Federal Works Agency, Federal Security Agency and Federal Loan Agency.

According to figures of President Roosevelt, the plan will mean a saving of approximately $20,000,000.

John M. Carmody, former head of Rural Electrification, will have more than 52,000 employes under his direction as boss of Federal works. They will come from the Bureau of Public Roads, Agriculture; United States Housing Authority, Interior; Federal Emergency Administration of Public Works (under the plan, the Public Works Administration), and the Works Progress Administration (to be known as the Works Projects Administration.

Jesse H. Jones, pilot of the Federal Loan Agency, will administer business which will be performed by 20,000 employes. They will be drawn principally from the RFC, Home Owners Loan Corporation and the Federal Housing Administration.

20,000 in FSA

The Federal Security Agency, which as yet has no head, will include more than 20,000. The largest groups will come from the Social Security Board, Public Health Service, United States Employment Service, Labor, and Office of Education, Interior.

A few "paper" changes will include the Bituminous Coal Commission, whose transfer to Interior is merely a gesture. The commission, which is being abolished, always has been located in the department, though it functioned independently. The same is true of Federal Prison Industries, Inc., which moves directly under the Justice Department, after functioning independently prior to the plan.

"I remember it all started when a man named Czolgosz shot the Archduke of the Polish Corridor, or something like that. And inside of a few years our boys were over there fighting in the dust bowl with the rest of 'em?"

"And now the headlines are all about new wars. Look at the headlines of the past week . . . 'Live Wire Barricade Put Around Halifax' . . . 'British Marines Bar Mrs. Harvey.' 'Hitler Demands Swatow.' . . . 'Manton Falls Again.'"

"They certainly give you the glooms. Why don't America avoid trouble and not insist that the Yankee Clipper land at Tientsin?"

"I'm afraid that new barrier plan will get us into trouble."

"What's it all about?"

"All I know is that America and England have signed an agreement not to barter after 6 p. m. unless Russia comes in, too, and that even then the whole thing must be self-liquidating or we settle only in silver."

"America has trouble enough at home in its own concessions without getting mixed up in the Indigo Blue situation anywhere else. What do you think of President Roosevelt's new spending plan?"

"He's just upholding the Open Door policy on the United States Treasury."

"Do you think it will help bring about recovery?"

"Some of his proposals may be all right, but I don't think he is correct in thinking that pari mutuels in New Jersey will balance the national budget."

"Do you think Mr. Roosevelt will run for a third term?"

"He might run only for one thing."

"What's that?"

"He knows the Republicans will put up Johnstown or Cravat."

Predestination

In the dim, primordial slime,
Many aeons, say, ago,
Our predetermined time
Was appointed here below,
And a dark and distant fate
Fixed the minute and the date
Of our demise.
Yet it is wise,
It seems to me,
To gargle rather frequently,
Wear our rubbers, be of cheer,
And see the dentist twice a year!

—Wilfred J. Funk.

If Park Commissioner Moses goes ahead with plans to remodel and modernize Coney Island the results will, of course, be amazing. Merry-go-rounds will presumably be placed in sunken gardens, with symphonic orchestras replacing the old-fashioned pipe organs. The chute-the-chutes will, no doubt, be of marble with chromium boats. Hoochy-coochy dancing will be done in rock gardens, and it will be necessary, before getting a hot dog, to reach for the frankfurter by a system of ramps, and the mustard by a bewilderingly beautiful stretch of underpasses.

Interest Lags In Arlington Primary Vote

Four Major Officers Are Unopposed; Fight Centers on County Board

Interest in politics in Arlington County, despite the fact the Democratic primary is but a month off, is practically nil.

The four major officers, County Treasurer Charles T. Jesse, Sheriff Howard B. Fields, Commissioner of Revenue Harry K. Green, and Commonwealth's Attorney Lawrence W. Douglas find themselves without opposition and their names will not appear upon the ballot. They have been declared the nominees of the party by the Democratic executive committee.

Charles T. Jesse was appointed February 26, 1932, by Circuit Court Judge Walter T. McCarthy to fill the unexpired term of E. Wade Ball.

In 1935 he offered himself for election and won over his Republican opponent, Frank G. Campbell, by a vote of 4,331 to 2,172. His election in November appears certain.

First Time Unopposed

Sheriff Howard B. Fields, a lifelong resident of Arlington County and who has served as sheriff for the last 16 years, previously was constable, deputy sheriff and deputy United States marshal, for the first time has gained the Democratic nomination without opposition.

In his announcement for re-election, Sheriff Fields said: "My only campaign promise is that if re-elected I shall continue to maintain an efficient force as in the past and give to the people of the county, who have so whole-heartedly supported me in the past, the best police protection possible."

Fields might have opposition in the general election, as well as the other three, but his election also appears certain.

Harry K. Green, elected commissioner of revenue for the first time in 1919, and who has gained the nomination of his party without opposition, will again find himself in the lead in November, as he did in 1935, it appears.

In 1935 he defeated his Republican opponent, Mrs. Marion Hagan, 5,257 to 1,307.

Lawrence W. Douglas, who is serving his second term, won the election in 1935 over his Republican opponent, Bryan Gordon, by 4,799 to 1,736.

Fight for County Board

While Republicans, and possibly Independents, may get busy after the Democratic primary, Douglas is considered a likely winner in November.

Where the real fight appears to be centered is for the five seats on the county board, there being 11 candidates.

Even at this time very little is being heard from the candidates themselves. There is but one candidate for whom a club has been formed—George M. Yeatman, who is seeking re-election.

The other fight will be between George P. Grove and Homer Randolph Thomas for nomination for county judge.

The nominee will have to defeat the incumbent, Judge B. M. Hedrick, Republican.

Judge Hedrick has not announced for re-election, but it is known that he will.

Other names that will not appear on the ballot will be William D. Medley for State Senate and Charles R. Fenwick, delegate to the General Assembly from Arlington County. Both are unopposed.

Youth Sought In Theft Thumbs Way Into Jail

Prince Georges County Policeman Earle J. Huber revealed yesterday how a 23-year-old Baltimore youth "thumbed" his way to jail.

Huber said he was returning from the Shriners' parade in Baltimore with his wife and baby daughter, Wednesday night, when the youth, Walter J. Hardesty, approached his car and asked for a ride to College Park.

"I recognized him as the fellow we wanted in connection with the larceny of a $250 diamond ring from a woman in Hyattsville," Huber said, "and so I got out and grabbed him."

The officer then called Baltimore police and placed the youth in their custody until yesterday when he returned him to the Hyattsville police station, where he was charged with larceny.

Fire Board Reaffirms Bargagni Appointment

Bethesda fire board last night reaffirmed its stand naming retired District Fire Lieut. A. R. Bargagni paid chief of the town's fire force.

The Volunteer Firemen, who have been fighting the stand and supporting instead their own chief, Hiram Musgrove, immediately called a meeting for 8 tonight in the Firehouse to discuss further action in opposition.

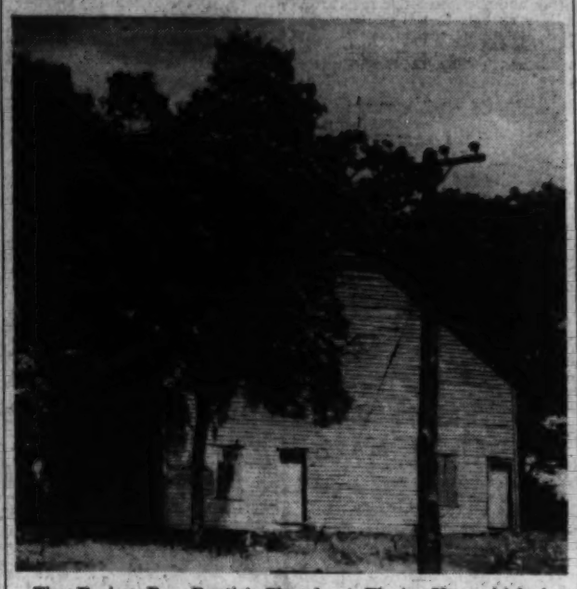
Frying-Pan Church May Mark 200th Year—or Be Abandoned



The Frying Pan Baptist Church at Floris, Va., which is 199 years old

Older Members Want One-Time Tobacco Barn Saved but Younger Ones Press For New Building; First Service in 1740

In another year, Old Frying Pan Baptist Church in Floris, Va., may be celebrating its 200th anniversary, or it may be an abandoned hall, left to the silence of old gravestones.

While older members of the congregation pleaded for repairs to the historic structure, a younger group has been urging a new building, to be erected in the churchyard nearby.

The church, which for the last 25 years, under the direction of Elder Horace Lefferst, of Leesburg, Va., stands beside the Herndon-Chantilly road in Fairfax County. It takes its name from the small creek that runs nearby—Frying Pan Run. Until as late as 1890, the thriving farming community of Floris, was known as Frying Pan, but Washington summer visitors at the local boardinghouse objected to the name.

The proprietor of the rooming house had a daughter named Flora. He also had a brother who was postmaster for the village. The brother succeeded in switching the postoffice name to Floris.

Copper prospectors employed by "King" Carter, one of the great landholders of colonial Virginia, gave the community its first name one morning more than 200 years ago when they surprised a small band of Indians cooking breakfast by the creek near the present church. The Indians fled, leaving their frying pan on the fire. Letters written in 1728 refer to the stream as Frying Pan Run.

First Service in 1740

Frying Pan Church, where the first services were held about 1740, originally served as a tobacco barn, according to many local historians. Its design and timbering follow the same lines as early tobacco barns, even to the small gallery across one side near the roof. The gallery is no longer in use, but the backless wooden benches remain. Slaves once were allowed to attend the services by climbing the steep narrow stairway to the gallery.

Straight back wooden pews on the lower floors are used today for services on the second Sunday of each month and the Saturday preceeding. For the older members of the church the simple building is intertwined with memories of marriages, revivals, baptisms and funerals. They want to brace the sagging roof, repaint the exterior and go on worshiping within the ancient walls.

Montgomery Police Judge, Aide Get Pay Cuts in New Setup

MONTGOMERY COUNTY BUREAU OF THE POST, 9213 Clark Ave., Silver Spring, Md. Telephone SHepherd 4200.

Salary of Harry M. Williams, clerk of the Montgomery County Police Court, was reduced $300 a year when the Montgomery County commissioners yesterday appointed him to be clerk to Trial Magistrate Donald A. DeLashmutt, at $1,500 a year.

The new post was made necessary by the act of the State Legislature which abolished the police court and established the trial magistrate system in an effort to reform the justice of the peace system of the State by substituting salaries instead of the fee system formerly used.

Judge DeLashmutt, who formerly was judge of the police court, last week suffered a cut in salary from $2,400 to $1,800 a year. The trial magistrates in the other two county courts also receive $1,800, and their clerks receive $1,500.

Administration spokesmen decried the report that Williams' reduction in salary was due to his being a supporter of County Commissioner John E. Oxley, whose additional compensation of $1,200 a year was removed Tuesday by abolishing the post of commissioner in charge of police. Williams was nominated by Oxley for the Police Court clerk post. Administration spokesmen said Williams' salary now is in line with similar salaries.

The commissioners appointed Mrs. Ada Howard, of Quince Orchard, to be telephone operator in the courthouse at a salary of $900 a year to replace Mrs. Martha Buzzard, who resigned.

Trespasser Fined

Rockville.—Brown Turner, of Redland, whose later commuted sentence of ten lashes for wife beating last year resulted in considerable furor, yesterday was back in the toils of the law. He was sentenced to pay a fine of $100, or, in default, to serve 60 days working on the county roads following his conviction on a charge of trespassing on the property of Hanson Cashell, county register of wills.

Turner told Trial Magistrate Donald A. DeLashmutt he couldn't work on the roads unless he had an easy job like carrying water. Judge DeLashmutt replied: "The jailer will take care of that."

Restaurant Looted

Rockville.—The Milo Restaurant, across the street from Montgomery County police headquarters at Rockville, Md., was robbed early yesterday. Burglars broke open a mechanical phonograph and the cigarette vending machine.

Benefit Bingo Party

Takoma Park.—The last of a series of bingo parties for the benefit of Our Lady of Sorrows Catholic Church will be held at 8:15 p. m. today in the Takoma Park Volunteer Fire Department hall, Carroll and Thean Allen avenues.

The affair is also being held to celebrate the first anniversary of the Rev. Richard Barron as the church's pastor and spiritual director. Jack Spalding is chairman.

Postoffice Dedication

Rockville.—The afternoon of July 22 was chosen definitely for dedication of Rockville's new $75,000 postoffice building, now nearing completion, at a meeting of the dedication committee, which is headed by Dr. George L. Edmonds, postmaster.

Izaak Waltons to Meet

Seneca.—Members of the Rockville Izaak Walton League Chapter who spend Saturday, the opening day of the season, on the upper Potomac River in quest of smallmouth black bass, will gather at the hotel at Seneca Saturday evening to swap yarns about their experiences. The annual get-together dinner of the chapter will be attended by approximately 40 members of the group and a number of others. Rodney P. Currier, of Washington, will be master of ceremonies.

Firemen Finish Training Course In Montgomery

Forty-three men last night received certificates for completion of the Montgomery County fire training course at the quarterly meeting of the County Association of Volunteer Firemen in Glen Echo Firehouse. Mayor H. T. McCuen of Glen Echo, made the awards.

Chief James W. Just, director of fire service extension, University of Maryland, outlined plans for the short course in fire fighting, to be given at the university in September. Chief Carl Young, president of the State Firemen's Association, urged members to attend the State convention at Ocean City, July 12-14.

J. F. Crosby to Address Laywomen's Retreat

John F. Crosby, of Chevy Chase, Md., Assistant Attorney General in the Wilson Administration, and widely known Catholic layman, will address the third annual National Laywomen's Retreat Movement Congress, which will meet at the Hotel Commodore, New York City, tomorrow through Monday, according to Miss Neil Merrigan, general chairman.

Crosby, who retired from politics at the close of the Wilson Administration, is now in private practice.

Road Work Contract Let In Arlington

Richmond Firm Wins Year's Jobs; Board Votes Law Against Loud Speakers

ARLINGTON COUNTY BUREAU OF THE POST, Clarendon, Va. Tel. OXford 0609.

The County Board, meeting yesterday at the courthouse, awarded a contract to the Southern Asphalt Co., of Richmond, for road work in Arlington County for the fiscal year beginning July 1. The accepted bid was $34,249.15, and provides for 45 miles of retreatment surface and 6 miles of original treatment. The specifications also provide for furnishing of all materials, labor and equipment.

In accordance with the State law which provides that the county treasurer's bond must be approximately 30 per cent of funds handled during the year, the board unanimously requested the circuit court judge to increase the bond of the county treasurer, Charles T. Jesse, from $400,000 to $750,000.

With the term of George A. Collier, member of the County Welfare board, expiring today, the board reappointed him for a term of three years.

County Manager Frank C. Hanrahan was instructed to confer with State highway officials on the question of the construction of a sidewalk along Washington boulevard, extending from Washington-Lee High School to East Falls Church, where the boulevard connects with Lee highway.

Loud Speakers Banned

The board unanimously adopted an ordinance prohibiting loud speakers or other mechanical devices which might disturb the county's peace, health or traffic safety.

Violators of the ordinance will be subject to not less than a $50 fine or a jail sentence not to exceed 30 days.

Total expenditures amounting to $35,433.78, of which $16,471.33 represented the semimonthly pay roll, were approved.

The board voted that all offices coming under the county manager should close tomorrow at 1 o'clock and remain closed until Wednesday morning.

Bicycle Control Plans

Arlington.—The Arlington County Safety Council, meeting last night at the courthouse, received a report on plans for bicycle control from W. A. Richardson, chairman of the school and child safety committee.

He reported that the committee was making plans to set up an educational program for all children who ride bicycles.

Thomas R. Mechem was appointed chairman of the home safety committee.

The council voted that a letter be written to the Town Council of Falls Church and the Board of Supervisors of Fairfax County urging prohibition of the sale and use of fireworks in 1940.

It was pointed out that Arlington County had an ordinance prohibiting the sale or the exploding of fireworks but, it is felt that little can be done when fireworks are on sale in the immediate vicinity.

It was voted that a letter to the State Highway Commission be written requesting that an allotment be made this fall which will enable the Jefferson Davis highway to be widened for four-lane traffic.

Party for Mrs. Magruder

Ashton Heights.—Mrs. William P. Blue will entertain at a garden party Sunday afternoon from 5 to 6 at her home, 3108 North Sixth street, for the Woman's Democratic Club, in honor of Mrs. Elizabeth B. Magruder, candidate for re-election to the County Board.

Mrs. Beulah Shipley Goss, president of the local club, will receive with the hostess, and assisting will be Miss Pauline Knee, Mrs. Alice M. Indermauer and Mrs. Harold Dinges.

An invitation by the club is extended to all residents of Lyon Park and Ashton Heights.

State Senator John W. Rust, of Fairfax; William D. Medley, Democratic nominee for the State Senate; Charles R. Fenwick, Democratic nominee for the General Assembly, and county officials and their wives are expected to attend.

Dance Cruise Planned

Arlington.—The plumbing and heating contractors of northern Virginia will hold a moonlight dance cruise down the Potomac River tonight.

Youth Center Indorsed

Arlington.—The Arlington Post, No. 139, American Legion, and its auxiliary, at their meetings this week unanimously went on record indorsing the program of the "Arlington County Youth Center" and especially the plans for presentation of the historical pageant, "The Birth of The Flag."

Young Republicans Urge Fairfax G. O. P. Be Unified

Committees Established to Arrange Program for Consolidating All Agencies of Party Within County

FAIRFAX BUREAU OF THE POST, P. O. BOX 345, Fairfax, Va. Phone Falls Church 2088-M.

The Young Republican Club of Fairfax County has begun a movement to unite county Republicans by forming a single Republican club to include all members of the party.

A number of committees, appointed by Wilmer O. Wood, of Falls Church, president of the Young Republican Club, are to meet and complete plans for the union.

Col. Richard R. Farr, of Fairfax, was named chairman of the committee on reorganization. Other members of the committee include Ramsey Bready, of Herndon; L. B. Burkholder, of Fairfax; Mrs. Helen Morris, of Forestville, and Henry Hawxhurst, of Oakton.

Nominating Committee

The nominating committee will be headed by Dr. F. M. Brooks, of Fairfax, chairman of the county Republican committee. Other members are H. M. Jones, A. L. Haight, Culver Gates and Mrs. Ethel Davis. L. B. Burkholder was named chairman of the resolutions committee, assisted by Mrs. R. R. Farr, Mrs. B. A. Wood, J. F. Clem and L. B. Morris.

Members of the publicity committee include Mrs. R. R. Farr, chairman; Mrs. J. F. Clem, Mrs. Edna M. Wood and L. B. Burkholder.

It was announced Clark W. Crossman, of Falls Church, will be a candidate for the Fairfax County board of supervisors from Falls Church Magisterial District in the November election.

Rotary Club Meeting

Herndon.—The new Rotary Club, of Herndon, will be presented with its charter tonight at a banquet in the auditorium of the high school. District Governor Frank Chase, of Suffolk, Va., and District Governor J. E. Mallonu will make the presentation. Dr. Ernest C. Shull, president of the Herndon Rotary, will accept the charter.

Robert D. Graham, of Fairfax, will have charge of the proagram. The banquet will be served by a committee from the P.-T. A., including Mrs. Frank Wickers, chairman; Mrs. J. H. Broome, Mrs. Paul Powell, Mrs. Fannie Connor and Miss Ethel Ramey.

Firemen's Carnival

The annual carnival of the volunteer fire department will open tomorrow night on the grounds adjoining the Elementary School and will continue each night through July 8.

M. A. Moreland has been named general chairman. He will be assisted by Ralph Hagman, Ford Bennett, Melvin Gheen, William Jones, John Jenkins, Linwood Gheen, Eugene Beavers, DeWitt Crickenberger, Leith Hummer, Noah L. Dove and Mrs. G. F. Winslow.

Supper Planned

Occoquan.—The Volunteer Fire Department will hold a chicken, ham and crab supper tomorrow, beginning at 5 p. m. in the engine hall, for the benefit of the fund for the purchase of the new fire engine recently ordered.

The new apparatus will be delivered about July 15. The old engine was badly damaged while answering an alarm recently.

Joint Picnic Program

Falls Church.—Piedmont Chapter, American War Mothers, and Stephen P. McGroarty Service Club, American Legion, will hold a joint program and picnic supper tonight at 6 at Elmhurst, the home of Mrs. Edward T. Fenwick. Mrs. N. N. Nock, past national Gold Star chairman, and Mrs. Wagner, past custodian of records, will be guests of honor.

4-H Club Festival

Vale.—The 4-H Club will hold an ice cream festival at the Community House tonight, beginning at 8.

Prince Georges Board to Name 4 Policemen

PRINCE GEORGES COUNTY BUREAU OF THE POST, 423 Rhoems Ave., Hyattsville, Md. Telephone GReenwood 3559.

Eighteen candidates for the Prince Georges County police force were interviewed yesterday at Upper Marlboro by the board of police commissioners and afterward given physical examinations.

Four will be appointed to the force, probably at the board's next meeting, July 11, Dr. Harry M. Bowen, president, said. At the same time the board also expects to promote two of the present force to corporals and name two additional desk clerks. Authority to increase the force was given by the recent State Legislature.

Woman Sues Officials

Brentwood.—The mayor and common council of this community were named defendants in a suit filed yesterday by Mrs. Anna M. Klein, 4124 Prospect avenue, who charges the town took a 6-foot strip from the front of her property "without due process of law" when the street was widened last summer.

The suit asks for $1,000 damages and for restoration of the property as it was prior to the alleged encroachment. Until recently, Mrs. Klein had a wire fence strung out into the street to mark what she contended were her property lines.

Extortion By Aide Laid To Quenstedt

Maryland Agency Answers Dismissed Warden's Efforts to Regain Position

By the Associated Press.

Baltimore, June 29.—Attempted extortion by a House of Correction prisoner, in the name of former Warden Walter E. Quenstedt, resulted in Quenstedt's dismissal, the State department of correction said today.

Reasons for the former Annapolis Mayor's ouster in January were set forth for the first time in a brief, filed by the State law department, answering Quenstedt's mandamus action seeking reinstatement.

Denying Quenstedt was arbitrarily fired, the board disclosed the Baltimore police commissioner and State's attorney had advised that the case be laid before the Anne Arundel County grand jury. Subsequently, the jury dismissed it.

Laxity Indicated

However, the board reply said, the mere fact two prisoners, William A. Parker, Quenstedt's chauffeur, and Thomas J. Linton, a candidate for the chauffeur's job when Parker was freed, were permitted to use the warden's automobile freely on trips to Baltimore late at night "demonstrated conclusively" Quenstedt was lax in his duties.

Testimony taken by police and the department of correction showed Parker had told Linton he would have to "put out" $150 to win the chauffeur's job. The State's reply asserted the attempted extortion "was being made in the name of and possibly with the knowledge and approval of" Quenstedt.

Linton's father, to whom the prisoners went for the money, testified Parker told him the $150 was to go to Quenstedt for "political purposes." Both Linton and Parker said they made several trips to Linton's Baltimore home at night in an effort to get the money.

Roaming Felons Seized

Linton's family communicated with Harold E. Donnell, State superintendent of prisons, and police arrested the prisoners at Linton's home on January 30, the date set by the two to collect.

Parker testified he understood the chauffeur's job always had been settled in that way, but that he himself had "risen from the ranks" and had paid out no money for the post.

'Tarzan Finds a Son' Is Best of the Series

Tarzan, Jr., Matches Senior's Athletic Prowess; Fight Pictures on View in Mt. Rainier, Md.; News Notes and Gossip of the Theater

THERE ARE ENOUGH varigated thrills and scenic beauty in "Tarzan Finds a Son," which opened yesterday on the screen at Loew's Palace Theater, to stamp it as easily the most engaging of the long series of pictures that have been made with the Edgar Rice Burroughs fictions as their basis.

This exotic subject would be interesting as a jungle travel feature, without its melodramatic story of the heir to rich English estates, rescued as a baby from an airplane crash by a particularly canny simian and reared to the age of 5 by Tarzan and his wife, Jane, before a plotting rescue party puts in its appearance. There is all manner of "animal stuff" in this remarkably realistic reflection of primitive life in the jungle. Laughing hyenas "gang up" on a couple of leopards, lions leap out from unexpected places, crocodiles, rhinoceri, hippopotami, strange birds, wildebeest, giraffes and a few strange beasts of the jungle new to these eyes contribute to the constant excitement and suspense of a film play that has the good judgment frequently to forget its primary plot and go in for a study of wild nature in a big way. The elephants are the real heroes of the story and the great groups of chattering monkeys the comedians.

BELL

But the story is worth paying some attention to, also, in that it brings to the screen the extraordinary athleticism of Master John Sheffield, the "son" of the title. This robust little fellow can do, and does, practically everything that Johnny Weissmuller, foremost of the Tarzans, does. He takes those tremendous swings from here 'way over to there on those hanging vines, runs like a deer, swims like a fish and manages to get along all right with the ferocious man-eaters of the jungle, too. There is an underwater swimming sequence participated in by the two Johnnies that provides some of the most beautiful scenes in the film. Of course they could not hold their breaths long enough to play that ocean-floor game of hide-and-seek, but what is a little camera trickery among friends.

The rescue party, comprised of Ian Hunter, Henry Stephenson, Frieda Inescourt and Henry Wilcoxon didn't fare too well in their nefarious enterprise—such as taking "Boy" back to England and mulcting him of his entire fortune under a plastic guardianship. Mrs. Tarzan, being English herself, you will recall, was all for surrendering the lad, until she learned almost too late of the scheme that was being perpetrated. When the party are escaping from the jungle, a tribe of savages takes them prisoner and plan fates for them all that are not pretty. But "Boy" is slipped through a back window of a hut and brings Tarzan and his elephant herd to demolish the native village and as many of the cannibals as necessary to make the fable come out as it should.

Cast Able But Secondary

There isn't much need of going into the work of the cast in a picture such as this. Johnny Weissmuller is, to all intents and purposes, the perfect Tarzan, especially since he is called upon to speak only in monosyllables, and Maureen O'Sullivan seems to a majority to be his proper mate. Something already has been said of Master Sheffield. Ian Hunter seems a little out of place as a "villain," willing to commit murder ad libitum in order to acquire all that money he thinks awaits him in England. Frieda Inescourt, as his wife, shares his thirst for blood and money. Henry Wilcoxon is the guide, not averse to "taking his cut," leaving only Henry Stephenson to personify the kindly traits that are supposed to characterize English gentlemen.

All of these people, of course, give competent performances, although the chief appeal of the picture lies not in its suggestion of civilization, but in its magnificently photographed reproduction of life in the wildest of wild countries. Some of the adventures pictured will more or less outrage adult credulity, but this is a minor matter in view of the rounded excellence of the picture as a whole. It is, of course, a field day for the youngsters and eminently suitable for them to see.

As was predicted here a day or two ago—or maybe it was three—the official films of the Louis-Galento championship bout, held in New York on Wednesday night, will be exhibited at Sidney Lust's Cameo Theater, in Mount Rainier, Md., beginning today. The ameo is situated at Thirty-fourth street and Rhode Island avenue northeast. The films, taken, as usual, from ringside, show the complete action of the scrap from first bell to last. The fisticuffing fillums have been booked for a full week.

Thanks to the prodigal hospitality of Carter Barron, eastern division manager of Loew's, Inc., more than one of the drama desks and a considerable number of other newspaper folk were his guests at the testimonial dinner to the Hon. Melvin C. Hazen, at the Mayflower Wednesday night, in honor of the Commissioner's completion of 50 years of public service in the District. It was such an occasion as must have brought—and obviously did—great warmth to the heart of one of the most lovable of Washington's public servants. After the speeches, seemingly the entire attendance trooped through Mr. Barron's suite on the second floor. I dare say some of them are there yet!

Self-Preservation Note

Maybe I had better go back and look for me!

JOHN SHEFFIELD,
the youthful athlete, who plays the second half of the title role in "Tarzan Finds a Son," which opened yesterday on the screen at Loew's Palace Theater. Johnny Weissmuller appears again as Tarzan and Maureen O'Sullivan, gently bred English girl, as his jungle wife. The supporting cast is one of distinction

The New Yorker

By Leonard Lyons

New York, June 29.

PENALTY: A few days ago Meyer Luckman, who was convicted in the notorious Druckman murder case, was brought from Sing Sing Prison to the office of District Attorney Dewey. There he was questioned about the bribes which he allegedly paid in Manhattan to save himself from prosecution. Luckman refused to divulge any information . . . "If you don't talk," he was threatened, "we'll make it hot for you" . . . "You'll make it hot for ME?" Luckman replied. "Go right ahead. Go ahead—and add 30 days to my life sentence."

SETTLEMENT: The controversy between the Federal officials at the World's Fair and Louis Slobodkin, the sculptor, over the destruction of his 15-foot prize-winning statue of Abe Lincoln was settled. . . . The original of that statue, 7 feet tall, will be displayed at the fair grounds. And then, if Mr. Slobodkin agrees, a 15-foot replica will be placed for permanent exhibit in a park at Washington, D. C.

PREPAREDNESS: Frank Lawton, the handsome British leading man, is working for the British Government in connection with its conscription program . . . As a result, Lawton has posed for newspaper photographs showing him carrying a rifle . . . Robert Morley gasped when he saw that photo . . . "Good gracious," confessed the man who portrayed Oscar Wilde, "if it's reached the stage where even Lawton is allowed to carry a gun, I can't go back to England."

GLAMOUR: When Dorothy Lamour, who flew to New York last week, stopped at the Dallas Airport en route the reporters descended upon her and questioned her about the glamour which, according to the many newspaper photos, has attracted so many young men to her side . . . Miss Lamour seemed to be impatient, because she had expected Herbie Kaye, her former husband—who was playing an engagement at a cafe near Dallas . . . Kaye finally telephoned his glamorous, former wife. "I won't come to the airport," he told her, "because I can't stand those clambakes with the reporters" . . . Miss Lamour didn't tell this to the newspaper men. Nor did she reveal that the phone call had come—collect.

ENTERPRISE: Arthur Shields of the Abbey Theater in Dublin returned to America this week. He had been signed, in Dublin, by Fox-Twentieth Century for a role in the movie adaptation of "Drums Along the Mohawk" . . . Shields read the book in Europe, asked the film officials to tell him what part he'd play in "Drums Along the Mohwak," but was told that they still don't know . . . "I can play the drums," the exasperated star finally declared "but I warn you—the closest an Irishman can come to playing an Indian is to say 'Ugheen.'"

CHATTER: John Kennedy of the Federal Theater's "Life and Death of an American" was signed yesterday for the new Sidney Howard play . . . Fred Snite, jr., the boy in the Iron Lung, will visit a restaurant tonight for the first time since his misfortune. He's dining at the Brazilian Pavilion at the World's Fair . . . The eighty civil service typists who complained to the city council that their jobs were being eliminated by the installation of photostat machines will get new jobs—in the welfare department . . . Max Reinhardt will conduct his theater school this fall on a sponsored coast-to-coast hookup . . . Harry Richman will auction off his estate in Beechhurst.

PRIDE: Dorothy Hall, the star, has been absent from the stage for two years because she hasn't found a play suitable for her talents . . . Miss Hall wrote a play a few months ago and will go to the Berkshires next month to witness its try-out performance . . . "Isn't there a role in it for you?" she was asked . . . "No," she lamented . . . "But why didn't you write a part for yourself?" . . . "Pride," Dorothy explained.

BEAUTY: Ham Fisher, the cartoonist, recently submitted to a nose operation to remove an annoying obstruction. That operation, he felt, also improved his appearance . . . A forthcoming issue of Look shows Fisher in a prize-fight pose—as part of the "If I Had the Chance" series . . . Yesterday that photo was shown to Tony Galento, who was asked: "Do you know who this is?" "Quit kiddin' me," Galento replied. "Sure I know" . . . Then he reached for a pen—and autographed the picture.

Louella O. Parsons

Close-Ups and Long-Shots Of the Motion Picture Scene

Hollywood, June 29 (INS).—I am told that Metro-Goldwynn Mayer is again discussing "The Yearling," Marjorie Kinnan Rawlings' charming best seller. Since they acquired the rights, Mickey Rooney has become too much grownup to play the boy, and maybe it's just as well. I could not see Mons. Rooney as the wistful, unprecocious child. He is too aggressive and too cocksure of himself. I'd like to see Gene Reynolds, the boy who played Mickey's rival in "Boys-town" and whom you will see in "They Shall Have Music," as the pitifully lonely backwoods boy.

LOUELLA PARSONS

Playwright Paul Osborn, whose "On Borrowed Time" is one of M.-G.-M.'s bright moments, has arrived here to adapt the book and has been at arrowheads with Producer Sidney Franklin discussing the story. Although Sidney is the better known of the Franklin brothers, he could take a few pointers from Chester, who gave us "Sequoia," which is reminiscent of the Rawlings novel.

On the Warner lot, every new movie is compared to "Angels With Dirty Faces." "Almost as big a money maker as 'Angels,'" or "it will top 'Angels,'" are expressions that are heard among directors, players, etc. Now "Two Sons," by John Fante, has been bought by Jack Warner, who declares it gives James Cagney and Pat O'Brien the same opportunities they had in "Angels With Dirty Faces." This time, they play two brothers whose tangled destinies bring one fame, while the other becomes a fugitive from justice. Michael Curtiz will direct them and the starting date depends upon when Pat completes his role of Father Duffy in "The Fighting 69th," and Cagney checks out of "The World Moves On."

Nice to find an author as free from professional jealousy as Louis Bromfield, who is writing the Brigham Young script at T. C. F. Shortly after Bromfield came to Hollywood he persuaded Darryl Zanuck to buy the screen rights to Vardis Fisher's "Children of God," saying it was one of the best novels he had ever read and that it would be of value to him in preparing his screen play on the founder of the Mormon Church. Fisher's novel deals with Mormonism and, out of the many submitted, won the annual Harper's prize. Bromfield was on the committee and argued strongly in favor of the book. Twentieth still hopes to borrow Tracy from Metro for the title role.

If "The Women" is half as good as Anita Loos says, it's colossal. She saw it at a studio preview and can talk of nothing else. George Cukor, says Anita, has done a fascinating and brilliant job of directing. It is no one person's picture, but everyone's and the cast is one in a million, with star actresses in character roles. Joan Crawford hasn't been so good in years. She is a meanie, it is true, but her comedy is priceless. Rosalind Russell is in a class by herself, and Norma Shearer needn't fear competition. Mary Boland is a riot and Marjorie Main so good, she may be nominated for Marie Dressler roles.

Snapshots of Hollywood collected at random: The bride of Louis Prima (of the magic trumpet) is looking toward Reno. She was formerly Alma Ross, a wealthy socialite; what a reunion at Marson's farm, with Marion Davies, Bebe Daniels, Constance and Norma Talmadge and Sally Eilers—five girls who were always such good friends before London took Bebe away from them; George Raft may go to Europe instead of Hot Springs on account of a British International offer; Joan Fontaine is true to type—her escort at the La Conga, Alex Steiner, resembles Conrad Nagel; Gloria Swanson reached town today for her daughter's wedding; saw Billie Dove at a cocktail party and she is prettier than ever, with gray hair that is so becoming with the pastel shades she affects; Gustave Schirmer, New York music publisher, dining at the Winfield Sheehans', in company with Frances Marion and Doris Kenyon; Mme. Jeritza (Mrs. Sheehan) furnished a real Hungarian dinner.

Dick Arlen won't tell how he lost 15 pounds; Bart Marshall flies here for Lee Russell's birthday July 3, which will be celebrated at Ronald Colman's Monte Cito ranch; Twenty-five years in the business is worthy of a luncheon, so Irving Cummings will be thus honored, with all the old-timers such as Rosemary Theby, Stuart Holmes, Ben Turpin, Buster Keaton, etc., as guests; Jim Tully conferring with John Kildane, book publisher, at Levy's Tavern. Does it mean a new novel; Edgar Bergen spotted buying dinner for Jane Baker, New York model, at the Brown Derby; Paul Draper is entertaining Heidi Vossler, New York dancer, between shows at the Cocoanut Grove. Talk is that she is the girl friend; J. J. Shubert, in a ringside seat at a spot with Mildred Knowles, his assistant, and Edgar Selwyn; Bob Cobb is subscribing to the Tatler, the London Times and other English periodicals for the edification of his British clientele.

That's all for today. See you tomorrow.

Freddie Blonde

Freddie Bartholomew is worried because a role for which he is being considered will require him to dye his hair blonde. What Freddie is interested in is how long it will take for his hair to grow out normalhued.

In Hollywood

With Hedda Hopper

Hollywood, Calif., June 29.—They tell us here musicals are dead. But musicals with a meaty story will never die, and the fellow who gets in on the first musical production of 1940 will get the gravy. That is, if he's lucky enough to grab some of our leading composers before they hike back to Broadway.

HOPPER

Sam Goldwyn will clean up on "They Must Have Music" with Heifetz and a bunch of amazing kids. They're proudly showing a preview card from an 8-year-old, who plays the piano, on which he wrote: "If this is classical music, I'm for it."

How can they say music is dead when Jeanette MacDonald and Nelson Eddy turn people away on their concert tours? If Metro would send Gorgeous Korjus on one, they'd have one of the greatest stars in the business. While they're searching for a Lillian Russell, why not Korjus?

Out of the 20 top-money pictures of all time, nine were musicals. And did you know that William Anthony MacGuire wrote four of them? The pictures are "Snow White," "Singing Fool," "The Great Ziegfeld," "Alexander's Ragtime Band," "Four Horsemen," "The Jazz Singer," "Ben Hur," "Sunny Side Up," "Big Parade," "Broadway Melody," "Birth of a Nation," "Cockeyed World," "Whoopee," "San Francisco," "Cavalcade," "The Freshman," "Ten Commandments," "Kid from Spain," "The Gold Rush," and "The Kid."

They were nearly all comedies, practically no propaganda in the lot. They didn't sing "Star-Spangled Banner" once.

This may surprise a lot of our $5,000 and $10,000-a-week stars. In Japan, where they're nerts for our movies, they put the director's name in lights on marquee at the theater instead of the star's. It's John Ford, Frank Lloyd, Clarence Brown, Bob Leonard, Capra, Van Dyke, etc. Also, over there, in their plays, the women being prettier than the males, play the male roles. And I hear they look pretty cute in tails and top hat, too.

When Jackie Cooper takes his Clam Bake Cats to the Paramount Theater in New York this fall, he'll organize his own cheering section from local high schools, placing it in the orchestra pit, where he can keep an eye on the boys!

When Mary Carlisle signed an autograph for a fan in front of the Derby the girl thanked her in such a rich Southern accent. Mary promptly invited her to lunch Mary plays a Southern belle in "Hawaiian Nights." Lunch costs less than importing a coach from Georgia.

Arnold Warns Alexandrians On Fireworks

Marvin Wilson Made Lions Club President, Succeeding Matter

The Washington Post Bureau.
207 Prince St., Alexandria, Va.
Phone Temple 3707
Delivery Service, Phone Alex. 217

Police Capt. John S. Arnold, in a statement, calls attention to the city ordinance prohibiting fireworks, passed by the city council two years ago, strictly enforced last year, which he said would be enforced this year.

The use and sale of fireworks within the city limits are forbidden. Police have been instructed to arrest any violator.

Lions Elect Wilson

Marvin L. Wilson was elected president of the Alexandria Lions Club at the annual meeting held Wednesday, succeeding Aubrey Matter.

Other officers elected were: Charles Jones, first vice president; Dr. Nathan G. Schuman, second vice president; Cary Blackwell, third vice president; Howard Richardson, secretary-treasurer; John Jacobson, tail-twister; Billy Smith, lion-tamer; Charles Pulman and G. Raymond Gaines, directors for two years.

The officers will be formally installed July 12, at a meeting in the George Mason Hotel. A State officer will conduct the installation.

Five Face Charges

Five men seized in a raid on an establishment in the 1000 block of King street on Wednesday afternoon will be arraigned in police court tomorrow morning on charges of operating a race horse game. Eight others will be witnesses. The five were released on bail, while the eight taken as witnesses were merely summoned to appear. Detective Russell Hawes directed the raid.

J. H. Chilcotte Dies

Joseph H. Chilcotte, 88, died yesterday morning at the home of his daughter, Mrs. William A. Gibson, 504 Braddock road, after a long illness.

Mr. Chilcotte was a carpenter. For many years he was engaged in contracting. He is survived by two daughters and four sons. Funeral arrangements have not been completed.

Mrs. Johnson Expires

Mrs. Emma M. Johnson, 50, wife of John A. Johnson, died yesterday at her home, 17 West Cedar street. Besides her husband, she is survived by two children, Miss Mabel Johnson, of Alexandria, and G. Walter Johnson, of Pottstown, Pa.; her mother, Mrs. Anna Peterson, and two sisters, Mrs. Florence Bianch, of Ambridge, Pa., and Mrs. Ruth Raugh, of Pottstown. The body was taken to the Demaine funeral home pending arrangements.

Church School Closes

The Annual Vacation Church School of the First Presbyterian Church, in session the past two weeks, will close this evening with a special program in the Westminster Building, starting at 8 o'clock. The Rev. Dr. William B. McIlwaine, pastor, will preside. Superintendents of the various departmetns will participate.

Doctors' Helpers To Attend Classes

Richmond, Va., June 29 (AP).—The State Department of Health will conduct institutes for doctors' helpers at three Virginia colleges during July and August. Mrs. Emily W. Bennett, R. N., of the department's bureau of maternal and child health, will be the director.

The institutes will be held at Hampton Institute, Hampton, July 10-14; University of Virginia, Charlottesville, July 24-28, and Virginia State College for Negroes, Petersburg, July 1 to August 4.

Squash May Be Served Stuffed, Stewed, as Soup, or as Dessert

Post Contest Reveals Many New Recipes

Man Submits Meal 'For King' Peasant Or Plutocrat

By Martha Ellyn.
The Post Food Editor

THE THREE SISTERS—squash, corn and beans—were the principal crops of the Indians, and so-called because they were grown together in the fields.

For homemakers alert for the best in food, the five winners in The Post's squash recipe contest are here presented.

Squash Innovation

Tender, sweet summer squash stuffed with creamed chicken is a dish you will want to feature for summer menus, if you have a feeling for beauty, a taste for flavor and an interest in food innovation. Mrs. John D. Swisher, 61 West Washington street, Hagerstown, Md., is the originator of Creamed Chicken in Patty Pan Squash which wins first prize of $3.00.

Mrs. Swisher

Creamed Chicken in Patty Pans

Steam 6 small squash until tender. Cut out the tops and scoop out the pulp. Invert and drain. Cut up pulp and cook until excess water exaporates. Melt 6 tablespoons butter in a double boiler, add 6 tablespoons flour and mix well. Add 1½ cups milk and ¾ cup chicken stock gradually and cook, stirring constantly until thickened. Add 2 cups diced cooked chicken, and the squash pulp, season with salt and pepper and heat thoroughly. Sprinkle the insides of the squash with salt and pepper and fill with the creamed chicken. Garnish with parsley Serves 6.

Arabic Style

Mrs. F. A. March, 15 West Irving street, Chevy Chase, Md., winner of the second prize of $2 brings an Eastern note into the contest. The crookneck squash are thought to be of Eastern Asiastic origin, and when Mrs. March lived in the Far East, she learned the natives' way of preparing the squash, which she designates as Squash Dolma.

Squash Dolma

Wash and scrape 6 long green squash. Hollow out carefully with an apple corer and paring knife, saving the pieces removed. Put either olive oil or vegetable oil in a large pan to the depth of at least one-half inch. Heat slowly, adding one clove garlic, 1 large onion and 2 tomatoes, cut in pieces. Add 1 cup of washed rice, some salt and pepper. Stir and remove from fire in about 10 minutes. When cool enough to handle, stuff hollowed squash with mixture. If any is left over, remove from pan in order to place squash in the bottom. Add any leftover mixture plus the pieces of squash which were hollowed out, after adding about 2 cups of hot water. Cover tightly and cook very slowly until the rice and squash are quite soft—about 2 hours. The natives cook it a much longer time. Try not to stir so that the filled squash are not broken. If mixture looks too dry as rice swells, add more hot water but do not make mixture too liquid.

Soup—But Different

Squash when made into a soup is both a distinctive and nutritious food. The delicious milk-rich soup is a splendid "something hot" for summertime menus. Mrs. Loretta Strader, 1038½ Murdock avenue, Parkersburg, W. Va., sent the following letter with the recipe she entered, which was given an award of $1.

"I am a former resident of Washington and still a subscriber to The Post. Collecting fine recipes is my hobby, and I have enlarged my collection with many of your contest recipes. I look forward to the Friday Post every week and seldom fail to learn a new idea for food preparation and serving. Please accept my best wishes for your continued success and let's have lots of new smart recipes this summer."

Holiday Soup

Melt 4 tablespoons butter in double boiler and blend in 4 tablespoons flour and a teaspoon salt and pepper. Gradually add 4 cups milk, stirring constantly until a smooth paste is formed, then dilute with remainder of the milk. Put 1 cup cooked squash and 1 tablespoon cooked chestnuts through a strainer. Combine with the first mixture. Add ½ teaspoon grated orange peel, ½ teaspoon onion juice and ¼ teaspoon ginger and cook slowly for 10 minutes. Dust with nutmeg, serve hot with a garnish of whipped cream, dusted with paprika. Serves 6.

Indian Contribution

The Indians were growing the squash when the Pilgrim fathers arrived on the Eastern Coast. No doubt the first Thanksgiving found squash pie on the holiday table also piled high with other good foods. Mrs. Grace F. Hiehle, 3422 South Dakota avenue northeast, has been a consistent contributor in The Post recipe contests. Her recipe for Squash Pie with Ginger Meringue captured a prize of $1.

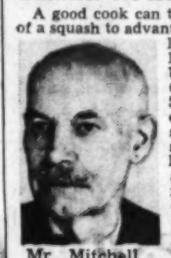
Mrs. Hiehle

Squash Pie-Ginger Meringue

Drain cooked squash thoroughly before measuring to the amount of 2 cups. Sift together ½ cup sugar, 1 teaspoon salt, ¾ teaspoon nutmeg, ½ teaspoon ginger, and add to squash. Add 3 beaten eggs, 1 cup milk and ½ cup cream. Pour into an unbaked pie shell. Bake for 15 minutes in hot oven at 400 degrees, then reduce heat to 350 degrees and bake 15 minutes longer. Remove from oven, spread with ginger meringue. Return to oven and allow to cook until meringue is a delicate brown. To make the meringue: Add ¼ cup sugar and a pinch of salt to 2 stiffly beaten egg whites and continue beating until meringue is stiff but moist and shiny. Fold in 1 tablespoon candied ginger, chopped very fine. Place in mounds on pie and brown as directed above.

Bachelor No-Heat Cooking

A good cook can twist the neck of a squash to advantage. Guy Elliott Mitchell, librarian, United States Geological Survey, twisted a summer squash into a stew and won himself laurels and a $1 award for a squash concoction. Mr. Mitchell wrote as follows: "Here's a complete dinner for king, peasant or plutocrat. After you're full, put remainder in mason jars, tight, and store in your refrigerator and you've got a supply, only to heat, for the balance of the week. To avoid all heat in your apartment, use a high-low small electric grill, lowest heat, in bath room—quietly shutting the door."



Mr. Mitchell

Squash Stew

"Cook 5 pounds of lean stew meat in roaster with a cup of water, slowest possible heat, till tender—about two hours. Drain off all liquor. When cold discard fat. Eject bones and pack meat with 1 pound each of summer squash, onions, cabbage and potatoes. Add 1 bunch each of carrots and beets, 1 can tomatoes and 1 can peas. Cook slowest possible heat, no water until carrots are tender, say 45 minutes. Job is done—Eat."

Tender, sweet summer squash with rhythm of line as pictured above is a dish that will make a hungry family sit up and take notice. You'll serve it when you see how easy it is to prepare, and after one taste you will know that it is a dish for a regular feature on summer menus

Lobster Delicious Summer Food; Reasonable, Too

By The Post Food Editor

THE LOBSTER is a most delicious and sophisticated food. It was one of the first sea foods which the Pilgrim fathers found and enjoyed when they came to New England. Until recently this shellfish has been almost out of reach of the average person's pocketbook, and so has found itself in the luxury food class. Now, because of enterprising fish merchants, the lobster may be obtained at a price that is comparable to the famous crab. Chicken lobster already cooked weighing around ½ pound, may be bought very reasonably.

Lobster a la Newburg

Melt 1 tablespoon butter in double boiler, add 1 cup cooked lobster meat, cut small, and cook 3 minutes, stirring constantly. Add ½ teaspoon salt, dash of paprika, ⅛ teaspoon nutmeg, 2 tablespoons sherry and cook for 1 minute. Mix 2 egg yolks and ½ cup cream. Remove from heat, add cream and eggs and beat until smooth. Return to fire and cook until mixture begins to thicken—about a minute.

The Blisses Hosts at Elaborate Dinner For Crown Prince Olav and Princess

Norse Royalty Captivates Capital Society At Reception Sandwiched Between White House Tea and Dumbarton Oaks Fete

By Hope Ridings Miller,
The Post Society Editor

A MODERN PRINCE CHARMING and his attractive wife swept Capital society off its feet yesterday afternoon at a major party of the June's-end season.

Looking for all the world as if they had stepped straight out of a story book, T. R. H. Crown Prince Olav and Crown Princess Martha shook hands with several hundred notables and captivated every one of them at a large reception at the Norwegian Legation.

Not the largest party arranged for the royal couple in Washington (the Norwegian Society's event on Wednesday ran away with that honor) nor the most important (probably the small tea yesterday afternoon at the White House chalked up that credit); nor even the most elaborate (the dinner last night at Dumbarton Oaks probably was that): the reception yesterday nevertheless was the one you'll hear more about than any other after the royal couple's visit has been folded into the past.

SANDWICHED IN between the tea at the White House earlier in the afternoon and the dinner given for Their Royal Highnesses by Mr. and Mrs. Robert Woods Bliss last night, the event had—everything, including two fascinating guests of honor, and a company gaily studded with more social lights than I have seen around these parts late in June.

The Norwegian Minister and Mme. Munthe de Morgenstierne and the royal couple greeted the long line of guests in the library. Her Royal Highness was gowned in orchid chiffon that swept the floor and was fashioned on draped lines with long sleeves. A broad-brimmed matching hat, long gloves and bag of the same shade were further accents for her lovely ensemble.

Mme. Munthe de Morgenstierne had chosen a full-skirted frock of white embroidery traced in a lacy effect on a black net background.

VERY MUCH in the American manner were greetings negotiated. Curtsies were few. Their Royal Highnesses extended their hands before there was time to bend a knee, and in several instances stopped the line long enough for more than "How do you do?" after guests were presented.

Huge vases of gladioli and low bowls of roses, larkspur and delphinium decorated the library, the long, handsomely furnished drawing room and the dining room, where most of the company gathered. A table laden with tea-time dainties was a special center of interest. An artist obviously had planned its adornment, which featured tall yellow candles in silver holders arranged around a mirrored centerpiece on which rested a tall silver epergne, flanked with bowls of deep yellow calla lilies, yellow roses, shasta daisies and purple larkspur.

The Norwegian Counselor and Mme. Galbe, mingling with the crowd, served as assistant hosts for the event, as did other members of the legation. As would be expected, a generous layer of diplomats were in the company; also, a sizable number of Capitol Hill solons, a scattering of other officials and, of course, scores of social notables.

DIPLOMATIC CORPS: To mention but a few present, there were Lady Lindsay, accompanied by Miss Irene Boyle; the Soviet Ambassador and Mme. Oumansky, the Ambassador of Turkey and Mme. Ertegun, who will leave next month for a visit to the West Coast; the German Charge d'Affaires and Frau Thomsen, Mme. Marc Peter, as usual one of the most popular persons present; the Minister of Denmark and Mme. Wadsted, the Minister of South Africa, Ralph William Closet the Minister of Finland, Hjalmar Johan Procope; the Minister of Greece, Demetrios Sicilianos, and the Charge d'Affaires of Sweden and Mme. Wennerberg, who beamed with pride each time someone mentioned that Her Royal Highness was born a Swedish princess.

OTHERS THERE: The former United States Minister to Sweden and Mrs Robert Woods Bliss, who feted the visitors at dinner last night . . . Mr. and Mrs. Patrick Hurley, up from Virginia especially for the event . . . Mrs. Millard Tydings, a stunning figure in a black chiffon frock worn with a small black hat swathed in a blue veil . . . Senator and Mrs. Arthur H. Vandenberg, the latter smartly turned out in flower chiffon and a picture hat . . . Admiral and Mrs. William D. Leahy, surrounded by friends . . . Senator Robert A. Taft, arriving alone toward the latter half of the party . . . the Assistant Secretary of State and Mrs. Adolf A. Berle, jr., accompanied by their house guest, Miss Mildred Dilling, noted harpist . . . Mrs. Laurence V. Benet, who with her husband will be off July 6 for New York, thence to Connecticut and points north for a vacation trip that will keep them away from Washington until September . . . Mrs. Bennett Champ Clark, Mrs. William E. Borah and Mrs. Walter F. George glimpsed in the dining room.

STILL OTHERS there included Senator Henrik Shipstead, Admiral and Mrs. Emory Land, Mr. and Mrs. Joshua Evans and their son, Philip; Ralph Snowden Hill, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Draper Mr. and Mrs. Donald Richberg, who will be off this week-end for their cottage at Rehoboth Beach; Mrs. George Messersmith, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Grant Meem, the latter of whom will leave tomorrow for Colorado; Miss Eleanor Meem, Misses Anne and Mary Randolph, Mr. and Mrs. Walter R. Tuckerman, Miss Dorothy Tirrell, Mr. and Mrs. Emil Hurja, Brig. Gen. and Mrs. Dion Williams, Miss Vera Bloom, Mrs. George Thorpe.

Also Mr. and Mrs. Fred Britten, Judge and Mrs. Harry W. Blair, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Burke, the Misses Patten, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Sims, Miss Florence Harris, Mrs. Luther A. Johnson, Mrs. Grace Dupree Ridings, of Sherman, Texas; Mrs. Samuel Wassell, Miss Mary Buford, Mrs. Nellie Tayloe Ross and scores of others.

A luncheon at the Norwegian Legation today for Their Royal Highnesses, members of their entourage and the Legation staff will round out the Capital calendar for the visitors. They will leave for Philadelphia this afternoon at 3 o'clock.

Say 'I Do' at Events of Wide Interest

Three weddings on yesterday's calendar were of interest both in the Capital and in other cities. Miss Bettina Belmont (right) became a bride at Middleburg, Va. Miss Margaret Anne Buck (below), daughter of Representative Frank H. Buck, was married to H. Gardner Putnam

Markley McCall.

Jay Te Winburn.

Mrs. Jesse Frank Nicholson (below) was Miss Audrey Rout before she walked down the aisle last night at one of the outstanding weddings of the season. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John C. Rout, Underwood & Underwood.

Sydney R. Prince Weds Mrs. Nichols

The wedding of Mrs. Tempie Harris Nichols, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Harris, and Sydney Rhodes Prince took place last night at the Church of the Covenant in Greensboro, N. C., in the presence of members of the two families. E. E. Norris was best man.

Immediately after the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Prince left for New York and will sail July 1 for England. On their return they will reside in Washington.

Bettina Belmont Becomes Bride of Newell J. Ward, Jr.

Social Leaders From Washington, New York, Philadelphia and Virginia Hunt Country Attend Fashionable Middleburg Ceremony

In the presence of social notables from Washington, New York, Philadelphia and the Virginia hunt country, Miss Bettina Belmont, daughter of Mrs. Arthur White, of Middleburg, and the late Raymond Belmont, was married yesterday afternoon at 4 o'clock to Newell J. Ward, jr., son of Mrs. Newell J. Ward, of Middleburg and Southampton, Long Island, and the late Mr. Ward.

The ceremony, one of the most artistically carried out as well as socially important of the season, took place at the Emmanuel Episcopal Church, in Middleburg. The rector, the Rev. D. Campbell Mayers, officiated. The color scheme was white and green, with phlox, gladioli, fern and baby's breath decorating the aisle and massed about the altar, where tall cathedral tapers burned.

Mr. White gave his stepdaughter in marriage. She wore a gown of white chiffon, made on classically simple lines, with long full sleeves. The skirt fell into a graceful train several yards long. Her long veil of shirred chiffon was attached to her dark hair by tiny ostrich tips, and she carried a large cluster of white willow plumes which fell in a shower to the hem of her dress.

Bridesmaids Are First Cousins

Her two bridesmaids and only attendants were her first cousins, the Misses Catherine and Helen Hulbert, of Middleburg. They were gowned in pale grey chiffon made with long full skirts and round necklines. They wore wreaths of ivy leaves in their hair and carried a shower of the leaves, which matched their green slippers in shade.

William Myrick, of New York, was best man. The ushers were Albert Borden, Frederick Beardsley and Francis DeBiexedon, of New York, and Stephen Clark, of Middleburg and Cooperstown, N. Y.

A large reception at Chilton, the home of Mr. and Mrs. White, followed the ceremony. The bride's mother wore a street-length frock of beige crepe with a hat of burnt straw. Mrs. Ward had chosen gray lace, ankle length, with which she wore a small hat to match. Mrs. Rosemary Ward, sister of the bridegroom, was in pale blue silk crepe, with a darker blue hat and gloves.

The house was decorated in the wedding colors of white and green, and the table in the dining room was centered with an enormous cake, two tiers, crowded with horns of plenty, from which spilled lilies of the valley.

Later, in a car hung with white ribbons, and showered with old shoes, rice and confetti from the several hundred guests, the couple left for their wedding trip. The bride chose as her going-away costume a blue and white silk print with a blue cloth coat lined with the print, and gray shoes, bag and gloves. She left for her honeymoon hatless. On their return, the couple will live in Middleburg.

Mrs. August Belmont Is Among Guests

Mrs. Ward is a granddaughter of the late August Belmont, famous financier. Among the wedding guests was her step-grandmother, Mrs. August Belmont, the former Eleanor Robson, noted as an actress before her retirement from the stage. Mrs. Belmont, who divides her time between New York and Syosset, Long Island, is stopping at the Shoreham while in Washington.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Talbott, of New York and Long Island, flew down for the wedding. Other guests were Mr. and Mrs. Dudley Roberts, jr., Mrs. Francis DeBiexedon and Mrs. John Holmes, all of New York; Mr. and Mrs. David Wilder, of Providence, whose marriage took place there on Tuesday, with Mrs. Ward serving as a bridesmaid and Mr. and Mrs. Matthias Hayes, who were married in New York last Saturday.

Among other guests at the wedding and the reception which followed were Mrs. John R. Williams, Mr. and Mrs. George Angus Garrett, Mrs. Henry Flood and her daughter, Miss Eleanor Flood, Mrs. Wallach Merriam, Mr. and Mrs. George Sloane and Lawrence Baker, jr.

The slender, pretty bride attended the Hill School in Middleburg and the fashionable Fermata School in Aiken, S. C. She was presented to society two seasons ago at a large ball at the North Wales Club in Warrenton. Her maternal grandparents were the later Mr. and Mrs. Harries Hulbert, of Cincinnati.

Mr. Ward attended the Stuyvesant School, Warrenton, and the University of Virginia.

Latin Concert Stars Alvarez

The jinx on the Pan-American concert seems to persist. For the second time this season—due to threatening weather—Dr. Leo S. Rowe, director of the Union, was forced to have the concert in the Hall of the Americas instead of the Aztec Gardens.

Last night, however, excellent music made up for the lack of atomsphere. A typical Washington audience, diplomats, Congressmen and service people, gathered to hear the brilliant Cuban tenor, Mario Alvarez. The United States Navy Band played under the leadership of Lieut. Charles Benter. Senor Alvarez is better known as Don Mario in this country, where he has appeared on the screen, stage and radio.

Among the members of the Diplomatic Corps sprinkled through the audience were the Ambassador of Ecuador and Senora de Alfaro, the Minister of El Salvador and Mme. Castro, the Minister of Greece, Demetrios Sicilianos, the Minister of Latvia and Mme. Bilmanis, the Minister of Ireland and Mrs. Brennan, the Minister of Honduras and Mme. Caceres, the Charge d'Affaires of Paraguay and Mme. Insfran and the Counselor of the Cuban Embassy and Mme. Baron.

Those from "the Hill" who accepted invitations were Senator Tom Connally, Senator and Mrs. Warren Austin, Senator Theodore F. Green, Senator and Mrs. Charles L. McNary, Senator and Mrs. James E. Murray, Representative and Mrs. Elbert D. Thomas, Mrs. Arthur Vandenberg, wife of the Senator, and Representative and Mrs. Robert Allen.

The Army and Navy were represented by Rear Admiral and Mrs. William Hemphill Bell and Rear Admiral and Mrs. H. G. Brown.

Norwegian Crown Princess Breaks Precedent, Charms D. C. Newspaperwomen at Luncheon

Royalty, which has been littering the United States with broken precedents in its series of triumphal tours here this spring and summer, yesterday broke another. The slender, aristocratic-looking Crown Princess Martha, of Norway, made the first speech of her life before a luncheon held in her honor by members of the Women's National Press Club and the Washington Newspaper Women's Club.

During lunch, Her Royal Highness confided to Miss Ruby Black, president of the Press Club, that she felt a bit nervous about it all, but when the moment came she read her brief typewritten address calmly and well. She said that through the writers present she was taking the opportunity to extend her greetings and those of her country to the women of the United States, and to convey her thanks for the hospitality and friendship offered her here, which, she said, in her opinion, was the most impressive thing about this country. She was struck, she continued, by the number of times she had heard the phrase, "If there's anything I can do for you, let me know," uttered to her and the Crown Prince during their trip of more than a month through the country. Her Royal Highness concluded by saying that her chief interests in life were her husband, family, and her duty to her country.

CROWNS USED to be the popular symbol of a queen or princess, but in these modern days their badge of rank would seem to be fox fur-trimming on their gowns. A border of gray fox edged the sleeves of the beautiful two-piece dress of the same shade worn yesterday at the luncheon by Crown Princess Martha. Made of silk, her frock was street-length and had a three-quarter jacket of the same material. With this she wore a large cartwheel hat of gray straw and a corsage of enormous purple orchids. Particularly impressive were the royal jewels. On the front of her hat was pinned a large ruby clip, surrounded by diamonds, and matching the clip which held her orchids and the large ruby and diamond ring which sparkled on one of the fingers of her left hand. The Princess has a beautiful rosy complexion and looks fit and genuinely interested in everything, even at the close of a very strenuous tour.

THERE WAS great excitement in the lobby of the Willard Hotel, where the luncheon was held, just before the arrival of Her Royal Highness. A long red carpet had been laid from the front door to the elevator and a colored boy was earnestly going over it at the last moment with a carpet sweeper. The Princess was taken by the club officers first to the powdering room, where one of the members thought a cocktail might be in order to refresh Her Royal Highness after her tour of the Capitol that morning. The Crown Princess contented herself with a sip or two.

Her express wish to meet some of the women writers of the Capital brought about yesterday's luncheon. Miss Black and Miss Katharine Brooks, president of the Newspaper Women's Clubs, took turns presiding. The long table at which the Crown Princess, other important guests, and officers sat was centered with red carnations and roses, blue delphinium and white lilies. At either end the flags of the United States and Norway fluttered in the breeze from the air-cooling system.

The Crown Princess, incidentally, is the niece of a reigning King (Gustav of Sweden); the daughter-in-law of a reigning monarch (Haakon of Norway), the wife of a future King (Crown Prince Olav), and the mother of a future King (Prince Harald). Her little son is only two years old, but, his proud mother confided, has already tried out his first pair of skis.

MRS. CORDELL HULL, wife of the Secretary of State, was present yesterday, wearing a frock of soft green with a white hat, moderately brimmed, trimmed with a bow and veil to match her dress. Other distinguished guests were Mme. Munthe de Morgenstierne, charming wife of the Norwegian Minister, who wore a black and white print, a smart white sailor pierced with a black quill, and purple orchids; Mme. Galbe, wife of the Legation Counselor; Mme. Oestgaard, lady in waiting to Her Royal Highness, and Mme. Ditlef Knudsen, who was married last Saturday to a member of the legation staff. She and her husband will sail next week with the royal party to Norway, and from there will go to Turkey, their new post.

AS THE Crown Princess left the luncheon room yesterday she turned at the doorway and gave a friendly wave to the newspaper reporters. Even the most hard-boiled among them had to admit she had charmed all with her sincerity and graciousness.

Capital Society Attends Nicholson-Rout Nuptials

Fashionable Wedding of Prominent Young Couple at St. Alban's Church Witnessed By Many Friends and Out-of-Town Guests.

Before a large gathering of members of Capital society and out-of-town friends, Miss Audrey Rout, daughter of Mr and Mrs. John C. Rout, of 3927 Massachusetts avenue, was married at 8 o'clock last evening to Jesse Frank Nicholson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jesse W. Nicholson, of 103 Newlands street, Chevy Chase, Md. The ceremony took place at St. Alban's Church, the Rev. Charles T. Warner, officiating.

White gladioli and palms decorated the candle-lit altar. The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a Molyneux gown of frosty white net made with short puffed sleeves trimmed with orange blossoms and a wide corselet of rosepoint lace fitted low in back and falling into a long, full train.

Her full veil was held in place by a headdress of orange blossoms and tiny white bows, and she carried an old-fashioned bouquet of Belmont gardenias and lilies of the valley.

Mrs. Frank A. Yates was matron of honor, and the bridesmaids were Mrs. Robert R. Simpson and the Misses Lucille Wilkinson and Dorothy Nicholson. Their frocks were Chanel creations of imported embossed organza in shades of chartreuse, yellow and blue, made with double-tiered skirts and trimmed with velvet ribbons falling to the hemline. They wore sprays of large African daisies in their hair and carried nosegays of pink roses and delphinium.

Mr. Nicholson, who dispensed with a best man, had as his ushers Donald DeVeau, Frank A. Yates and Matthew Trimble Sawtelle.

A reception at the Congressional Country Club followed. Among the guests were Mayor and Mrs. Howard W. Jackson, of Baltimore; Representative and Mrs. James A. Shenley, Representative and Mrs. Lansdale Sasscer, Mrs. Edward Gann, Mr. and Mrs. John H. Lippincott, jr., of Atlantic City; Mr. and Mrs. Morgan Roos Wallis, Philadelphia, and Mr. and Mrs. Louis Carrico, of Baltimore.

Immediately after the reception the couple left for an extended honeymoon to the National Parks and the Pacific Coast.

Entertain Visitors

Interstate Commerce Commissioner and Mrs. Claude R. Porter have with them in their apartment at the Wardman Park their daughter, Mrs. Donald Jay Collins, and their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. George Richard Hise, of Des Moines, Iowa, and their two young sons, Richard and Billie. Mr. Hise will return this week, but Mrs. Hise and her sons will make an extended visit.

Notes of Society

Official and Residential

The Chief Justice and Mrs. Charles Evans Hughes are at the Plaza Hotel in New York before going North to spend the summer. They have not yet decided on a definite destination, but will probably motor about New England as they are fond of doing during vacations.

Gen. and Mrs. Frederick W. Boschen have with them at the Wardman Park Mr. and Mrs. John L. Heins, of Garden City, Long Island.

Mr. and Mrs. C. Mathews Dick will entertain guests over the holiday week-end at their home in Newport.

Mrs. Otto Torney Simon, of 1016 Sixteenth street, is spending the summer at McGill University in Montreal, Canada.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Ogden Smith, of Indianapolis, will arrive today to spend the holiday with the latter's parents, Mr. and Mrs. N. B. Dial.

Dr. and Mrs. P. S. Constantinople announce the birth of a girl on June 27, at Columbia Hospital.

Mary Haworth's Mail

Foiled and Humiliated in Endeavor to Win Approval Of Husband's Snobbish Family, Wife Asks Advice

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: When I was married several years ago I was determined to make my in-laws love me . . . I have a mother-in-law, who lives near her married son and daughter, in another city. They are fine people with a family tree and all that sort of thing. My family is of the middle class, poor but honest, with a few noteworthy ancestors. I am of an affectionate disposition, although not demonstrative.

I have faithfully visited my in-laws (not too long at a time) taking gifts every time. I have considered my mother-in-law before my own mother on special occasions such as birthdays, Mother's Day, Christmas, Easter, etc. In times of trouble I have written letters of sympathy. In times of illness I have been considerate and helpful. We have been thoughtful of my mother-in-law in taking her on trips and I have neglected my own mother in visiting her at our every opportunity, which is about once a month.

When we spend the night, we pay for accommodations, although she is very well off financially and buys most everything she wants. I encourage my husband to give her money on our other visits as she is always pleading poverty. (I might add that my husband and I both work, and make enough for necessities). I have given my clothes to my sister-in-law because she wanted them; also have lent her garments, which I have had to ask for in order to get them back, and then got about half.

When they come to see us, about once a year, they expect us to take them out to lunch or to dinner and the theater and to buy them gifts or flowers which they select. When we are visiting them I must do the same. They even ask for things. My sister-in-law and brother-in-law live within a few blocks of their mother's home, yet when we are visiting there they seldom call, unless invited for dinner. If they are going to a party or anywhere, they never ask us to go along, although we are all about the same age . . .

When I am ill they never visit me, although they hurry to visit others, even distant kin, in the same city. Once, when I was critically ill, they made all sorts of excuses and went to a theater in the same city without coming by to see me . . . My mother-in-law made all manner of fun of my wedding ring; said it was just a fad and the ugliest thing she ever had seen. It is white gold, very pretty, and I considered my husband's purse when we bought it. (The others paid an enormous price for theirs.) . . .

When we visit them and I try to join in the conversation, they immediately cut in and ignore me, as if anything I might say would be unimportant. I just have to sit and swallow my pride. My husband gets angry if I mention such things and says they have no meaning . . . It would all be immaterial to me if I could just fade out for awhile and let them make a few advances for a change, for I would never let anyone else treat me the way they do.

I have been trying to control myself for my husband's sake, but my patience is just about gone, and I am afraid I am going to say something ugly if I see them again. So I shall stay away until I hear from you. If my husband or I should have a heart-to-heart talk with them I know they would say that they never intended any harm, that they love me, etc. But I don't want that kind of love. Others love me, especially elderly people and children, and I make friends easily. Please tell me what to do. HARASSED.

Unworthy Enterprise

DEAR HARASSED: Your conscious determination, dating from the very beginning of marriage, to "make your in-laws love you," suggests that you tacitly assumed that your merit was open to question, from their viewpoint, and that a real selling job had to be done; while the exaggerated servility of your subsequent efforts to anticipate their pleasure and obviate any possible disapproval marks you as a person lacking in proper self-esteem.

Obviously, your husband's family is snobbish and clannish to an odious degree. This being so, the tactics you have employed with the idea of wheedling that family's favor have been extraordinarily ill-advised—the worst possible strategy you could have chosen for dealing with persons of their type. The seasoned worldling knows that there is only one really self-protective — if rather harsh—rule for dealing effectively with the snob.

This rule decrees—"Snub the snob." Gentler nuances of behavior are lost on him. This gesture alone suggests to him that you are, or consider yourself to be, his equal and perhaps his superior. Bland rudeness he regards as the hallmark of sophisticated behavior, and sophistication is his god. Shallow social automaton that he is, he knows no standard of values save that of superficial appearances. The meek in spirit and those who wear their hearts on their sleeves he regards as fools, to be used and despised—unless they happen to belong, by birth, to his so-called "class," in which case he alternately marvels at and derides their eccentric softness.

However, the fact that you have obligingly constituted yourself a dormat beneath the feet of your husband's family is not, in my opinion, entirely responsible for the contemptuous usage you have received. I am inclined to think they discern, and disdain, a pronounced element of ambitious social striving inherent in your diligent endeavor to compel their favor. It seems to me that you have been actuated, too much, by the assumption that in marrying your husband, you likewise married his family and all that it represents.

In seeking to identify yourself altogether with their sphere, plane and pattern of existence—to the extent of grossly neglecting your own mother—it seems to me you have been guilty of a form of snobbery which equals theirs. It seems to me you have been supplying witless testimony that you believe you have no secure social place of your own, no pattern of living and no background that affords you a certain modest pride and quiet satisfaction.

When a man and woman marry, if the woman is any sort of individual in her own right, she becomes the social pace-setter in the relationship, as a rule. In marrying her, the man gave evidence that he was attracted by, and believed he would be enriched by accepting, all that she represents. When a man steps out of the ranks of the supposed socially anointed to marry a girl of lesser pretensions, it seems to me that she is placing the validity of his choice in question, if she deliberately attempts to use him or his family as social stepping stones.

In my opinion, your continuous humiliation and current frustration, even your growing (and dangerous) resentment of your husband's well-meaning attitude, are self-invited inflictions—the price you are required to pay for having focussed your energies on a false goal. Having married your husband, your primary concern should have been to justify his faith, through giving him the happiest possible home life. Since his family condescends to visit you but once a year, you had ideal opportunity for working out a life with him that was completely independent of their influence.

If you had seen fit to exercise as much ingenuity in weaning him away from his family, as you have chosen to exercise in trying to insinuate yourself into the seats of the socially elect, I daresay you and he might have worked out a pattern of domestic bliss, by now, that would have compelled the respect and envious interest of his family—so that they would have accepted you eventually as a member of the clan, who had won her spurs and who was well worth cultivating, if only as a means of learning the secrets of her marital success. M. H.

Men Prefer Cool and Easily Cut Pajamas And Robes That Match in Color, Says Stylist

Here we present the newest in lounging and sleeping attire for the often hard-to-please man of the house. Upper right—Cool sleeping shorts which are knee-length and short-sleeved for comfort. The youth wears strapped hide flats. The slippers, left, are of sterner build, having ruddy maroon uppers hand sewn to sturdy soles. The lounger with pipe and book is wearing a beige Terry cloth robe, double-breasted and leather-buttoned. His pajamas are ve ntilated striped chambray

Short-Sleeved, Knee-Length Pajamas Seen

By Marshall Adams,
The Post Fashion Editor.

A PAIR of newlyweds can often be spotted in a crowd by the neatness of their dress and the shine on their shoes. And just as surely is a new husband indicated by the smartness and good taste of the sleeping garments he selects.

MARSHALL ADAMS

This observation is made by a man, who for more than 40 years has arbitrated fashion preferences and who now manages one of Washington's most suave haberdasheries.

This style setter, who at 63 looks 40 (possibly because of his youthful preferences in lounging attire and dress of all types) has noticed that men of all ages are coming more and more toward cheerful, colorful pajamas. They like them cool and easily cut for summer heat. They prefer porous cotton weaves and robes that match in color and serve for lounging about the house as well as for wearing at night.

Short Sleeping Coats

Newest features of men's night attire are their scantiness and coolness. The short-sleeved pajama with knee-length trouser is a godsend to the man who in the past has tossed and writhed in enveloping flannels even during the heat wave. There are even short sleeping coats which rival women's lightweight night dresses for coolness and comfort. These resemble loose smocks, are cut above the knees and have shirt sleeves and action room. There is also a sleeping trouser which has no coat.

These three fashion developments are such departures from previous styles that many men are timid about them yet. But we have been assured they have already taken hold on young men who are broadminded about sleeping in nothing but a nightshirt. Almost any man of good build and average height can affect any of these styles and be sure of presenting a fetching figure on a fire escape. Let the overly tall Apollo be warned, however. Wearing only a shirt may make his legs look longer and more gangling.

Pajamas Preshrunk

Among the pajamas, all of which are preshrunk, have cool short sleeves and are moderately priced, we liked best the silk and cotton British ones in tiny red or blue and white check. They had adjustable club collars and enough subtlety of print to suit youths and fathers alike.

Most men go for stripes this summer and that is easy to understand as all kinds of unique pin clusters, chalk and Roman stripes are printed in soft or high colors on cool white chambra. Some of these have collarless necklines, which, though cool on the throat, are not becoming to men with thick or stocky necklines. However corpulent men look far slimmer in dark vertical stripes than in the popular canary yellows, whites and light blues that men seem to favor most for sleeping wear.

As for bold geometric prints splashed in brilliant color combinations on both cotton pajamas and robes, our informant tells us that the collegiate is usually their fondest fan. In summer-weight robes, the older and more heavy-set man veers toward the cool basket weave or figured seersuckers in Dutch blue, or Burgundy, usually relieved with pipings of contrasting color. The dark robe is more slimming to middle age, but, of course, requires more tubbing.

Undoubtedly the newest touch introduced into robes which are adaptable for bedtime use, daytime lounging and the beach is the handsome imported heavy Terry cloth model. This is double-breasted, therefore formal in cut It is trimmed with alligator thong buttons which gives it a hearty polo coat air.

New Sleeping Coats Provide Comfort During Heat Wave

A Woman's New York

By Alice Hughes

GIRL ABOUT TOWN—Whoopee and huzzah! Broadway is beginning to smile, faintly. With the influx of the folks, trade begins to pick up for the few really fine shows still in town. There is hope, sistrem! Great fun and frolic arrived the other night with the new musical show, "Streets of Paris," very funny with my dream man, Bobby Clark, and the newcomers, Abbott and Costello, perhaps known to you on the air . . . But most important, the opera brings a fresh "toast of the town." Mary Martin, the Daddy girl, is off to Hollywood, and into the breach blooms a Brazilian beauty named Carmel Miranda, who set even the crusty drama critics into paeans. I saw her, and understand.

SOVIET RUSSIA always brags about its Rest Homes for workers. Humph. Our city department of sanitation has just taken over the great Otto Kahn country estate as a rest home for its people—441 acres of beauty and fine building. Tie that, U. S. S. R., with your expropriated Grand Ducal palaces. You stole yours, we bought ours.

DID YOU hear that pretty Louise Van Alen is possibly to marry again? She it was who has survived marriage to two of the ill-starred Mdivanis, Serge and Alexis. The reported new romance is with a handsome American boy, Henry D. Phelps, once married to Muriel Vanderbilt. Let's hope, if this is true, that both find deferred happiness.

Your Figure, Madame!

By Ida Jean Kain.

Exercise Seems More Like Sport if Done Among a Crowd

IT'S MORE fun to exercise with a crowd. The good old spirit of competition turns routine into play and almost puts calisthenics on a par with sports!

And when the girls have a prize to work for, improvements in figures border on the miraculous! Mrs. Hazel Hall Rolfe, head of the health education department of the Richmond, Va., Y. W. C. A., found that when she introduced the plan of prize-giving to stimulate interest in both exercise and nutrition classes.

The winner was a young working girl who changed her measurements as follows: Old measurements: Lower hip, 46½ inches; upper hip, 40; but, 40½; waist, 33. New measurements: Lower hip, 40½ inches; upper hip, 39; bust, 40; waist, 28. All that in just one short month! She is very wisely taking longer with her weight reduction, but according to latest reports it had dropped from 190 pounds to 150.

Diet Plus Exercise

The program? A protective reducing diet, plus rigorous daily exercise. She did a lot of leg-swinging for the hips, swinging the legs forward, backward and to the sides, 100 times each day. Then she would lie down on the side and swing the top leg. She also did bending, twisting and circling exercises for the waist. Not only has her figure improved remarkably, but her skin is clearer and she is much better off all around.

You will notice that two different sets of measurements were given for the hips. Usually we are satisfied to take just the lower hip measurements, which includes the derriere. However, the upper hipline may be the more serious problem, as it was in the case of another member of Mrs. Rolfe's class. In this figure, the upper hip was larger than the lower hip, but exercise changed the measurements from 40 inches to 37½ inches. This measurement should be taken at the nub of the hip bone. To slim down this portion of the figure, the fat on the upper hip must be rolled off and the muscles of the abdomen must be strengthened. Here is an exercise which does both:

Use Knees and Legs

Lie on the back on the floor with the knees bent to the chest. Roll the knees over to one side, kick the legs out straight, bend the knees back to the chest, and roll to opposite side and kick.

With the girls trying to outdo each other, many other amazing improvements were made. One girl increased her bust measurement by 3 inches through deep breathing exercises. Another increased the bust 2½ inches while reducing the hips 7 inches! All the girls improved their postures, which greatly improved their figures.

The Gentler Sex

Summer Boarder

Well, it's certainly lovely of you to keep him, and I don't think he'll give you a bit of trouble—once he gets used to you. Of course he'll miss me at first—I've never been away from him for any length of time before—but if you just keep his mind occupied he'll be all right."

"Yes, did him want to go bye-bye? No, Mamma can't take him bye-bye this time. No! no! Stay away from pretty flower!"

"I'd take him along if it wasn't for Jim. He simply won't hear to it. And then, I suppose, the trip would be hard on him, having to change water and all. That reminds me! He has to have his water in a little glass sherbet cup. He won't take it any other way. And you won't forget to give him the cottage cheese every morning? . . . Yes, he needs the calcium and phosphorus. And say, don't forget to moisten the cheese with a little warm milk to take off the chill."

"Yes, was him hungry? . . . No, no, him can't eat between meals. . . . Go on now and play with him's nice ball."

"I've got all his playthings in that big box in the hall. And here's his traveling case with his comb, brush, nail file—he's a little skittish about having his nails worked on, but don't pay any attention to that—and here's a box of cleansing tissues in case he catches cold. I don't think you'll have any trouble that way, though, if you'll watch to keep him out of drafts. He can't stand a draft. He's just like me that way. And if he ever gets chilly in the night you'll have to see that the covers are pulled up over him. I'm sending his bed over—and it would probably be easier for you if you set it up in your room."

"No, no, now him must stay away from nice lady's gold fish! No, no! Naughty! Naughty!

"You'll see that he gets his nap right after dinner, won't you? He gets so irritable when he doesn't get enough sleep. Another thing, he can't stand excitement or too much noise. He's just like me that way. Why, we can't even play the piano at home . . . The radio? Well, I don't suppose he'd mind if you played it real low. But he simply can't stand symphony orchestras . . . No, they make him nervous. Another thing, he's very sensitive. You want to be careful never to be cross with him. He'll behave perfectly if you're a little diplomatic with him. But he simply won't be bossed. He's just like Jim that way. And another thing, he can't stand too much company coming in. No. He gets over-stimulated."

" No! No! No! Him mustn't tear nice lady's books! No! No! Give book to Mamma!"

"You'd better take him for a walk right after I leave to get his mind off of me. I always take him out about four times a day, and always at 10:30, just before bedtime . . . He likes to be out about a half hour, but be sure he doesn't get over-fatigued. It makes him so much more susceptible to colds. Oh, yes, and here are his goggles. He always wears them on a windy day, especially if he rides in a motor car. Now his cod liver oil is in his medicine chest with his diet formula. You'll be sure to see he gets his shredded wheat biscuits soaked in boullion won't you? And cook his liver—be sure it's calve's liver— about 4 o'clock in the afternoon. And sometimes you can give him a little stewed chicken for a change."

"No! No! No! Don't make pretty cushion all dirty! If him be good, nice lady will take him for nice long walk."

"Let's see, now, is there anything else? Oh, yes, his sun baths! I expect you'll have to stay out with him until he gets used to taking them in a strange place. And be sure he wears his goggles . . . You know, it simply tears me to pieces to leave him this way, but Jim is so bull-headed about it. . . . Yes, he just put down his foot and said the two of them couldn't go on the trip. You know what he had the nerve to tell me? . . . Well, he just said, 'You'll have to choose between me and that dog?' . . . Yes. Can you beat that?"

Actress Reveals Perfume Pointers

Hollywood, Calif.—Gloria Dickson, movie actress, has three new perfume pointers.

If her favorite scent of the moment happens to be one that doesn't linger, she wears a little jeweled pendant about her throat, which is actually a tiny perfume vial. Thus she can renew her fragrance at will.

For delicately scented hair, she moistens her brush slightly with cologne before stroking her locks, and stows the brush away with a packet of cologne between the bristles.

For subtle emanation she puts perfume on her skin where it will be covered by her dress.

Washington, 1; New York, 1. Last half of the ninth. Bases full, two out. Up comes Pitcher Dutch Leonard, of the Nats, who has done a superb job of holding the world's champions. "Red" Ruffing delivers his fast ball. Leonard smashes a long, looping drive into center. Travis dashes for home with the run to end the game. It looks a sure hit for a moment. But Joe DiMaggio gauges its curve, spears it, sends the game into extra innings. Leonard kept on pitching, however, and the Nats won in the twelfth, 2-1

This Morning

—With Shirley Povich

Lou Gehrig is beginning to understand why the fans cheer, why the Yankees are a great team and why they win ball games. The five weeks during which he has graced the Yankee's bench, have been an amazing eye-opener to the fellow who for 2,130 consecutive games always had his nose buried in the thick of competition.

POVICH

"So help me, for 15 years I never saw a ball game as it should be watched," declared Gehrig yesterday as he peered from the Yankees' dugout, still in uniform but no longer an active ball player. "I never appreciated some of those fellows I've been playing with for years. What I always thought were routine plays when I was in the lineup, are really thrilling when you see 'em from off the field.

"I feel like standing up and cheering, honest, when those infielders come up with some of the balls they do come up with. I always realized that Frankie Crosetti and Joe Gordon were a nice double-play combination, but I never knew until now how truly great they are. They're making the same plays they did when I was out there on the bag, but they look different. They look better."

Greatest Combination in Business

Gehrig had one ready explanation for it. "I guess I was never really in position to take in everything that happened when a ball was hit to our infield. At the crack of the bat, I was heading back to the bag for a play at first and had my back turned on a lot that was happening. More often than not, the first thing I knew, Crosetti or Gordon were chucking a double-play ball at me.

"But I've been noticing now how they do it. They're just the greatest second-base combination in the business, that's all. There isn't another pair that can compare with 'em. That's why the Yankees win ball games, because those two fellows are taking the heart out of the opposition with the plays they make."

He has been marveling, too, at a couple of other Yankees he always knew to be fine ball players. "But I never appreciated the fact that they were so magnificent," Lou was saying. "I mean Joe DiMaggio and Bill Dickey. For 15 years I've been watching baseball like a man who is playing checkers. He's too close to it. I've had my nose too close to the game. I guess I couldn't see the forest, for the trees.

"But back here on the bench I see Dickey and DiMaggio do things that are amazing. I see that big fellow in centerfield get a break on fly balls that's uncanny. To me it looks as if he outguesses 'em. Anyway, he's always at the right spot, and the way he gets over the ground is something to marvel at in itself. And behind the bat, that Dickey is just—well, I guess you'll have to call it smooth.

"You hear mostly about the Yankees' power, and the Yanks' pitching, but our pitchers get the best support in the league, and a couple of clubs are outhitting us. It's the kind of plays the Yankees make that keeps them in the ball game until they come along with their power and win it. Who's leading the league in double plays? The Yankees."

New Kind of World for Gehrig

For a supposed invalid, Gehrig is a healthy looking citizen. Certainly he appears to be the same Gehrig that played 154 games for the Yankees as late as last season. He isn't minimizing the form of paralysis that ended his career as an active ball player. Doctors have told him that it can be checked with diligent treatment, and Lou is a faithful patient.

Mayo Clinic officials at Rochester, Minn., who finally diagnosed Gehrig's sufferings as chronic paralysis, have supplied Lou with a list of physicians in every city in the American League. Twice a week Gehrig submits to treatments from specialists wherever the league schedule takes him.

It's a new kind of world for Gehrig since his illness struck him down. He's finding friends and admirers he never knew he had. Beyond acknowledgement that he was a superb ball player, fans about the circuit never went for Larruping Lou in the same sense that they idolized Babe Ruth, even when Gehrig was surpassing the Babe's records. The loudest cheer of the 10,000 fans at Griffith Stadium yesterday was not evoked by any play during the double-header. It was raised when Gehrig strode to the plate between games to hand the Yankees' line-up to the umpire in chief.

His bat will never set another record, but Gehrig was party to a record-breaking event as late as last Wednesday. It was between the games of a twin bill at Philadelphia, that Gehrig walked to the plate with the Yankees' line-up for the second game with the Athletics. At his appearance, Shibe Park resounded with the loudest sustained session of cheering since the A's drove over the winning run of the 1931 World Series.

They're going to give him a "day" at Yankee Stadium on July 4. "Lou Gehrig Day," it will be. He'll be grateful for it and he'll be gracious enough, smiling for the photographers, acknowledging his thanks. But after that he says he hopes folks will remember him as Lou Gehrig the ball player, not as the guy who got a tough break.

Connie Mack Ill, But A's Beat Red Sox

By the Associated Press

Boston, June 29.—Minus the services of their venerable manager, Connie Mack, who was stricken with an attack of acute indigestion, the Philadelphia Athletics rapped out 17 hits to overcome the Boston Red Sox, 8 to 6, in the opener of a two-game series today.

Bob Johnson batted in four runs for the A's, two of them on his eleventh homer of the year with one on in the third. Nelson Potter scored his sixth pitching victory of the year, against one defeat, although he had to be relieved by Henry Pippen with two on and two out in the eighth. Jack Wilson was the first of four Boston pitchers and was charged with the defeat.

The elder Mack, who will be 77 years old next December, became ill shortly after the team's arrival this morning and spent the day in his hotel bed, while the team was directed by his son, Earl.

Four Schools Send Players Into College Golf Semifinals

By the Associated Press.

Des Moines, Iowa, June 29.—It will be East vs. West and North vs. South in tomorrow's 36-hole semifinals of the National Collegiate Golf Tournament on the Wakonda course here.

In the upper bracket, H. R. (Rennie) Merritt, of Yale, meets Warren Berl, the Stanford sophomore. In the lower bracket, Billy Hall, of Iowa State College, will be pitted against Vincent D. Antoni, of Tulane.

The semifinalist victors will battle it out for the national collegiate golf championship over 36 holes Saturday.

Brownell Defeated

Berl, a par shooter from the West Coast, put Bert McDowell, of Louisiana State, out of the tournament by a 2-and-1 margin in the quarter-finals this afternoon.

Robert Brownell, a member of Duke's Southern Conference championship, couldn't hold on to a lead he had at three stages of the match and lost to Lee Ramsell, L. S. U., in the third round. Brownell is from Washington, D. C.

Only one hole was halved on the front nine, the ninth. Ramsell won the first two, Brownell took a 1 up lead by winning the next three, and then the L. S. U. student again won two in a row and Brownell evened the match on the eighth. They were both out in 40.

Two Up at Tenth

Brownell went 2 up for the first time by winning the tenth and eleventh holes in the inward trip, but his advantage was immediately canceled as Ramsell squared the match on the thirteenth green. The Duke star won the fourteenth with a par, but took 6 on the sixteenth and the issue was square again.

A great birdie deuce by Ramsell won the seventeenth hole for a one-hole lead, and they halved the eighteenth in regulation fours as Ramsell protected his lead.

Ramsell was back in 38 for a 78

Champion and Tony May Be Re-matched

Joe Jacobs, Galento's Manager, Says Beer Baron Didn't Train for Bout With Louis; Joe Would Welcome Fight

By Sid Feder
Associated Press Sports Writer.

New York, June 29.—The heavyweight fashion parade, momentarily in the off-season after Joe Louis' four-round technical knockout over Tony Galento, was made ready for fall showing today with details virtually completed for two September bouts.

The Associated Press learned that these two bouts, looking toward a meeting between the victors next spring, would be:

1—Champion Louis in Detroit against Bob Pastor, the former New York University footballer who went 10 rounds aboard his bicycle with the Brown Bomber two years ago.

2—Galento against the only other outstanding challenger of the moment, California Lou Nova, either in Philadelphia or New York.

Several Developments

Arrangement of these bouts, which would find the already talked-of rematch of the Louis-Galento blood-and-thunder thriller of last night coming off probably next June if both get by, featured a day full of fistic developments, that included:

1—Louis, his only mark from Tony's thunderous left-hand shots a deep bluish bruise under the right eye, revealed that he went into the ring last night with the intention of letting the fight go about 10 rounds, and changed his mind when he was floored in the third session.

2—Joe Jacobs, Galento's manager, disclosed that Tony wasn't as serious about his training for Louis as he had made out. "Why," Jacobs said, "he was out almost every night till 1 or 2 o'clock, and he smoked cigars and drank beer the same as always."

3—Revelation by the fists of Galento and Max Schmeling (three years ago) that the Brown Bomber's chin is vulnerable caused just about every fight manager to hurl a challenge at the champion. Even Joe Gould spoke his piece on behalf of a return go for Tommy Farr, who lasted 15 rounds with Louis. Pro-

Nanjo Singh's 'Cobra Clutch' Beats Baxter

After leaving his footprints on various parts of Laverne Baxter's anatomy last night at Turner's Arena, Nanjo Singh, Hindu wrestling gentleman, rocked Laverne to sleep with his "cobra deathlock" after 18 minutes of the 90-minute feature match.

Baxter erred by devoting too much attention to one of his hecklers in the ringside, who was imploring Nanjo to "t'row 'at bum ta me." Laverne started over the ropes but was jerked back and finished off by Nanjo.

The subject of the $500 Nanjo told Promoter Joe Turner he would offer anyone who could break his "cobra clutch" was not mentioned by any of the ring officials but no one in the 900 spectators called the Hindu's hand.

Jack Hader finished King Kong Symkowsky in 7½ minutes of the semifinal with a series of body blocks. Pete Managoff defeated George Tragos in 15½ minutes with something Australian, Bibber Mccoy and Hank Matheny waltzed to a 30-minute draw, and Jim Clinstock beat Jules Strongbow in 10 minutes with a flying scissors in the preliminaries.

Jack Dempsey Under Knife in N. Y. Hospital

Emergency Appendix Operation Saves Life Of Ex-Heavy Champion

By International News Service.

New York, June 29.—Jack Dempsey, former world's heavyweight champion, underwent an emergency appendicitis operation at Polyclinic Hospital at 10 o'clock tonight. He was reported resting comfortably after coming out of the operating room.

DEMPSEY

The operation was "just in time" to save the popular former champ's life, International News Service learned from Ned Brown, business associate of Dempsey's.

Ill for the past two days, Dempsey belittled the gravity of his condition. Yielding to the insistence of his wife, the former Hannah Williams, and the demands of his friends, he allowed them to call Dr. Alfred Lilienfeld to his apartment.

The doctor arrived about 8:30, and after a quick examination ordered the one-time model of physical perfection to the hospital and telephoned Dr. Robert E. Brennan, chief surgeon at Polyclinic, that Dempsey was on the way.

At Polyclinic, the former champ's condition was determined to be so grave that he was rushed immediately to the operating room, even before the results of a blood count were known.

Dr. Brennan, who is Dempsey's personal physician, performed the operation, which was completed at 10:30.

Dempsey had been so ill for the last two days that he had not appeared at either of his two restaurants, where he is usually seen daily.

The one-time heavyweight champ suffered a previous appendicitis attack on November 27, 1937, in Toronto.

Leonard Tops Ruffing In 12-Inning Battle

Lewis' Single Breaks Up Opener; Atley Donald Takes Ninth Straight for Champs in Second As Game Is Called on Account of Darkness

By Shirley Povich.

Victors over the Yankees by a 2-1 score in a stirring 12-inning duel, the Nats were a magnificent ball team from 1:30 to 4 p. m. yesterday. And then they went native, encountering a dismal 7-0 defeat in the second game of the double-header, ended by darkness after the sixth inning.

But for the 10,000 customers that opening game was compensation for the unhappy denouement in the finale. It produced in Emil (Dutch) Leonard, the first pitcher in the American League who could beat the Yankees twice this season. Leonard was meeting the Yankees' best—Red Ruffing—and he licked the Yanks and Ruffing by dint of serving 11 consecutive scoreless innings at the champions.

He licked the Yankees ultimately because Buddy Lewis, with two out in the twelfth inning, and two strikes against him, whacked a single into centerfield to score Rick Ferrell from second base with the winning run.

Hero and Goat

A co-hero of that first game, Lewis was a fair-sized goat in the second, because it was his second-inning muff that paved the way for four unearned Yankee runs against Ken Chase that put the crusher on the Nats.

In that second game, the Nats were victimized by Atlee Donald, Yankee rookie, who was turning in his ninth straight victory of the season without a defeat. Only three hits did Donald surrender to the Nats, only one man did he permit beyond second base, before Umpire-in-Chief Bill Summers took a look at the approaching darkness and shouted "Game called!"

The Nats threw up a brilliant defense about Leonard's clever pitching in the opener. Backed by a series of sensational plays, the big knuckle-baller outperformed Ruffing, dealing that fellow his second defeat of the season in contrast to 11 victories. Leonard allowed the Yankees only seven hits over the 12-inning route—five of them singles—while the Nats were collecting eight off Ruffing.

Until Lewis drove in the winning run, the talley that each club scored in the first inning, stood as the only runs of the game. And that Yankee run was a tainted affair. Leonard

English A.A.U. Would Split With Germany

By the United Press.

London, June 29.—A move to sever athletic relations with Germany will be started here tomorrow at a meeting of the Southern Committee of the Amateur Athletic Association of Great Britain, H. F. Pash, vice president of the committee, said tonight. He said he would sponsor a resolution to cancel the athletic match between Germany and Great Britain scheduled for August 20 at Cologne.

"Sport ceases to be sport when sections of the nation, such as the Jews, are excluded from participating," he said. "One admits the general principle that it is good for nations to mix with each other, but there must be a foundation of decent human feeling, not a record of brutality which would never be tolerated in the average civilized country. Nazi doctrines are contrary to the traditions of sport as we understand them in this country."

7-Up Nine to Battle Blues and Winchester

The 7-Up Athletic Club unlimited team will be busy over the week-end, meeting Lou Blue's Baseball School under the lights at Ballston at 8:15 tomorrow night, and Winchester Park Association at Winchester Sunday afternoon.

Either Lanny Birch or Lefty McIntire is expected to pitch against Lou Blue's men, with the other to be held over until Sunday.

Gene Smith, Riggs, Cooke Gain 4th Round at Wimbledon

Teacher Wins 2-Hour Battle From Cejnar

Bobby Beats Malfroy And Elwood Defeats Rogers of Ireland Gene Injures Elbow

By Scotty Reston,
Associated Press Sports Writer.

Wimbledon, Eng., June 29.—Gene Smith, the big, beaming Berkeley (Calif.), English teacher; Bobby Riggs, of Chicago, and Elwood Cooke, of Portland, Oreg., entered the fourth round of Wimbledon's international singles tennis championship today, but Smith had to stay after school to do it.

The schoolmaster made his debut on the center court by beating Franz Cejnar, of Bohemia and Moravia, 6—3, 6—2, 5—7, 1—6, 6—1, in a two-hour battle.

Riggs scraped through against Camille Malfroy, of New Zealand, 8—6, 11—9, 6—2, and Cooke thrasheed G. Lyttleton Rogers, the Irish giant, 7—5, 6—1, 6—4, but anyway you figure it this still is Smith's story.

Injures Elbow

He arrived today on the center court, where even veterans are supposed to faint, and proceeded to play as if it were his own backyard. Cejnar just crouched there on the baseline and waved at the Californian's serves as they went past, and after 35 minutes Smith had won the first two sets.

At the send of the second, the schoolmaster almost swung his right elbow out of joint. So he eased off a bit, Cejnar at the same time lifted his game, and the European took the next two sets to square the match. At about this point Smith already was being counted out, but he blasted over a love game at the start of the fifth set, gave Cejnar only one point in the next game, and from then on stormed the net to gain his second major victory.

He had beaten Roderich Menzel, of Germany, yesterday.

Riggs, Cooke, Henkel Favored

Five seeded players—Henry Wilfred (Bunny) Austin, No. 1; Riggs, No. 2; Puncec, Henner Henkel, No. 5, and Cooke, No. 6—came through to the last 16. But Ignacy Tloczynski, of Poland, who was seeded last, went out before Ghaus Mohammed, of India, 6—0, 6—3, 6—4.

The longer the tournament goes the more it looks as if Riggs, Cooke or Henkel, the German Davis Cup star, will win. Riggs, potentially, is the best in the field, but against Malfroy he again boggled around, mis-hitting the easiest sort of shots. Just the same, he is good enough in patches to keep experts thinking he'll win.

Austin, likewise, is well off form. He labored through two sets against J. Drobny, of Bohemia and Moravia, and won them, 7—5, 9—7, and after that Drobny retired.

Bees Pound 4 Giant Hurlers To Win, 8-2

By the Associated Press.

New York, June 29.—The ordinarily light-hitting Boston Bees swarmed onto four pitchers for 16 hits today to beat the New York Giants 8 to 2, and interrupt the Terrymen's string at five straight victories.

The Bees bunched six hits for six runs in the second inning, when Debs Garms and Buddy Hassett hit homers, to chase rookie Manny Salvo and added a pair of tallies during a rainstorm in the ninth.

Mamakos Turns Down English Fight Offer

In the form of an offer of fights in England, opportunity knocked on the door of Steve Mamakos, Washington's fifth-ranking welterweight, yesterday but Stevie figuratively was "out to lunch." His manager, Matt Twomey, turned down the invitation.

Col. Harvey L. Miller, secretary of the District Boxing Commission, received a wire from Johnny Rogers, now in England booking American boxers, offering Mamakos "immediate work." Miller said he was informed by Twomey to notify Rogers that it is "impractical for Mamakos to come over at this time."

On the Line

With CONSIDINE

New York, June 29.—What few remaining fears Lou Nova had over his impending fight against Joe Louis, dissolved Wednesday night at the Yankee Stadium. The big bronzed Californian for some time has harbored a belief that Joe could sell his feet to a clay company. And Joe's performance against Galento—as violent as it seemed to most of us—only seems to have strengthened Nova's confidence.

CONSIDINE

"Joe showed me what I've always suspected about him, that he's only a fair fighter endowed with a fine punch," the ranking challenger said. "He's only a pretty good boxer, his footwork is something less than great, he leaves a lot of openings, and when he's hit he gets as confused as if it were his first fight. His punching is all he's got.

"Nobody will ever convince me that he's not gun shy, too. I noticed in training that he blinked his eyes every time the other fellow feinted at him. The same thing happened against Galento, particularly in the first round when Tony made him blink and then hit him with that left hook to the head that staggered him. There's something else he does wrong, too. When he jabs he comes in there a little low with it—at least low enough for a fellow with the right like mine to hit him over his jab, like Schmeling did. There's another thing . . . but I'm not going to be sucker enough to broadcast it."

Afraid Louis Will Lose First

Nova says he's afraid somebody will get to Louis before he does, and the way the managers of heavyweights formed a line at Mike Jacobs' office today, seeking bouts with the knock-down champion, indicates Lou has grounds for his fears. What Nova is afraid of, he says, is that Joe will be knocked out before he knocks him out. "When I came East to train for the Baer fight I told Ray Carlen to get me signed up for a Louis fight then and there, even before fighting Baer. I don't want to take chances on losing him. Did you ever know in your heart that you could do something? Well, I know I can beat that fellow. And after Wednesday night, I know I can knock him out. Nobody can convince me I'm not the logical fellow for that September fight. Pastor? He had his chance, and blew. Now give me mine."

Arthur Donovan, who did a grand job of self-effacing refereeing the mauling brawling Louis-Galento fight, today cleared up some of the confusion surrounding the Louis knock-down. Some observers, including this one, thought Joe went down from a right uppercut to the solar plexus. "Tony nailed him with a left hook," Donovan corrected, "and it was a pip, it hit Joe right here," indicating a point near the top of his neck and the hinge of his jaw. "Then Tony tried a right uppercut as Louis started to fall, but he didn't touch Joe with it."

Only One Punch Needed

"I guess some of you guys who predicted a walkaway for Louis feel pretty sick today," Donovan couldn't resist adding. "Some day you guys will learn that one punch can make any fight an even proposition."

For a time Wednesday night it looked as if it might develop into the first double-header in the history of heavyweight title fights. Either by coincidence or design, two of Louis' lieutenants entered the press box just before gong-time and took seats on the extreme end of the first row—practically in Galento's corner. And during one particularly hectic moment in the ring, when Joe Jacobs was shrieking some unheeded counsel to Galento, one of the bombers' men commanded Joe to shut up.

For the next minute that particular section of the press box, already in an agony of emotion (and tangled typewriter keys) over the thing that was going on in the ring, had to keep an eye on this snarling yelling side attraction, and be ready to duck in case any blunt instruments were swung.

Rain Curtails Play in Women's District Tennis Tournament

Rain curtailed play in the Women's District tennis tournament again yesterday but not before quarter-finalists were determined and semi-final matches begun.

Top-seeded Willie O'Steen received a real break by the showers for she was trailing the third-seeded Margo Lee, 5-2, in the first set of their semifinal match, which, because of prearranged agreement, will be started from scratch today.

The other semifinal was stopped in the first game of the third and deciding set after Anne Dayette, fourth-seeded Baltimorean, had defeated second-seeded Anne Ellis, 6—3, and lost the second set, 6—0. Miss Ellis took the first game of the third set, but it will be entirely replayed today.

Resumption of the Lee-O'Steen match is scheduled for 10 o'clock and the other at 11 a. m.

The winners then will meet at 4 o'clock for the title.

In quarter-final matches Miss O'Steen defeated Margaret Graham, 6—2, 6—1; Miss Lee defeated Elinor Finckel, 6—3, 8—6; Miss Ellis defeated Mrs. Dorette Miller, 6—3, 6—2, and Miss Dayette defeated Hazel Bishopp, 6—4, 6—2.

Just as Miss O'Steen perhaps escaped an upset loss by the timely intervention of rain so was Miss Dayette aided by the showers, for after convincingly beating Miss Ellis in the first set she suddenly became ineffective. In the second set, the tall, smooth-stroking Miss Ellis stormed the net behind deep forcing shots and took the six straight games in less than a half hour.

Miss Lee played steadily and at times brilliantly to build her imposing lead over Miss O'Steen who was top-seeded on the strength of her victory in the recent City of Washington tournament.

Because of the rain and also conflict with the District men's tournament starting Saturday it was decided to postpone the mixed doubles until Friday, July 7. A complete new draw will be made. Entries will remain open until 6 o'clock Friday at Columbia.

Singles

Quarter-final round—Willie O'Steen defeated Margaret Graham, 6—2, 6—1; Margo Lee defeated Elinor Finckel, 6—3, 6—1; Anne Ellis defeated Mrs. Dorette Miller, 6—3, 6—2; Anne Dayette defeated Hazel Bishopp, 6—4, 6—2.

Doubles

First round—Bransford and Carter defeated Cunningham and Orme, 14—12, 4—6, 7—5; Miller and Finckel defeated Gentry and Bloede, 6—3, 6—2; Ellis and Lee defeated Wassman and Ford by default; Graham and Fishburne won default over Dayette and partner.

Quarter-final round—Ellis and Lee defeated Graham and Fishburne, 6—4, 6—2.

Browns Split Double Bill With Chisox

Clint Brown's Relief Hurling Saves 2d Game; St. Louis Wins Opener

By the Associated Press.

Chicago, June 29.—Clint Brown's effective relief pitching saved a homer-studded 7-to-5 victory for the Chicago White Sox in the second game of their double-header with the St. Louis Browns today, after the Browns had assured themselves an even split through Bob Harris' six-hit 9-to-3 victory in the opener.

Rushing to Johnny Marcum's rescue with two on and none out in the sixth inning and the Sox two runs ahead, Brown shut out St. Louis on three singles in the final four frames. It was his twenty-fourth relief appearance in 60 Sox games this year. Marcum, facing his old mates for the first time since he was traded earlier in the month, was credited with his second victory in as many starts since the deal.

Man of the Month

By Walter Johnson.
(WJSV-General Mills Broadcaster.)

Buddy Lewis lengthened his lead in the Man of the Month contest yesterday, but Dutch Leonard was the outstanding performer of the Nats. Twenty points were distributed as follows on the basis of the double-header:

To Leonard, 8 points, because he pitched 11 consecutive innings in beating the Yankees in the first game.

To Buddy Lewis, five points, because he drove in the winning run with his second hit off Ruffing.

To Taft Wright, four points, because he drove in the Nats' first run of the first game and played a spectacular game in the field.

To Rick Ferrell, two points, because he made two of the Nats' hits, the second leading to the winning run.

To Sammy West, one point, because his first-inning triple led to a run. The totals:

Lucy de Loss Holds 2d Spot In Archery

Special Dispatch to The Post

Storrs, Conn., June 29.—Miss Lucy de Loss, of Washington, retained her second-place position among the 50 women contestants at the four-day archery tournament here today in the face of crack opposition which broke one world's record and two Eastern marks.

Miss de Loss performed the target with 140 hits to score 840 points in the women's double national, 92 points behind Miss Ann Weber, of Newark, N. J., who established a new world's record with 142—932. The Washington archer made 144 hits and 996 points in the women's double Columbia, again coming in second to Miss Weber.

Mrs. Helen MacDannell, also of Washington, moved up in the rankings, coming in forty-second with 102—448.

Eastern Rifle Championships Begin Today

By the Associated Press.

Camp Ritchie, Md., June 29.—Pistol and small-bore rifle experts from a score of States will begin a five-day barrage here tomorrow, with the coveted Eastern Championships the prizes for winners.

Fred Hakenjos, of the National Rifle Association, chief of the statistical office, forecast an attendance in excess of 500. Among the sharpshooters will be William Boone Woodring, of Alton, Ill., three-time winner of the national small-bore championship; H. Amundson, of Plainfield, N. J., New Jersey State champion, and Thurman Randle, of Dallas, Tex., winner of the Plama individual trophy last year.

Other contestants will come from Maryland, Pennsylvania, Connecticut, Delaware, Virginia, New York, Ohio, West Virginia and the District of Columbia.

Walter Walsh, of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, who holds the world's .38-caliber pistol record, will lead the pistol contingent. Police teams from New York, Baltimore, Philadelphia and Detroit will compete with State police teams from Maryland, Michigan and Pennsylvania.

The program cards 48 separate events: 18 for the rifle section and 30 for the pistol section. In addition, there will be five special pistol events with cash prizes and medals for all classes.

French Stops Late Uprising Headed By Two Home Runs

By the Associated Press.

St. Louis, June 29.—Chicago's Cubs moved within a game of the third place St. Louis Cardinals today with a 7-to-6 victory, but nearly lost out before a determined Cardinal rally in the eighth and ninth.

The big blow in the Cardinal eighth inning uprising was Johnny Mize's eleventh home run of the year, driving in Stuart Martin ahead of him after Jimmy Brown had scored on Terry Moore's sacrifice fly. Enos Slaughter homered for the Cards in the ninth, then Southpaw Larry French throttled them.

Favored Four Gain Semifinals of Junior Golf Tournament

Ross, Stevens, Vass, Skinker Win Matches

Ross Extended by Brode in 2d Round; Wins on 18th Hole; Semifinals Today

The favored four, led by Medalist Earle Skinker, trooped into the semifinals of the District Junior championship yesterday at Army and Navy with David "Scotty" Ross the only one extended in the first two rounds.

Skinker, whose 74 won the medal by four shots, lived up to his favorite's role. He was one under par in the morning as he routed Dick Burgess of the host club, 7 and 6, losing only one hole, and in the afternoon was only three strokes higher as he turned four up on Bill Cassedy, of Argyl, and won, 3 and 2.

Ross won as he pleased in the first round over James Brantley, Chevy Chase, by a 4 and 3 margin, but in the second round things started to happen after he led Jerry Brode, Woodmount, four up at the ninth. Brode won the next two with pars, and the thirteenth with a birdie to slice Ross's margin to one up. Brode was still one down playing the eighteenth and knocked a tee shot three feet from the pin, while Ross was some 20 feet away. The latter got down in two putts and Brode lost a chance to send the match into extra holes by missing the putt.

The other semifinalists, George Vass and Jimmy Stevens, won by 10 and 12-hole margins. Vass defeated J. L. Vandergrift, 7 and 6, and Ben Hartig, 3 and 1, while Stevens turned in the most one-sided triumphs of the day, 7 and 5, over Francis Keene and 5 and 3 over J. R. Sparks, with near-par golf.

The first-round feature went to Sparks, who was 2 down and 2 to play against Carrol Willett, squared the match on the eighteenth, halved the nineteenth in sevens and finally won on the twenty-first with a bogey 5.

Skinker meets Vass while Stevens, a finalist two years ago, and Ross are opponents, in the morning semifinals. The finals are set for 1:30 p. m.

Earle Skinker, Columbia, defeated Dick Burgess, Army and Navy, 7 and 6; Bill Cassedy, Argyle, defeated Jack Call, Capital, 6 and 4; George Vass, jr., Kenwood, defeated J. L. Vandergrift, Congressional, 7 and 6; Ben Hartig, Columbia, defeated W. Rehkopf, Capital, 3 and 2; J. H. Stevens, jr., Army and Navy, defeated Francis Keene, Capital, 7 and 5; J. R. Sparks, Belle Haven, defeated Carroll Willett, Kenwood, 1 up, 21 holes; Jerry Brode, Woodmont, defeated Tom Fitzgerald, Kenwood, 2 up; David Ross, Capital, defeated James Brantley, Chevy Chase, 5 and 3.

Second round—Skinker defeated Cassedy, 3 and 2; Vass defeated Hartig, 3 and 1; Stevens defeated Sparks, 5 and 3; Ross defeated Brode, 1 up.

Consolation—Burgess defeated Call by default; Rehkopf defeated Vandergrift, 3 and 2; Fitzpatrick defeated Brantley, 3 and 4.

Pairings—9:30, Skinker vs. Vass; 9:35, Stevens vs. Ross; 9:40, Burgess vs. Rehkopf; 9:45, Willett vs. Fitzgerald.

Louis May Meet Bob Pastor Next

moter Mike Jacobs turned thumbs down on this one, since it involved holding the fight in London. Another challenge came from Melio Bettina, recognized in New York as as light heavyweight champion.

4—Promoter Jacobs announced that gross receipts from the crowd of 34,852, plus $50,000 from radio and motion picture rights, brought the total gross proceeds from last night's fight to $333,302.68, from which, after Federal and State taxes were deducted, Louis collected $114,332.87, thus bringing his total ring earnings over the $1,500,000 mark. Galento's "cut" was $50,020.63.

Murderous Attack

3—Referee Arthur Donovan, who has been the third man in the ring in all of Louis' fights here, decided he had never officiated ta a "hotter" fight and said that until Tony went down under a murderous attack in the fourth he had no idea of stopping the bout. "Even when he's hurt," the veteran official explained, "Galento always is dangerous until he's knocked cold."

Only major detail still left in the path of the Louis-Pastor contest was negotiations for use of Briggs' Stadium, home of the Detroit Tigers' Baseball Club, and this was expected to be ironed out without too much difficulty.

Louis said he didn't care who he fought next, although he explained he understood the winner of the recent Nova-Max Baer bout, which was Nova, was to get the shot.

Wants Galento Again

"Y'know," he added, "I'd like to take on Mr. Galento again. I hit him harder with more punches than I ever hit anybody. Nova or nobody else would be as tough as him."

"I only made up my mind a few minutes before going into the ring that I was going to keep the fight going for 10 pounds or so," Louis added. "I jes' thought I'd like to practice some. Then Tony started to butt me. He did it in every clinch. He didn't fight fair at all. So I figgered I'd keep it going and chop Tony with jabs to teach him somethin'. When I floored him in the second round, I thought I had him and could keep it going as long as I wanted.

"But when he came back and knocked me down in the third, I had to cange my mind."

Ferrell Scoring Nat's Winning Run in Twelfth Inning

The disgruntled gentleman with chest protector and catcher's mitt is Bill Dickey, of the Yankees. And the reason is that Rick Ferrell is crossing home plate at Griffith Stadium with the run that won the first game there yesterday for Washington, 2-1. Taft Wright, who would have batted next, congratulates the Nats' catcher. Buddy Lewis singled to center to bring him in hit Crosetti, the first man to face him, wild-pitched him to second with two out, and then yielded a high-popping single through the box to Di Maggio.

Sammy West inspired the Nats' first-inning run when he dropped a three-bagger into left field to commence proceedings against Ruffing. He languished on third base while Prichard struck out and Lewis flied out, but Taft Wright ushered him home with a single to center.

From that point, it was Ruffing vs. Leonard in a gripping duel. Taft Wright averted a Yankee run in the third inning after Rolfe tripled off the right field wall with two out, by making a dashing catch of Henrich's long drive. And in the seventh, the Yankees muffed a chance to score the winning run.

Dickey Starts It

Bill Dickey led off with a single against the right field wall and attempted to stretch it to two bases, but Wright made a speedy recovery and flagged him down with a throw to Travis. Thus Gordon's double against the left field screening was useless.

Ruffing started off the Yankees' eighth with a single to right, and a sacrifice advanced him to second, but he was stranded there when Rolfe and Henrich flied to West, who dragged down Henrich's long hoist after a cross-country gallop.

Cecil Travis saved Leonard embarrassment in the ninth with an amazing pick-up and throw that robbed DiMaggio of a hit, and Leonard was in trouble again in the tenth when Gordon led off with a single to left.

A sacrifice by Dahlgren moved Gordon to second and he moved to third on Ruffing's looping single to left, on which Estalella made a spectacular pick-up. Then, on Crosetti's hard smash, Lewis, Myer and Prichard turned in a run-saving double play.

There was more trouble for Leonard in the eleventh, when Rolfe walked with one out, but Henrich and DiMaggio failed to get the ball out of the infield, and Dickey was purposely passed, strategy that proved eminently successful when Leonard struck out Selkirk.

The Nats were held in virtually complete subjection by Ruffing from the first to the ninth. In that inning Travis doubled to left with one out and Myer was purposely passed. Estalella popped up, and, after Ferrell was purposely passed, DiMaggio saved the game for Ruffin at that point with a running catch of Leonard's line drive. Again in the tenth, after Lewis had singled with two out, DiMaggio hauled down a line drive by Wright to relieve the tension for Ruffing.

But in the twelfth Rick Ferrell led off with a single to right, and it was the beginning of the end for the Yankees. Leonard sacrificed him to second, West drew a walk, Prichard took a third strike and then along came Lewis.

The second game began to crash down about the ears of Chase when Lewis muffed Gordon's grounder in the second inning. After Roser grounded out, Dahlgren drew a walk and Donald forced Dahlgren at second. Crosetti walked to fill the bases, and at that point Rolfe beat out a hit to Bloodworth, who had no play because Prichard had deserted the bag. When Prichard did regain the bag tardily, he dropped Bloodworth's throw and Donald followed Gordon across the plate.

That wasn't all. Estalella and Travis succeeded only in frightening each other out of the way on Henrich's pop into short left, and two more runs crossed the plate.

The Yanks picked up three more runs in the sixth because with Gordon and Roser on base, Dahlgren hit his fourth homer of the week—into the leftfield seats.

Two Unseeded Netmen Win At Army-Navy

Evans and Beel Win Upsets to Reach Semifinal Round

Two seeded and as many unranked players yesterday reached the semifinal singles round of the All-Army Navy Country Club tennis tournament.

Top-seeded G. C. Russell, of Texas, and Second Seeded Cadet Richard Tindell maintained their even pace while Cadet Julius Evans and G. F. Bell continued their upset parade.

Evans, who eliminated Fourth Seeded Stanley K. Robinson in his first round match, accounted for Eighth Seeded S. M. Lapsley yesterday, while Bell defeated Seventh Seeded J. H. Drake.

Tindell, whose record parallels Russell's in that he hasn't lost a set, beat Fifth Seeded H. B. Tatcher, and Russell disposed of Third Seeded T. L. Sherburne.

Doubles play opened yesterday and moved into the semifinal round without incident.

Singles

Quarter-final round—G. C. Russell defeated T. L. Sherburne, 6—1, 7—5; Julius Evans defeated Capt. J. H. Drake, 6—0, 6—1; R. G. Tindell defeated H. B. Thatcher, 6—2, 6—1; G. F. Bell defeated S. M. Lapsley, 6—1, 5—7, 6—2.

Mrs. Kreuzberg and Dale Tie In Women's Golf Tourney

Have 73; Play-Off Scheduled Today at 9:30; Mrs. Meckley, Mrs. Stokes Post Low Gross, 80

By Merrell W. Whittlesey

Mrs. J. C. Dale, one of Kenwood's leading golfers, saved the best round she had ever played for the Star Cup tournament yesterday at Indian Spring and stood between defending champion Mrs. Richard Kruezberg's bid for a second straight triumph. They tied with net 73s and will play off at 9:30 a. m. today.

Mrs. Kruezburg, National Cathedral School teacher, who won several tournaments as Virginia Pope, was out in 42, but two putts, of 40 and 50 feet (the latter she called the "longest putt I ever made") aided her to return in 38 for an 80. She deducted a 7 handicap for the 73.

Mrs. Dale was consistent with 42-44, 86, minus a 13 handicap for the 73. She had just three sixes on her card, and for the other 15 holes played steady fours and fives. She had no three-putt greens and one penalty stroke.

Tie for Low Gross

Mrs. Kreuzburg's 80 was the lowest of the day, but as she preferred to play off for the cup, the low gross ended in a tie between Mrs. Betty Meckley and Mrs. Walter Stokes, of the host club. Both were out in 41 and back in 40, for 81. They will play off for the low gross next week.

Mrs. C. P. Medley, also of the host club, had 78-13, 74, for third low net, despite a bad putting streak that cost a half-dozen three-putt greens. Three tied for the next prize, Mrs. Harvey Cooper, Manor, with 89-14, 75; Mrs. Suart Smith, Argyle, 94-17, 77, and Mrs. H. J. Simons, Manor, 86-9, 77.

Others on the lengthy prize list included Mrs. H. H. Moffitt, Congressional, and Mrs. Hugh Rowan, Chevy Chase, with net 78's; Mrs. Wilda Martin, Washington, and Mrs. R. F. Murphy, Beaver Dam, both consistent winners this season, with 79; a four-way tie at 80 included District Champion Mrs. Leo Walper, with 85-5; Mrs. W. M. Moses, Army and Navy; Mrs. H. Hagenbuckle, Washington, and Mrs. Lafayette Franklin, of the same club.

Mrs. Kreuzburg won the title last year at Columbia, when the event was played over the 36-hole route. The host club entrant had played only five rounds this year until the District championship last week, when she won the second flight.

She three-putted the first green for a six and had a two over par five on the ninth to mar an otherwise exceptionally good round. The 1938 champion's only lapse on the back nine was three putts, but

Havana, Cuba
SAYS
"Accept my compliments. Our fine Havana tobacco which you carried north to blend into your White Owl cigars has been skillfully handled. I have tried one of your new cigars and the taste is there . . . the rich taste of Havana greets you with the first puff."
Carlos Tellez

A brand new Blended-with-Havana cigar —approved by Havana itself

WE took our new Blended-with-Havana White Owl all the way to Havana to test it. For where else but Havana itself would smokers know better the taste of Havana? We selected prominent Cubans—real connoisseurs of cigars—gave them some of the new White Owls to smoke. Without exception they all praised the rich Havana flavor of this new cigar.

We're proud of the Havana tobacco we use in this new cigar . . . it's a really good grade. Does that sound unbelievable for a 5¢ cigar? Well, we are America's largest buyers of Havana tobacco and we know what we are talking about. Fact is, it's the same type of Havana tobacco used in popular cigars costing 10¢ and more. And there's a generous helping of this Havana in each new White Owl, too. How long has it been since you've tried a White Owl? If you haven't tasted the NEW White Owl, you haven't found out that 5¢ now buys a cigar with a 10¢ flavor.

New INVINCIBLE

Your choice of 2 shapes

Another "10¢" feature—now yours for 5¢... a choice of shapes to suit your smoking taste. A long, trim, new Invincible. And a rich, full-bodied, new Club House shape. You get the same amount of tobacco—the same mild blend in either size—only the shape varies.

Rare Gem, Paying $10, Wins Feature Race at Charles Town

Victor Scores By ½ Length; Hacker Up

Winner Clocked In .51 2-5 on Muddy Track; Daily Double Pays Backers $237

By Walter Haight
A Staff Correspondent.

Charles Town, W. Va., June 29.—Rare Gem, running in the interests of Hoffman Brothers, came on with a rush today that accounted for first money in the James Rumsey Purse, feature race of the program here. Coming to the inside at the stretch turn and respondied willingly to Jockey Beverly Hacker's drive, the 3-year-old daughter of High Quest won by a half length Endora, a mediocre performer at Jamacia and Tropical Park, was second, and Margie Wrack third in the test over the 4½-furlong course

Rare Gem was clocked in 0.51 2/5 over a muddy track after racing through a light rain. A winner in another event earlier in the meeting, Rare Gem paid a $10 mutuel.

Endora, something ot a mystery horse, opened at 20-1 in the betting and dropped with a thud. When the start came Endora bounced to the front and it looked like it was all over but the pay-off. The sire gray steel filly, with Jockey A. Balducci up, drew out, with Rare Gem and Margie Wrack following, but well back.

In the stretch Endora seemed to have a safe lead, but ran slightly wide. Jockey Hacker, on Rare Gem, was quick to take advantage of this break and carried his mount through.

The first and second races brought victories to "good things." Trap Shot, shipped in from Delaware, won the first event at a $9.20 mutuel. Shindig, another Delaware importation, won the second race, paying a $7.20 mutuel and figuring in a $237 payoff in the daily double.

Rosin completed the twin bet, while paying an individual mutuel of $16.80.

GROUCHY	(W. Kirk)	112	2	6	6°	6°½	6°		4.10
MISS WATCH	(Snyder)	112	1	7	7°	7°	7°		8.60
HENORA	(Johnson)	114	2	8	8	8	8		99.40

Two-dollar mutuels paid—TRAP SHOT, $9.20, $5.20, $4.80; MAMIE'S LAD, $6.80, $7.00; VANELDER, $30.00.

TRAP SHOT, in motion at break, went into good lead at once, set strong pace, but had to be placed to punishment at end. MAMIE'S LAD, hard ridden, gained gradually on leader and closed gamely under drive. VANELDER, off poorly, went to contention on outside and closed with good energy. FAMA'S FAY could not keep up. BLENHEIM ROSE was held safe from start. The others were outrun.

SECOND RACE—About 4½ furlongs. Purse, $400; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place same. Went to post 3:07½. Off 3:12½. Winner, Mrs. H. W. Wageley's ch. g. (6), by High Time—Nellie Kelly. Trained by C. Lee. Value to winner, $300; second, $60; third, $30; fourth, $10. Time, 0:50.

Horses	Jockeys	Wt.	Post	Start	½	Stretch	Finish	Straight
SHINDIG	(Bernhardt)	108	1	4	2°°	1°°	1°	$12.60

TRAVELO	(Allsgier)	108	6	2	3°	7°	7°	5.30
ELEGANT DAME	(W. Kirk)	108	4	6	7°	8	8	9.90

Two-dollar mutuels paid—SHINDIG, $27.20, $10.40, $5.00; JAY D., $7.40, $4.40; CHARMING BOY, $4.60.

SHINDIG, sent up on inside of JAY D. to take command, drew out with good speed and was much the best. JAY D. had speed to get to front in opening furlong and continued willingly when displaced. CHARMING BOY worked way to contention, saved ground and closed willingly. FAIR DEAL went evenly. ROCKY MOUNT and ADRIATIC were off slowly.

WEATHER, RAINING. TRACK, FAST.

THIRD RACE—Charles Town course. Purse, $400; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place same. Went to post 3:37. Off 3:38½. Winner, D. J. Jenkins' b. g. (5), by Chicle—Penshala. Trained by C. Gordon. Value to winner, $300; second, $60; third, $30; fourth, $10. Time, 1:17 3-5.

KILLY	(Balducci)	108	7	7	7°°	7°	7	8	25.90

Two-dollar mutuels paid—ROSIN, $16.80, $5.60, $3.40; VERITAS, $3.40, $2.80; CAUTIOUS BO, $3.00.

ROSIN had speed to go to front at first turn, shook off CAUTIOUS BOO to open good lead and was kept to drive to end. VERITAS was forward factor from beginning and closed gamely, but was no match for winner. CAUTIOUS BO had early speed and weakened in closing test. LYDE went evenly, but could not threaten seriously. REICH-TETRARCH had to be taken up going to first turn. KILLY had early foot.

Daily Double, Shindig and Rosin, Paid $237.00.

WEATHER, THREATENING. TRACK, FAST.

FOURTH RACE—About 7 furlongs. Purse, $400; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place same. Went to post 4:04. Off 4:06½. Winner, J. W. Wagley's b. g. (4), by Jack High—Chicmonde. Trained by owner. Value to winner, $300; second, $60; third, $30; fourth, $10. Time, 1:27 4-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—ACE OF TRUMPS, $7.20, $4.80, $5.20; PRAIRIE MAN, $5.80, $5.80; CHIEF JEAN, $7.20.

ACE OF TRUMPS, hard ridden to shake off FRED ALMY to get clear lead, was kept to drive to end. PRAIRIE MAN, slow to begin, closed with bold rush on outside. CHIEF JEAN saved ground in early stages, moved up magnificently in early stretch and weakened in last 50 yards. FRED ALMY forced early pace and tired badly. NATIONAL could not reach serious contention. KISSIN KID had early speed and stopped.

WEATHER, RAINING. TRACK, MUDDY.

FIFTH RACE—Six and one-half furlongs. Purse, $500; claiming. For 3-year-olds. Start good. Won driving; place same. Went to post 4:30. Off 4:34. Winner, Jane Waugh's ch. g. (3), by Vander Pool—Lady Trilby. Trained by G. Dizza. Value to winner, $350; second, $75; third, $50; fourth, $25. Time, 1:25.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—VENDOR'S LIEN, $16.80, $7.80, $4.80; PANDORAMINT, $15.20, $8.80; STEALING HOME, $8.80.

VENDOR'S LIEN, hustled to gain command at first turn, assumed good lead and was kept to drive to end. PANDORAMINT, forward factor from beginning, came with good energy under punishment after saving ground at stretch turn. STEALING HOME was closing ground at end. BEST POLICY, slow to begin, closed a gap. NOB forced early pace and weakened. BRAIN CHILD had early speed and could not stay.

SIXTH RACE—About 4½ furlongs. Purse, $500; claiming. For 3-year-olds. Start good. Won driving; place same. Went to post 5:00. Off 5:01½. Winner, H. and G. Hoffman's b. f. (3), by High Quest—Rock Emerald. Trained by H. Hoffman. Value to winner, $350; second, $75; third, $50; fourth, $25. Time, 0:51 3-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—RARE GEM, $10.00, $4.80, $4.00; ENDORA, $10.20, $8.00; MARGIE WRACK, $3.80.

RARE GEM, closest to pace from start, responded willingly to drive, came to inside of ENDORA and was going away at end. ENDORA assumed command at stretch, opened a good lead, swung wide entering stretch and was tiring at end. MARGIE WRACK, forwardly placed from start, lacked racing room in early stretch and hung at end. LENA GIRL closed full of run. The others were outrun.

WEATHER, CLOUDY. TRACK, MUDDY.

SEVENTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $400; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won easily; place driving. Went to post 5:26½. Off 5:28½. Winner, J. T. Strother's b. g. (7), by Bucellas—Nella R. Trained by V. Arthur. Value to winner, $300; second, $60; third, $30; fourth, $10. Time, 1:47 3-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—ADO, $12.60, $7.00, $4.40; WELSH LAD, $8.40, $4.00; VENETIAN, $3.40.

ADO, sent to front at once, saved ground while setting pace and was put to intermittent punishment in closing sixteenth to hold WELSH LAD safe. The latter, forwardly placed from beginning, responded to drive and hung right at end. VENETIAN, unable to keep up in early stages, came with rush at close. CANTER BELLE saved ground while closest to pace to stretch and weakened. BOULDERDAM was well placed for half and stopped.

Bill Ackerman's Column — On Fishing

ACKERMAN

Hardheads continue to hold first place in local piscatorial circles, although from now on the catches will not compare to those of the last two weeks, for the fish have started to scatter out, which is a perfectly normal procedure at this season of the year. From now on they will seek the cooler waters of the channels during the heat of mid-day, running the banks and feeding in the shoaler waters, and up creeks and rivers during the hours of darkness.

It doesn't seem to matter how far up these rivers you go, the ubiquitous hardhead will generally be found feeding there, sometimes in water only a foot or two deep.

Take South River, for instance. We have fished it for many years, usually from the black can off Turkey Point out to the lighthouse, and oftentimes without much success. But we always caught enough to call it a day by fishing off the dock—some 3 miles above the mouth of the river. Late in August and through September, trout, sometimes blues, favor the same haunts. Keep it in mind.

Something about which we have received considerable query of late is the question of bait—the value of "white" shrimp in particular. "White" shrimp are the large Southern species caught on the Gulf Coast at Biloxi and at Fernandina and St. Augustine, and shipped in refrigerators for consumption as food in the North.

In good condition, several species of fish will take it, and hardhead in almost any condition. Our personal dislike of it is the restriction placed upon your catch. A trout will take it only occasionally. The same holds true for the bluefish, and the succulent spot.

Use of crabs, either soft or peelers, is our preference, and there isn't any limitation as to the catch. Nor is there the matter of keeping this bait in a fresh condition—the prime requisite for any kind of fish bait.

Peelers are more trouble than a soft crab, which are cut in a jiffy into from four to a dozen baits, first into halves and then lengthwise, according to the size of the crab. Each piece so cut has the soft tough shell on both sides for holding on the hook, and the added attraction of a dangling leg or two.

Cost is the governing factor in their use, which fluctuates with the time of the month and the take. We haven't paid over 75 cents a dozen this season, and feel that any time they are to be had under a dollar, it is the cheapest bait to use.

Getting back to the hardheads, and chances for catching them this week-end, we don't mean, in saying they have started to scatter, that it will be necessary to find new fishing grounds, only that the catches will be smaller. As far as we know they are to be caught from one end of the bay to the other.

That is true about rockfish also, but only along the Eastern Shore. And with this species it is a process of schooling, now that the all-important spawning run is over.

Schools have been raising occasionally at the points of greatest concentration, such as the Chester River, Eastern Bay, and the Choptank River, for the small schools of bait fish, which are so numerous that we have hopes for exceptional fishing during August and September.

In the meantime, it seems to be no trick at all to make sizable catches of the stripers with the use of a little lead to get the "Bug-eye Feathalures" down. Capt. Bob Lee's boats at Shadyside have been taking from 20 to over 100 to the boat every day they fish the Bloody Point and Poplar Island areas.

Didn't Dewitt Harry go down last week with the express purpose of supplying rock for the Ike Walton barbecue? What's more he brought them home.

Still a little early for school tuna off Brielle and Beach Haven, even though the fish have arrived and the commercial boats are working in them. The more prosaic fishing for summer flounders, however, is something else. They are being taken from one end of the Jersey coast to the other, in the inlets and offshore, and here and there a striper in the surf.

Trout are running heavy from Long Island to Cape Charles, the largest fish, from 8 to 12 pounds, being reported from the Delaware Breakwater, Chincoteague and Cape Charles. Local anglers are going in greater numbers every year for this fishing along the Delaware shore—Bowers Beach and Lewes. It isn't at all unusual for anglers to catch 60 and 70 of these great yellow-bellied tide-runners. Once experienced, this kind of fishing is bound to take dyed-in-the-wool anglers back season after season.

The blues reported for the past ten days along the North Carolina coast, particularly around Oregon Inlet, aren't, in our estimation, the regular run as they are being proclaimed, but the usual summer run of pound and 2-pound fish that are generally caught during July and August.

There are plenty of them, for the catches are from 200 to 300 to the boat, but it is hardly worth a trip of 300 miles each way for a day or two of sport. Vacationing down that way is entirely different—now is the the time to go.

Channel bass are on the beach again at Fox Hill Levels below Ocean City. Catches of anglers staying at the Pine Tree Gun Club, just below the North Beach Station, are running from one to seven. The largest reported was 37½ pounds, not as large as they come by any means, but still lots of fun.

The bluefishing off Ocean City has fallen off considerably. This is not because the fish have moved on, but because the real interest in that section now is the run of white marlin, and the guide boats aren't wasting marlin baits on blues. However, for those who prefer them, they're on Green Run Shoals, for a Pennsylvania angler received another one of the swell rods given by the Game Fisherman's Association for the largest blue of the week. It weighed 4 pounds 14½ ounces and was caught on Capt. Frank Parson's Katherine.

Paul Townsend's Jacpau III, skippered by Capt. Bill Hatch, is back from southern waters, and already has the first marlin in her fish-box, landed by Paul last Sunday near Winter Quarter. Capt. Talbot Bunting had two. Capt. Chester Gray on the Hilda had one that took an hour and five minutes to boat. Genial "Red" Hall was hardly back from Cat Cay, before he was out with his first party, and landed two on succeeding days. Both these fish were taken close to Winter Quarter. In fact no boat has been fishing there but has had one or more strikes. Red's fish weighed 73 and 80 pounds, and were really charging the baits. One marlin that was lost grabbed one bait, jumped and threw the hook and had no sooner hit the water before he had the other bait, which he also managed to throw.

The white marlin very definitely seem to be running heavier in weight this year, although at this early date it might be just luck. Nevertheless, you just can't pass by the two fish of Capt. Crawford Savage on Monday. The largest of the two caught on his Hilda II weighed 89 pounds. Capt. Chester Gray's contribution on this day was a 76-pounder.

On Tuesday three marlin were caught on the four boats out. Crawford Savage's weighed 72 pounds, Capt. Jim Lombard's 67, and the fish of Mrs. Talbot Bunting, on a guide's holiday with Capt. Tal Bunting, weighed 61 pounds. In fact almost every marlin caught so far this season is far above the average weight of those taken last year.

And this is the time to go after them, for boats that are booked for day after day in July are lying idle at the dock right now. And the few fish being brought in are in proportion to the boats out. This great fishing will never be any better than it is right now.

A new innovation, and one which we are glad to see come so early, although there has never been any question that it would, because it is a real safety factor in this offshore fishing that oftentimes takes the small boats 50 miles off the inlet, is the installation of marine radio telephones. They have been found to be an absolute necessity in southern waters and are must equipment in the modern guide boats.

As yet there are but two boats so equipped at Ocean City, Capt. Crawford Savage's Hilda II and Capt. Chester Gray's Hilda. It won't be long before others have them—for several reasons in addition to the safety angle. The most important, probably, because that is what the boats are out there for, is the finding and reporting to other boats the location of the big fish. Then for the business man who finds it hard to get away from his business, it is possible to keep in direct touch with his office through the Norfolk central. A receiving set only is installed at the Magee Docks so that catches may be reported long before the boats arrive home.

The season on black bass opens tomorrow above tidewater, not only in Maryland, but in practically every section of the country, and will continue so until November 30. Size and creel limits are the same, 10 inches and 10 fish. In tidewater Maryland the season does not open until August 1, and closes the following March.

Local Bank Deposits Total $199,884,000

Commercial and Industrial Loans Are $17,601,000

By Thomas M. Cahill.

In a summary of reports of local national banks on March 29, 1939, the Comptroller of the Currency states these institutions had demand deposits on that date amounting to $121,772,000; time deposits totaling $46,992,000, and deposits of all kinds in the sum of $199,884,000. The same banks had totaled liabilities, excluding capital account, of $200,512,000.

These institutions carried an aggregate surplus of $5,902,000; total capital stock amounting to $8,857,000, and undivided profits of $4,582,00. On the date of the last call these banks had commercial and industrial loans amounting to $17,601,000 and loans to brokers and dealers in securities of $300,000. On residential property, other than farm, the banks had $7,639,000; loans of all kinds totaling $45,911,000. Savings accounts in these national banks numbered 106,100.

Bank Dividends

At a regular meeting of the board of directors of Liberty National Bank, held this week, a dividend of $3 per share was declared payable July 15 to stockholders of record at the close of business July 7. Transfer books will not be closed.

At a meeting of the board of directors of the National Bank of Washington held this week, the regular semi-annual dividend of $3 per share was declared payable July 3 to shareholders of record June 28. transfer books to be closed from June 28 to July 5.

Saturday Bank Closings?

Saturday closing of Washington banks in July and August, next year, is a possibility in the opinion of certain bankers. The plan has already proven successful in New Jersey and will be tried extensively in New York this summer. The idea is also gaining favor in many large cities, it is reported.

Various bankers are in favor of the idea because of the wage-hour law, the shorter hours obviating a large amount of overtime. Bank officers remind that comparatively few Federal pay days fall on Saturdays, and closing of large New York correspondent banks on those days presents a new situation, adding that Congress probably would grant such a request which is similar to that approved by the New York State Legislature.

However, it is too late for any move to be made locally toward closing on Saturdays this summer. Later, the matter might be considered by the Washington Clearing House Association, or by the District of Columbia Bankers Association. While possible steps here have been discussed, no official action has been taken. Results in New York City will be followed closely during the two summer months.

Bishop Freeman a Speaker

The Right Rev. James E. Freeman, Episcopal Bishop of Washington, will be the commencement speaker before the 193 class at the Graduate School of Banking at Rutgers University, New Brunswick, N. J., tonight, when 172 bankers will receive diplomas, it was announced here this week. Bishop Freeman is known among bankers for the fine address which he made at the national convention of the American Bankers Association last fall at Houston, Tex., when he spoke on "Spiritual Values in American Life."

The 1939 class will include three graduates from Washington: Daniel J. Callahan, jr., Riggs National Bank; Vincent A. Sheehy, jr., Washington Loan & Tust Co., and Laurence H. Jones, who is connected with the office of the Board of Governors of the Federal Reserve System.

D. C. Life Insuprance

Life insurance agents in the District of Columbia wrote $4,836,000 worth of new business in May, this figure being 7 per cent under the total for May, 1938, reports from the Life Insurance Sales Research Bureau, Hartford, Conn., reveal. Insurance sales here during the first five months of this year, however, were 7 per cent ahead of the like 1938 period, the amount reaching $26,571,000.

Maryland had a good record, its total of $7,734,000 placing May business 7 per cent ahead of last year. The five-month increase was also 7 per cent ahead on a total volume of $41,128,000. Virginia was outstanding with a total of $7,255,000, or a gain of 6 per cent, while the longer period increase was 9 per cent over last year, new business amounting to $37,633,000. West Virginia reported a 1 per cent gain in May, and 2 per cent in the five months.

May business was up 3 per cent in the South Atlantic territory and 8 per cent in the five months. National totals revealed 9 and 14 per cent gains, respectively. May sales totaled $532,089,000; five months, were $2,866,740,000.

Engineering Awards Drop Under Year Ago

New York, June 29 (AP).—Engineering construction awards for the week ended Tuesday, totaling $41,900,000, were 3 per cent greater than the previous week, but 38 per cent below the corresponding week a year ago, Engineering News-Record reported today.

Awards for the first half-year amounted to $1,557,224,000, an increase of 24 per cent over the same period last year.

U. S. Railroads Operate 63,800 Motor Trucks

New York, June 29.—American railroads are now operating nearly 63,800 motor trucks in terminal transfers, intercity haulage, and store-door delivery services, according to "Automobile Facts and Figures" for 1939, which shortly will be ready for distribution.

The railroads are also operating more than 5,200 buses on more than 50,000 route miles of highways and streets in branch line and terminal operations. On many routes which parallel the rails they run on schedules integrated with train times, giving more frequent service.

Washington Gas May Net Income 2.7 Times Year Ago

The monthly report of the Washington Gas Light Co. filed yesterday with the Public Utilities Commission shows operating revenues of $674,118 for May, compared with $593,588 for May a year ago, an increase of $80,530, due principally to the larger volume of gas sales. Operating expenses increased $30,110 from $468,747 in May, 1938, to $498,857 this May. These figures result in a net operating revenue of $175,261, compared with $124,841 in May a year ago.

Non-operating revenues amounted to $23,906, or $19,965 more than May, 1938. Interest and amortization was $70,438 for May this year, compared with $81,118 for May last year, a decrease effected by the bond refinancing last November. The net result of the month's operation was a net income of $128,729, compared with $47,664 in May, 1938.

The May earnings bring the net income for the first five months of 1939 to $953,778, compared with $708,534 for the same period last year.

The company reports gas sales of 961,674 Mcf, or an increase of 138,802 Mcf over May a year ago. As of May 31, 1939, there were 155,030 meters in service, a gain of 6,349 meters over the same date last year.

9,413,792 Hold Stock In 152 Corporations

A total of 9,413,792 stockholders was reported by 152 of America's largest corporations at the end of 1938, compared with 9,325,428 for the same corporations at the end of 1937, an increase of 9-10 of 1 per cent.

In 1928, 92 companies had 3,460,089 stockholders; in 1938, 7,128,918—a gain of 106 per cent. Practically all of the increase took place between 1928 and 1932, the year which marked the bottom of the depression. Since the advent of the New Deal the number has remained almost stationery.

Mayor of Nashville Confers With Willkie

New York, June 29 (AP).—Mayor Thomas L. Cummings, of Nashville, Tenn., arrived here today to negotiate with Wendell P. Wilkie, president of Commonwealth & Southern Corporation, for independent acquisition by the city of the utility's subsidiary electric properties there.

Mayor Cummings' purpose, he said, was to avoid, if possible, duplication of existing facilities in the event Congress is unable to agree on enabling legislation for the $78,600,000 Tennessee Valley Authority-C. & S. deal, to which Nashville and other municipalities are parties.

Canadian Province Bonds Offered

New York, June 29 (AP).—The first Canadian provincial or municipal financing in United States markets since the securities and exchange act became law was before the public today in the form of $9,250,000 Province of New Brunswick 5- and 10-year debentures, offered by a syndicate headed by Smith, Barney & Co.

The debentures were priced at par and interest. Proceeds will be used for capital expenditures, including roads and bridges.

Bituminous Production

The National Coal Association estimates bituminous coal production in the United States for the week ended June 24 as approximately 6,500,000 net tons. Production for the corresponding week: 1938, 5,108,000; 1937, 7,208,000 tons. Percentage of change: 1938, increase 27.3 per cent; 1937, decrease 9.8 per cent.

Wheat Prices Move Upward Cent a Bushel

War Talk and Higher Foreign Quotations Aid to Advance

By the Associated Press.

Chicago, June 29.—Wheat prices registered another advance of about 1 cent a bushel today that put market quotations back to around the best level since mid-June.

Sharply higher prices in foreign markets and fear of a new European crisis played a part in the upturn here. The revival of war talk was accentuated by weakness in securities.

Liverpool prices closed ¾@1 cent higer and Rotterdam and Winnipeg were about 2 cents up. Although domestic prices are well above quotations at Winnipeg and Liverpool, the spread may increase, some market experts believe, because of smaller prospective U. S., production, the higher Government loan and subsidizing of exports.

Chicago wheat also derived strength from evidence of a brisk domestic demand for what new grain is not being put into storage. Milling interests reported sharply expanded flour business recently and it was assumed this involved purchases either of new wheat as yet unhedged or lifting of hedges in the futures pit. Actual wheat is quoted higher than futures in practically all markets.

Wheat closed ⅞@1⅜ higher than yesterday, July 71⅝, September 72¾. Other grains followed, corn closing ¼@¾ higher, July 47⅛@47⅝, September 49⅛@49⅝; oats ¾@1 up, and rye ½@1⅛ higher. Lard lost 10 to 15 cents.

Cotton Futures Hold Steady in Narrow Range

New York, June 29 (AP).—The cotton futures market couldn't decide whether to go up or down today. Moving within a 5 to 11-point range, final prices were up 1 to down 1. A stumbling block to buyers early in the session was the effect of rumors the export subsidy may be further delayed or perhaps even abandoned.

Later this pressure, mostly from foreign interests, let up but despite a fair demand from other sources the market failed to work up sizable rallying power.

In the final half hour offerings became scarce and buying by ring traders and brokers gave the market a lost-minute fillip.

Fall With Disturbing European News Volume Increases With Heavy Selling Bond Weakness an Unsettling Feature

New York, June 29.—The more alarming news from Europe, pointing to imminence of further German aggression, accelerated the downward movement of share prices today. The market opened lower on an accumulation of overnight selling orders and continued to decline throughout the session, last prices being at or not far from the day's lows. A wide list of pivotals closed with losses of 1 to 4 points. Turnover of 822,580 shares, was the largest for any day since April when the Reich engineered the Albanian grab.

While the break in stocks contributed to as well as reflected war fears in financial and business circles, the action of the bond market was even more upsetting to sentiment. Active British Empire issues, where changes are usually confined to small fractions, were down 1 or more points. European governments showed like softness, some of the less active descriptions yielding double figures. Speculative domestic liens followed the trend line of shares and United States Governments were set back to the extent of half a point. These declines resulted mainly from thin markets, turnover amounting to between $7,000,000 and $8,000,000.

Wheat and cotton moved in conformance with the war pattern, the former gaining further ground while the latter was inclined to ease. In former exchange markets, use of stabilization funds probably held quotations, accounting for the narrow changes which were mostly on the downside against the dollar. Spot silver was marked down for the third consecutive occasion, the latest cut being one-half cent.

Developments Abroad

London, Paris, Berlin and Tokyo cables were scanned anxiously in board rooms both before and after the opening. News dispatches indicated infiltration of German troops and transport of artillery to Danzig. Secretary of Foreign Affairs Lord Halifax, in a British warning to Germany, declared the country's full strength would be employed to resist further aggression in Europe. In his speech before the Royal Institute of International Affairs, Lord Halifax said that Britain's security and independence is threatened to the extent that the security and independence of other countries are endangered, and that Britain is prepared to fight.

Initial trades on the stock exchange included blocks of 1,000 to 3,000 shares, the largest of 3,100 shares being in Curtiss-Wright. Steel common opened on 2,000, General Motors and New York Central, 1,500 each, International Nickel and Warner Bros., 2,500 each; General Electric, 1,400, and U. S. Rubber, Bethlehem Steel, Radio, General American Transportation, Consolidated Edison, Southern Pacific and a number of others on 1,000-share lots.

Store Shares Weak

Stores showed the severest declines except an assortment of high-priced specialties, but steels, motors and coppers also were depressed severely. Ten representative aircraft issues showed average losses of nearly a point apiece. The 100 key big board stocks finished at 99.97, only a fraction above the low for the day, for a net loss of 1.02 points. The 70 industrials showed average declines of 1.18 points and the 30 rails 0.65 point. Large individual drops included 1⅝ for Chrysler, 1½ for Montgomery Ward, 4¾ for Du Pont, 2¾ for Telephone, 2 each for Johns-Manville, Commonwealth & Southern preferred, Allied Chemical and Union Carbide. Union Pacific sank 3½ and losses of a point or more were marked up for Woolworth, U. S. Rubber, Westinghouse, International Nickel, Chesapeake & Ohio, Anaconda, Atchison, American Smelting and a number of others. Of 801 issues traded, 639 declined against only 50 advances, 112 issues being unchanged on the day.

There were 45 new 1939 lows, including those by Standard Oil of New Jersey, Bethlehem Steel, R. H. Macy, Consolidated Aircraft, Crane Co., Continental Oil and United States and foreign securities. Gannett preferred was one of seven stocks making new highs for the year or longer. It moved up 2½ on a single transaction. U. S. Rubber, the most active issue, was traded to the extent of 24,000 shares.

Domestic news, ignored for the time, was mostly favorable. Carloadings were at a high since the week of December 3, 1938; business indices were higher for the week and engineering construction awards were 3 per cent above the previous week, but 38 per cent less than for the like 1938 week. Well-posted commentators estimated consumption of oil products for July and August at 10 per cent or more above the comparable months last year.

Bond Market Weak

Listed bonds today suffered the same sort of acute weakness that afflicted the equities market. Foreign political rumors added to the gloominess of the senior section, which already was quite pronounced on the basis of domestic developments. Losses ranging to 12 points appeared in foreign dollar obligations, and speculative domestic issues also were quiet weak. United States Treasury bonds and best rated corporate issues were marked fractionally lower. Turnover amounted to $6,260,000.

War rumors from Europe unsettled all foreign dollar issues. The high grade Scandinavians lost 1 to 2 points, and the British Empire issues of Australia and Canada were similarly soft. Polish bonds lost ground to 3 points. Italian and Japanese issues were further interest-payers that tumbled. German and other European default issues drifted downward, and Latin-American default bonds likewise were easy.

Rails Active

Medium-priced carrier obligations were fairly active in the domestic section, and lower by a range from small fractions to 10 points. The more indicative issues were 1 to 2 points off, and recessions also were common among borderline and default rails. Local traction issues merely observed the general tendency, as did holding company bonds and the industrial convertible group. New York Trap Rock bonds stood out, with advances in both stamped and ordinary bonds.

Long-term United States Treasury issues drifted downward by 5-32 to 20-32 point, with average losses in the indicative issues running to ½ point. Guaranteed issues of the farm and home corporations were soft, but inactive. Dealers complained of the thin market in Governments. Highly rated utility, railroad and industrial issues tended lower by fractions.

5 Banking Firms Sell 31% of Issues In Past Five Years

Five New York banking firms have underwritten 31 per cent of the $7,584,000,000 securities registered in the five-year period ended June, 1938, the Securities Commission reported yesterday. The firms named by the commission were: The First Boston Corporation; Brown Harriman & Co., Inc.; Kuhn, Loeb & Co., Smith, Barney & Co., and Morgan Stanley & Co., Inc., affiliate of J. P. Morgan & Co.

The 20 largest firms had about 66 per cent of the amount of all participations, and managed 84 per cent of the amount of all issues.

Between January 1, 1934, and June 30, 1938, a total of 515 different firms participated in underwriting 745 security issues of a million dollars and having a total gross proceeds of $7,584,000,000. New York City firms managed or originated 524 of these issues.

The report said that of nearly $10,000,000,000 of corporate bond issues offered between January, 1934, and June, 1938, nearly $1,600,000,000 was privately placed. (Private offerings of securities do not have to be registered with the SEC.)

The bulk of privately offered issues was taken by life insurance companies. In 1935 and 1936 these companies took about 75 per cent of the privately offered issues. In 1937 they took 95 per cent of the private offerings and in the first six months of 1938 more than 99 per cent.

Nation's Airlines Set Four Records in May

The Civil Aeronautics Authority reported yesterday that traffic on this country's airlines set these four records during May: Passengers carried, 149,291, an increase of 25.79 per cent over April; plane miles flown, 7,122,347, an increase of 13.64 per cent over April; revenue or passenger miles flown, 57,483,927, an increase of 21.14 per cent; and available passenger seat miles flown, 104,844,128, an increase of 11.99 per cent.

Trading Too Light For N. Y. Exchange Depository Now

New York, June 29 (AP).—The long discussed proposal for a central depository for New York Stock Exchange firms was approved in principle today by the accounting firm of Haskins & Sells, but the exchange was advised to wait for larger volume of trading before setting up the new institution.

Recommendations of the accounting firm were based on a study of the feasibility of the central depository idea undertaken at the exchange's request. The report concluded that it "would be unwise to organize a central depository except on the basis that it could handle an estimated average trading volume of 2,000,000 shares per day with reserve capacity to handle an occasional series of 3,000,000 share days."

Cost of operating the proposed institution would be prohibitive, the report indicated, with stock exchange volume, as in recent months, averaging around 500,000 shares daily.

The central depository idea contemplated the organization of an independent unit which would function for all stock exchange firms as the custodian of securities.

Brownell Beaten In Collegiate Golf

while Brownell paired two 40's for an 80.

Merritt reached the semifinals by defeating Lee Ramsel, of Louisiana State, 1 up on 19 holes. Hall outlasted Steward (Skip) Alexander, of Duke, to win on the twentieth green. Alexander 3-putted on the second extra hole to bow himself out of the tournament.

D. Antoni caught Art Floberg, the Beloit giant killer, on an erratic afternoon and won as he pleased by a 4-and-3 score.

McDowell, who lost the title to Johnnie Burke on the thirty-seventh green a year ago, put up a valiant battle but never could catch the Westerner after the sixth hole. The Stanford shot maker got off to a shaky start, missing a 15-inch putt on the third to go 2 down.

McDowell was over par figures on both the fourth and fifth, however, and Berl squared the match. The Westerner sank a 15-footer for a birdie 3 on the 423-yard sixth to take the lead for the rest of the afternoon.

Remember this if you want really fine Gin:

Gordon's has the Advantage of LIQUEUR QUALITY & HIGH PROOF, 94.4

● This advantage means a lot to you. For Liqueur Quality means richer flavor, velvety smoothness. And High Proof, 94.4, means sustained flavor—drinks that never taste thin. That's why it's important to ask for Gordon's when buying gin by the bottle or the drink!

DRINKS NEVER TASTE THIN WITH

from tee to green she played exceptional golf.

Mrs. Dale's performance was not only her best round of golf but her top effort in a tournament. She was medalist and finalist in the Kenwood Club championship last year, while Mrs. Kreuzburg was also a runner-up, at Indian Spring.

Harrisonburg Trades Cipalla To Lynchburg

Harrisonburg, Va., June 29 (A).—The Virginia League's first trade was made here tonight when Harrisonburg exchanged Lou Cipalla, hard-hitting outfielder and infielder, for Nick Rhabe, of Lynchburg, another hard hitter.

Managers Hank Hulvey of Harrisonburg, and Al Wieman of Lynchburg, completed the deal while the clubs were idle here because of rain. The trade has been rumored for weeks. Both managers said they had strengthened their clubs, as Harrisonburg needs a better defensive outfielder and Lynchburg a hard-hitting infielder.

Rhabe, a North Carolinian, who has played in the Piedmont League, ranked fourth with .409 in the latest official batting averages, while Cipalla, a star American Legion nine graduate from Erie, Pa., batted one point less. Cipalla led in hits and total bases while Rhabe was second.

ADAM A. WESCHLER & SON, Auctioneers

TRUSTEES' SALE OF THREE-STORY BRICK DWELLING, TEN ROOMS, TWO BATHS, NO. 1928 SEVENTEENTH STREET NORTHWEST.

By virtue of a deed of trust recorded in Liber No. 6788, folio 78, et seq., one of the land records of the District of Columbia, and at the request of party secured thereby, the undersigned trustees will offer for sale by public auction, in front of premises, on TUESDAY, THE TENTH DAY OF JULY, 1939, AT THREE O'CLOCK P. M., the following-described property in the District of Columbia, to-wit: Lot 256 in Elias Heidenheimer's compilation of lots in Square 157 as per plat recorded in the Office of the Surveyor for the District of Columbia in Liber 32 at folio 160; subject to and with a perpetual right of way in the alley purposes over a portion of Lot 248 fronting 4 feet on alley in rear by depth of 60 feet along west line of said lot and marked on subdivision as a private alley; subject to the right of redemption by the makers of the aforesaid deed of trust, their heirs and assigns, within a period of sixty days from the date of sale, not excluding Sundays and holidays, as provided in said deed of trust; subject to any and all liens created by conditional bills of sale for heating and other equipment, if any, and overdue water rentals; all other taxes and assessments to be adjusted to date of transfer of title.

TERMS OF SALE: One-third of the purchase-money to be paid in cash, balance in equal installments, secured by promissory notes of purchaser payable in one and two years, with interest at 5 per cent per annum from day of sale, payable semi-annually, secured by first deed of trust upon property sold, or all cash, at option of purchaser. A deposit of $500.00 required of purchaser at sale. Examination of title, conveyancing, recording, revenue stamps and notarial fees at cost of purchaser. Terms to be complied with within ten days from expiration of redemption period, otherwise trustees reserve the right to resell property at risk and cost of defaulting purchaser, after five days advertisement of such resale in some newspaper published in Washington, D. C., or deposit may be forfeited, or without forfeiting deposit trustees may avail themselves of any legal or equitable rights against defaulting purchaser.

The Federal Diary

By The Diarist

DESERTED VILLAGE: At this point, it looks as if that Hyde Park executive order, which puts Monday in the pockets of Federal employes, will leave Washington about as lively as a dust bowl.

To the rescue of those timorous souls who might have been contemplating Independence Day at home comes Duke Strople of the AFGE who says it's never too late to join the trek to the New York World's Fair. You can still purchase your right-of-way to the perisphere as late as 5 o'clock this afternoon at Don Britt's, 1422 F street. Or you can join the line of march by dialing Republic 2695. The train gets moving at 1:30 p. m. tomorrow.

The NFFE will also hold out reservations for its New York trip until this evening. Contact room 604 at 710 Fourteenth street. This excursion will bring you back to Washington at 4:55 p. m. on Tuesday.

THE AGRICULTURAL History Society has a new president, Everett E. Edwards. Mr. Edwards can't be here to take a bow because he's teaching classes at the University of Missouri Summer School . . . and this column isn't equipped with television. The society which was organized in 1919, now has about 400 members all over the world. Joiners in England, Germany, China, Japan and a few other dots on the atlas contribute articles on agricultural history which appear in a quarterly, the April number of which is just off the press. The next issue of the quarterly will come out the end of July, and material for it is already under consideration.

Others who got balloted in with Edwards include Arthur G. Peterson of the Agricultural Department, who is secretary-treasurer; and Harlod E. Riggs, of the University of Miami who is vice president.

LOCAL 2 of the UFWA has a new social director, Miss Mildred Morris, who has been filling her notebook with ideas for this summer and next autumn. The autumn plans are still on the tentaive side, but summer activities are piling up fast.

For instance, Miss Morris, who has been working with Mrs. Effie Underwood and Mack Millman, has already taken a ping-pong tournament out of her sleeve. Games beginning the day after the Fourth will be played at UFWA headquarters. Sixteen players are the specified amount, but the more who sign up for paddle work, the merrier.

In addition to this, Miss Morris is announcing a beach party for Sunday, July 9, at Woodland Beach. Those interested in a little fresh air and sand will gather at the cottage of Magdalene Gale, the local's corresponding secretary. Pack your own lunch and meet at UFWA headquarters not later than 10 o'clock that morning.

WESTERN CRICKETS are showing their best profiles for the moving picture which the Government is now making of the little pests out in Utah and Nebraska. It looks as if the scenario situation has been pretty well taken over by the bug men who have just finished a crime-doesn't pay feature on lawless grasshoppers.

Right now Raymond Evans, chief of the division of motion pictures, is working on the script of a movie which may require a year or more to finish. Most of the Government's celluloid releases require from 30 to 60 days to complete.

MORE OF THE FOURTH: Hi-Catoctin Camp, that up-in-the-mountain retreat for Federal employes is going to have a holiday week-end beginning Saturday. Bunk and feedbag for four days, including grubstakes on Saturday evening, will come to only $7.50 per. The Washington bus swings out of the Greyhound terminal at 4:15 p. m. At Thurmont, Md., you taxi the rest oft he way for $1.50.

Miss Catherine Heberle, of the National Institute of Public Health, was one of the many at the camp last Sunday and in a letter to the camp council she states that the "guide emphatically informed us that there are no mosquitoes, ticks or chiggers!" That practically leaves Hi-Catoctin without a rub in it anywhere.

Furthermore, according to Miss Heberle, halfway up the mountain to the camp you are greeted by a forest ranger in a red satin blouse, 10-gallon hat and clanking spurs. And if you are interested in amateur photography, the camp has its own dark room where you can print your snaps before getting back to town.

Contract Bridge

By Florence Osborn.

Artificial bids are bothersome enough without exploiting them in conjunction with psychic bidding, many players maintain, and when they come up against an experience such as H. L. B., jr.'s, it is no wonder they send violent complaints to the tournament management asking for the barring of artificial bids.

Here is what our contributor writes. The hand and the bidding are shown in today's box:

"West asked South if his club opening was the Bowling artificial-club bid (this opening shows three and one-half minimum-honor count, a five-card biddable suit, and is forcing for one round). It is used quite extensively hereabouts, and the negative response, indicating a lack of one and one-half honor counts, is one diamond.

"South agreed he was using the artificial club. West, who would have bid one no-trump had South passed, figuring that the majority of strength lay in South and West hands and that the opportunity to double might present itself later, passed.

"North bid one spade, and East also was afraid to enter the bidding. When North bid three diamonds and it was passed by both East and South, West suspected South's opening club bid but hesitated to jump in at the three level. He passed. The hand was defeated one trick, which proved to be a good score for North-South, as four no-trump could be made by East-West with proper play.

"South claimed his opening bid of one club was purely psychic and that he was misinforming his partner as well as the East-West pair. Will you kindly answer these questions:

"1. Should West bid even in the face of the one-club opening?"

[Comment: In view of the one-club bid, it would seem that the best procedure for West is to pass. He cannot know that South is psychic, and it is possible that he will get into serious trouble if he interferes with the artificial call.]

"2. When should the East-West pair enter the bidding and how should it go?"

[Comment: West may enter the bidding after North's three-diamond call which was passed by South revealing the psychic. West could reopen the bidding by doubling. This double would show a balanced hand with high-card strength and ability to support any suit East bid. East then would have the option of leaving in the double or bidding a suit or no-trump, depending upon the nature of his hand. Since it is unlikely that North was also bluffing, his best bid probably is three no-trump.]

"3. Does the East-West pair have any grounds for protesting South's one-club opening, inasmuch as West inquired about the bid immediately?"

[Comment: No. As long as there is no question of good faith on the parts of North and South, a psychic bid may be made in the Blackwood, Culbertson's four-five no-trump convention or any artificial or natural call.]

West, however, did not proceed correctly in his questioning. He should have asked North if the one-club bid had any special meaning to him and if so what it was. This is the recognized method of questioning players concerning their bidding, and it would have relieved South of the embarrassment he must have felt.

PULITZER PRIZE NOVEL

THE YEARLING

By Marjorie Kinnan Rawlings

Chapter XXIV

THE RATTLER struck him from under the grape-vine without warning. Jody saw the flash, blurred as a shadow, swifter than a martin, surer than the slashing claws of a bear. He saw his father stagger backward under the force of the blow. He heard him give a cry. He wanted to step back, too. He wanted to cry out with all his voice. He stood rooted to the sand and could not make a sound. It was lightning that had struck, and not a rattler. It was a branch that broke, it was a bird that flew, it was a rabbit running——

Penny shouted, "Git back! Hold the dogs!"

The voice released him. He dropped back and clutched the dogs by the scuff of their necks. He saw the mottled shadow lift its flat head, knee-high. The head swung from side to side, following his father's slow motions. He heard the rattles hum. The dogs heard. They winded. The fur stood stiff on their bodies. Old Julia whined and twisted out of his hand. She turned and slunk down the trail. Her long tail clung to her hindquarters. Rip reared on his hind feet, barking.

As slowly as a man in a dream, Penny backed away. The rattles sung. They were not rattles—— Surely it was a locust humming. Surely it was a tree-frog singing—— Penny lifted his gun to his shoulder and fired. Jody quivered. The rattler coiled and writhed in its spasms. The head was buried in the sand. The contortions moved down the length of the thick body, the rattles whirred feebly and were still. The coiling flattened into slow convolutions, like a low tide ebbing. Penny turned and stared at his son.

He said, "He got me."

He lifted his right arm and gaped at it. His lips lifted dry over his teeth. His throat worked. He looked dully at two punctures in the flesh. A drop of blood oozed from each.

He said, "He was a big 'un."

JODY LET GO HIS HOLD on Rip. The dog ran to the dead snake and barked fiercely. He made sorties and at last poked the coils with one paw. He quieted and snuffed about in the sand. Penny lifted his head from his staring. His face was like hickory ashes.

He said, "Ol' Death goin' to git me yit."

He licked his lips. He turned abruptly and began to push through the scrub in the direction of the clearing. The road would be shorter going, for it was open, but he headed blindly for home in a direct line. He plowed through the low scrub oaks, the gallberries, the scrub palmettos. Jody panted behind him. His heart pounded so hard that he could not see where he was going. He followed the sound of his father's crashing across the undergrowth. Suddenly the denseness ended. A patch of higher oaks made a shaded clearing. It was strange to walk in silence.

Penny stopped short. There was a stirring ahead. A doe-deer leaped to her feet. Penny drew a deep breath, as though breathing were for some reason easier. He lifted his shotgun and leveled it at the head. It flashed over Jody's mind that his father had gone mad. This was no moment to stop for game. Penny fired. The doe turned a somersault and dropped to the sand and kicked a little and lay still. Penny ran to the body and drew his knife from its scabbard. Now Jody knew his father was insane. Penny did not cut the throat, but slashed into the belly. He laid the carcass wide open. The pulse throbbed in the heart. Penny slashed out the liver. Kneeling, he changed his knife to his left hand. He turned his right arm and stared again at the twin punctures. They were now closed. The forearm was thick-swollen and blackening. The sweat stood out on his forehead. He cut quickly across the wound. A dark blood gushed and he pressed the warm liver against the incision.

He said in a hushed voice, "I kin feel it draw——"

He pressed harder. He took the meat away and looked at it. It was a venomous green. He turned and applied the fresh side.

He said, "Cut me out a piece o' the heart."

Jody jumped from his paralysis. He fumbled with the knife. He hacked away a portion.

Penny said, "Another."

He changed the application again and again.

He said, "Hand me the knife."

HE CUT A HIGHER gash in his arm where the dark swelling rose the thickest. Jody cried out.

"Pa! You'll bleed to death!"

"I'd ruther bleed to death than swell. I seed a man die——"

The sweat poured down his cheeks.

"Do it hurt bad, Pa?"

"Like a hot knife was buried to the shoulder."

The meat no longer showed green when he withdrew it. The warm vitality of the doe's flesh was solidifying in death. He stood up.

He said quietly, "I cain't do it no more good. I'm goin' on home. You go to the Forresters and get 'em to ride to the Branch for Doc Wilson.

"Reckon they'll go?"

"We got to chance it. Call out to 'em quick, sayin', afore they chunk somethin' at you or mebbe shoot."

He turned back to pick up the beaten trail. Jody followed. Over his shoulder he heard a light rustlin. He looked back. A spotted fawn stood peering from the edge of the clearing, wavering on uncertain legs. Its dark eyes were wide and wondering.

He called out, "Pa! The doe's got a fawn."

"Sorry, boy. I cain't he'p it. Come on."

An agony for the fawn came over him. He hesitated. It tossed its small head, bewildered. It wobbled to the carcass of the doe and leaned to smell it. It bleated.

Penny called, "Git a move on, young un."

Jody ran to catch up with him. Penny stopped an instant at the dim road.

"Tell somebody to take this road in to our place and pick me up in case I cain't make it in. Hurry."

The horror of his father's body, swollen in the road, washed over him. He began to run. His father was plodding with a slow desperation in the direction of Baxter's Island.

Jody ran down the wagon trail to the myrtle thicket where it branched off into the main road to Forresters' Island. The road, much used, had no growth of weeds or grass to make a footing. The dry shifting sand caught at the soles of his feet and seemed to wrap clinging tentacles around the muscles of his legs. He dropped into a short dog-trot that seemed to pull more steadily against the sand. His legs moved, but his mind and body seemed suspended above them, like an empty box on a pair of cartwheels. The road under him was a treadmill. His legs pumped up and down, but he seemed to be passing the same trees and bushes again and again. His pace seemed so slow, so futile, that he came to a bend with a dull surprise. The curve was familiar. He was not far from the road that led directly into the Forrester clearing.

HE CAME TO THE tall trees of the island. They startled him, because they meant that he was now so close. He came alive and he was afraid. He was afraid of the Forresters. And if they refused him help, and he got safely away again, where should he go? He halted a moment under the shadowy live oaks, planning. It was twilight. He was sure it was not time for darkness. The rain clouds were not clouds, but an infusion of the sky, and had now filled it entirely. The only light was a strand of green across the west, the color of the doe's flesh with the venom on it. It came to him that he would call to his friend Fodder-wing. His friend would hear him and come, and he might be allowed to approach close enough to tell his errand. It eased his heart to think of it, to think of his friend's eyes gentle with sorrow for him. He drew a long breath and ran wildly down the path under the oak trees.

He shouted, "Fodder-wing! Fodder-wing! Hit's Jody!"

In an instant now his friend would come to him from the house, crawling down the rickety steps on all fours, as he must do when in a hurry. Or he would appear from the bushes with his raccoon at his heels.

"Fodder-wing! Hit's me!"

There was no answer. He broke into the swept sandy yard.

"Fodder-wing!"

There was an early light lit in the house. A twist of smoke curled from the chimney. The doors and shutters were closed against the mosquitoes and against the nighttime. The door swung open. In the light beyond, he saw the Forrester men rise to their feet, one after the other, as though the great trees in the forest lifted themselves by their roots and stirred toward him. He stopped short. Lem Forrester advanced to the stoop. He lowered his head and turned it a little sideways until he recognized the intruder.

"You leetle bastard. What you after here?"

Jody faltered, "Fodder-wing——"

"He's ailin.' You cain't see him no-ways."

It was too much. He burst out crying.

He sobbed, "Pa—He's snake-bit."

To Be Continued Tomorrow.

Commissioner Allen Sworn In For 2d Term

Justice Black Admjnisters Oath Before Officials

Commissioner George E. Allen yesterday plunged knee-deep into three major District problems immediately after taking the oath of office administered by Associate Judge Black of the United States Supreme Court.

His first problem, and the one for which he was reappointed by the President, is reorganization of the local government. He reiterated his stand for national representation and local suffrage and added he would seek an increased Federal payment based on the Overton fiscal formula.

Seeks City Manager

The swearing-in ceremonies, which took place in his office, were attended by members of the Senate and House, as well as District and civic officials.

Commissioner Allen said he would recommend the retention of the commission form of government with the addition of a city manager who would attend to the administrative duties of the board.

Commissioner Melvin C. Hazen presided over the ceremonies referring to his "good friend, George," as one of the finest Commissioners this city ever had.

Chairman King of the Senate District Committee and Chairman Collins of the sub-committee on District appropriations made brief talks expressing satisfaction with the President's reappointment of Commissioner Allen.

McCoach Attends

Attending the ceremonies were Engineer Commissioner David McCoach, jr., who said it "will be a pleasure" to work with Commissioner Allen; Mrs. Ellen S. Woodward, of the Social Security Board; Commissioner Robert Hinckley, of the Civil Aeronautics Authority; Judge John P. McMahon, presiding judge of Police Court; Holly Stover, E. Barrett Prettyman, former corporation counsel; John J. Pelley, president of the Association of American Railroads; Mrs. Allen, Mrs. M. J. Kean, the mother of Mrs. Allen, and heads of the various District departments.

Bullock to Hear Judge Charge Jury Today

Testimony in the Shinault murder case will be completed today, and Willie Bullock, 39, will hear Justice Laws instruct the jury concerning the verdict that can be returned against him.

Indicted for the "first-degree murder" of Police Officer George Shinault, the colored man yesterday heard his attorneys plead that premeditation and forethought had not been proved at the four-day trial.

They argued that Bullock was intoxicated when the shooting occurred seven years ago.

The Government contended Bullock was standing where he could see Shinault coming and knew at whom he aimed.

A first-degree murder conviction would make the death sentence mandatory.

The "tough guy" of the Cabinet, Harold L. Ickes, Secretary of the Interior, faced 2,581 Public Works Administration employes yesterday, and in a choking voice, said farewell to the agency he has headed since its inception six years ago. Secretary Ickes is shown at right, before microphone, as he said, "I've taken a good many things and I ought to be able to take this . . ." President Roosevelt named John M. Carmody to head the new Federal Works Agency, which will take over the PWA tomorrow

New Naval Medical Center Dedicated by Charles Edison

Assistant Secretary of the Navy Charles Edison, speaking at groundbreaking ceremonies at the new Naval Medical Center yesterday, declared the project "will set a new high standard" for such establishments.

He spoke after Rear Admiral Perceval S. Rossiter, retired Surgeon General of the Navy, turned a spadeful of earth to start construction of the $4,850,000 project. Present were Rear Admiral Ross T. McIntire, present Surgeon General; Rear Admiral Ben Moreell, who will have charge of construction, and other ranking naval officials.

Edison said the establishment was made possible only by the "great personal interest" of President Roosevelt.

The center, located on Rockville Pike near Bethesda, Md., will include a medical school, dental school, research facilities and a hospital of 500 beds, capable of expansion in war-time to 1,000 beds. It will replace the present medical center at Twenty-third and E streets northwest.

Funeral Service For Mrs. Parker To Be Held Today

Funeral services for Mrs. Annie K. Parker, 79, wife of Robert H. Parker, will be held at 2:30 p. m. today at her home, 5406 Forty-first street northwest. Mrs. Parker died Wednesday after an illness of six weeks.

An active worker for the Methodist Home for the Aged, Mrs. Parker was chairman of the Case committee. For many years she was an active member of the Calvary Methodist Church. She had lived in Washington since her removal here from Greencastle, Ind., when she was 10 years old.

Besides her husband, a daughter, Mrs. Ralph B. Fleharty, two grandchildren, and a brother, James D. Darnall, of this city, survive. Another brother, Edward Darnall, lives in California.

Rites for Mrs. Owens

Funeral services for Mrs. Charles A. Owens of Wilmington, Del., sister of Mrs. Howell Peeples, 1870 Wyoming avenue northwest, will be held in Wilmington tomorrow at 2 p. m. Burial will be in Warrenton, Va., following the services.

Cosmopolitan Club Host to Beamish

H. L. Beamish, of Aurora, Ill., third vice president and former executive secretary of Cosmopolitan International, was a guest at yesterday's meeting of the Cosmopolitan Club at the Carlton Hotel. He was introduced by President Edmund O. Carl.

C. J. Mack and Dr. Anthony L. Scullen, named respectively, governor and secretary-treasurer of the Capital District Federation of Cosmopolitan Clubs, gave accounts of the convention at Old Point Comfort. Ed Randels reported on the success of the recent stag night.

Al W. Lee won the attendance prize. Secretary Mike Schaefer read a letter from Herbert Wood, a member, who is a member of the American Labor Commission at Geneva.

Vreeland Confers With Lawyers on Lunacy Measure

Anxious to see legislation through at this session which would remedy overcrowding and unnecessarily long detention of patients in the Gallinger Hospital psycopathic ward, Representative Vreeland (Republican), of New Jersey, conferred again yesterday with a District Bar Association committee and scheduled another meeting for tomorrow.

The lawyer's group, consisting of H. Mason Welch, Stanley H. Fischer, Austin Canfield and Lawrence Koenigsberger, discussed with Vreeland proposed changes in his lunacy commitment bill.

The lawyers said they are delighted with Vreeland's cooperative attitude and praised efforts of the House District Committee member to relieve the situation at Gallinger.
